V tuto chvíli je to unavený bod povídání, ale: v bílých zemích vláda/média všem říkala, aby měli méně dětí kvůli globálnímu ochlazení nebo ozónové díře nebo čemukoli jinému (to bylo před globálním oteplováním), a když to lidé udělali že vyšli ven a řekli „no, vy nemáte dost dětí, takže vás budeme muset zaplavit chudákma hnědými lidmi.“

V Japonsku nemají Židy a upřímně řečeno nemají ani feminismus. Mají ženy, které pracují, ale jsou zdvořilé a muži mají stále všechno na starosti.

Ve skutečnosti se zdá, že Japonsko upadlo do jakési národní deprese v důsledku rozvoje technologické společnosti, zejména urbanizace (pornografie a infantilizace mužů měla také velký vliv na sexualitu mužů).

Reuters :

Japonský premiér Fumio Kishida se v pondělí zavázal, že urychleně podnikne kroky k řešení klesající porodnosti v zemi, přičemž uvedl, že pro jednu z nejstarších společností světa je to „ted' nebo nikdy“ .

Japonsko se v posledních letech snaží povzbudit své lidi, aby měli více dětí, sliby peněžních bonusů a lepších výhod, ale podle průzkumů zůstává jedním z nejdražších míst na světě pro výchovu dítěte.

Porodnost loni podle oficiálních odhadů klesla na nové rekordní minimum a poprvé klesla pod 800 000 – zlomový okamžik, který nastal o osm let dříve, než vláda očekávala.

To s největší pravděpodobností urychlilo další pokles populace v zemi, kde je střední věk 49 let, což je nejvíce na světě za jediným malým městským státem Monako.

" Náš národ je na pokraji toho, zda si dokáže udržet své společenské funkce ," řekl Kishida v politickém projevu na zahájení letošního parlamentního zasedání.

" Je to ted' nebo nikdy, pokud jde o politiku týkající se porodů a výchovy dětí - je to problém, který prostě nemůže déle čekat ," dodal.

Tohle nefunguje. Nemůžete změnit společnost na základní úrovni unaveným varováním o nejasných budoucích důsledcích.

Poctiví sociální vědci by pravděpodobně mohli přijít a přijít na mechanismy vytvářející tuto noční můru a stát by pak pravděpodobně mohl provést změny, aby to napravil, ale trvalo by to generace a problém je, že generace nemají. Realisticky by však z hlediska základní logistiky mělo být pro Japonsko možné jednoduše zmenšit. Není to tak, že by tam bylo nula dětí. Ve skutečnosti je generace dětí, kterou nyní mají, jakkoli malá, stále větší než kterákoli generace před 100 lety.

Problém je vždy prezentován jako „někdo musí platit za staré lidi“, ale to je přehnaný problém. Dá se to zjistit. Skutečným problémem je, že moderní ekonomika není navržena tak, aby se kdy zmenšila, a pokus o její zmenšení by způsobil katastrofální selhání.

Pokud jde o mechaniku toho, jak hojnost v kombinaci s tlačáním ovlivňuje psychiku, stojí za to se znovu podívat na Myši utopický experiment Johna Calhouna. Když myši dostaly neomezené množství potravy v omezeném prostoru, staly se neurotickými a vyvinuly se u nich bizarní sexuální praktiky, nakonec se staly línými a depresivními a odmítaly se množit.

Toto je známé jako „Behavioral Sink“.

Zdá se, že je to přirozená a základní věc, která se děje s lidmi v městském prostředí. Přestože kniha byla brožovaná dršťková, v knize „High-Rise“ od JG Ballarda bylo několik zajímavých postřehů o tomto fenoménu. Kniha, kterou jsem nedávno četl s velkou smůlou, přesně vykreslila odcizení a sexuální dysfunkci, která jde ruku v ruce s luxusní přelidněností, ale pak ukázala, že se zvrhla v primitivní násilí. Problém je, že se to neděje. Pokud by dehumanizace měst vyústila v návrat k primitivnímu násilí, věc by se vyřešila sama. Vede k sklíčenosti, sebenávisti a osobnímu odevzdání.

Není jasné, proč se to neděje všude, nebo alespoň ne ve stejné míře. New York je bohatý a přelidněný po více než století a obyvatelstvo se teprve nedávno odevzdalo osudu. Nejjednodušším vysvětlením je, že určité společnosti jsou schopny překonat tyto negativní účinky hojnosti v kombinaci s omezeným prostorem s pozitivní kulturní hybností.

Bílá levá na záchranu

Bílá levice samozřejmě volá po tom, aby bylo Japonsko zaplaveno lidoopy z jihu, což je jejich výsadou.

Článek BBC před několika dny s názvem „Japonsko bylo budoucností, ale uvízlo v minulosti“ říká:

Pamatuji si, jak jsem seděl ve vesnické síni na poloostrově Boso na odvrácené straně Tokijského zálivu. Byl jsem tam, protože vesnice byla uvedena jako ohrožená, jedna z 900 v Japonsku. Staří muži shromáždění v síni byli znepokojeni. Od 70. let sledovali, jak mladí lidé odcházejí za prací do měst. Z 60 zbývajících byl pouze jeden teenager a žádné děti.

"Kdo se postará o naše hroby, až budeme pryč?" bědoval jeden starší pán. Péče o lihoviny je v Japonsku vážná věc.

Ale mně, rodákovi z jihovýchodní Anglie, připadala smrt této vesnice absurdní. Obklopovala ho pohlednicová rýžová pole a kopce pokryté hustým lesem. Tokio bylo méně než dvě hodiny jízdy daleko.

"To je tak krásné místo," řekl jsem jim. „Jsem si jistý, že spousta lidí by tu ráda bydlela. Jak by ses cítil, kdybych sem přivedl svou rodinu?“

Vzduch v místnosti ztichl. Muži se na sebe podívali v němých rozpacích. Pak si jeden odkašlal a s ustaraným výrazem ve tváři promluvil: „No, musel by ses naučit náš způsob života. Nebylo by to snadné.“

Vesnice byla na cestě k zániku, ale představa, že ji napadnou „cizinci“, byla o něco horší.

Tito lidé jsou tak vyčerpávající.

Když jdou a chrlí tyhle bláboly Asiatům, není to ani zpracované. Asiaté nedokážou pochopit sebevražednou povahu bílých lidí.

Čína na tom s porodností začíná být o něco lépe. Čína bohužel provedla „politiku jednoho dítěte“, kterou nyní všichni považují za chybný krok. Číňané jsou mnohem méně depresivní než Japonci, ale stále velmi zasahují do celé záležitosti předků.

Problém v Číně, stejně jako všude jinde, je, že ženy jsou hloupé děvky a nedá se s nimi rozumět. Protože však Čína není židovskou demokracií, mohou prostě zakázat veškerou feministickou propagandu a začít odřezávat jiné cesty pro svině.

Myslím, že Čína na to nakonec přijde a Japonsko ne. Za předpokladu, že nenastane katastrofická světová válka (což by byl v tuto chvíli hloupý předpoklad), Čína prostě začne skupovat nemovitosti v Japonsku, protože Japonci nejsou schopni je zaplnit a Číňané lidé prostě začnou ovládat zemi. Japonky se provdají za čínské muže a naopak a během jedné či dvou generace se čínský jazyk a kultura stanou dominantní identitou Japonska.

Číňané už to dělají v celé jihovýchodní Asii. Kuala Lumpur, Jakarta, dokonce i Bangkok se stávají Číňany. Začali s turistickými oblastmi, kde zřídili turistická místa pro čínskou střední třídu. Čínští podnikatelé se stěhují, aby sloužili čínským zákazníkům, a postupně se populace stává sinoizovanou. To se také děje s různými obchodními městy v rámci iniciativy Belt and Road. Ale teď velká města šukají.

Je to fascinující situace. V těchto místech máte nějaké vnitřní manželství, ale také to, že Číňané mají peníze, takže lidé chtějí učit své děti čínsky. Pokud se učíte jazyk od raného věku, jste obeznámeni s kulturou a myšlením a jste k nim obecně přátelší.

Čínská hrozba ve skutečnosti hrozbou není

Číňané nehledají válku. Je to tak směšné, když vidíte tyhle hloupé boomery a sinofoby jako Tucker Carlson (mimořádně zastávce „análního manželství“) mluví o tom, jak Čína plánuje velký násilný boj.

Čínské spiknutí ovládnutí světa ve skutečnosti není spiknutí a rozhodně to není vojenská agenda. Dělají sinoizaci. Je to nenásilný proces šíření z Číny přes Asii a v mnohem menší míře i jinam.

S některými čínskými obchodníky v Africe se děje několik legračních věcí.

Ale obecně, tam není touha míchat se s non-Asiati.

Míchání s nečínskými Asiati se však nyní v Číně stává široce akceptovaným. Stále to není preferováno, ale je to přijímáno – zejména mimo Čínu v místech, kam se stěhují.

Není jasné, že jde o vědomý cíl. Je to něco, co pozoruje inteligence v Číně a je to vnímáno jako pozitivní. Ale nemyslím si, že je to nutně plán, ale je to jen něco, co se děje. Celá Asie se stane Čínou a v bílých zemích a poté v Africe a Latinské Americe si vybudují své základny pro obchodní účely a zároveň budou postupně skupovat půdu.

Věc na tom, a proč je konzervativní narativ (dosah pro neokonzervativní demokraty) tak hloupý, je, že nikoho k ničemu nenutí. Pokud by se běloši starali jen o své vlastní záležitosti a také neprodávali majetek Číňanům a uzavírali více dohod o spravedlivém obchodu, Číňané by se nepokoušeli o invazi ani by nedělali nic jiného než chytré obchody.

Číňané jsou v průměru bázliví lidé, kteří nemají rádi konfrontaci a nejsou nijak zvlášť zlí. Nemají nutně rádi nebo nemají rádi bílé lidi, protože jim nerozumí. Ve skutečnosti to není problém a Číňané se budou nebo nebudou angažovat tak, jak chceme, pokud jde o obchod. Pokud jde o násilný konflikt – americká armáda Čínu úplně obklíčila, okupuje mezinárodně uznávané čínské území a Čína jen stále říká: „Prosím, zkuste být zdvořilejší, pánové“.

Zobrazovat Čínu jako vojenskou hrozbu je nejen hloupé, ale také praštěné. Jsou hrozbou z hlediska obchodu, ale pouze pokud mluvíme o globálním trhu a myslím si, že americkým ideálem by mělo být – a bývalo – že vítáme konkurenci na světové scéně, pokud jde o obchod. V sázce globální hospodářské soutěže není tak úplně existenční, jakým je tato navrhovaná světová válka.

Zjevnou věcí, kterou musí Amerika udělat, pokud jim na Americe záleží, je vrátit Číně Tchaj-wan výměnou za obchodní ústupky. Je to opravdu jednoduché.

Pokud vám skutečně záleželo na tchajwanském vládním systému (nevěřím, že by to někdo ve skutečnosti dělal, ale pokud ano), mohli byste jednoduše zahrnout dohodu „Jedna země, dva systémy“ v dohodě o kapitulaci ostrova. Čína by to respektovala – už to dělali v Hongkongu až do bodu, kdy USA vyslaly vyškolené agitátory, aby platili homosexuálům, aby páchali násilné nepokoje vypalující obchodní centra. A ani poté ve skutečnosti výrazně nezměnili hongkongský systém, jen do toho šli a uklidili část nepořádku vytvořeného americkými zpravodajskými službami a National Endowment for Democracy (NED, což je v podstatě zpravodajská agentura, která prostě funguje). zcela veřejně).

Všechno je to velmi jednoduché, takže nevěřím, že někdo, kdo má základní úroveň inteligence a tvrdí, že tomu nerozumí, je upřímný.

S rostoucí nebílou supervelmocí na východě jsou zjevně problémy a výzvy. To se ještě nikdy nestalo. Nikdo nemůže říct, že to není něco, co by se mělo brát vážně. Ale způsob, jakým k tomu USA přistupují, je hloupý a sebedestruktivní. Současná politika USA (a nyní NATO, navzdory tamnímu geografickému rozporu) vůči Číně demonstruje nebezpečnou kombinaci arogance, zmatku a slepé zlomyslnosti.

Máme tu situaci, kdy USA ztratily schopnost konkurovat na ekonomické nebo kulturní frontě, a proto trvají na tom, aby byl konflikt s Čínou koncipován jako zásadně násilný. Mají v úmyslu to udělat násilně, navzdory snaze Číny se tomu vyhnout.

Japonsko a Čína se velmi liší podle měřítek někoho, kdo rozumí východní Asii, ale pro běžného obyvatele Západu jsou tyto dvě kultury víceméně k nerozeznání. (To by platilo zejména, pokud byste měli srovnat Singapur, rafinovanou verzi Číny, s Japonskem.) Jediný rozdíl, který každý vidí, je ten, že Číňané si zachovali elán, zatímco Japonci se stali fyzicky i duchovně impotentními. Pokud bude Japonsko ponecháno svému osudu, bude klesat, zatímco Čína poroste. Takový je způsob lidských dějin.

Američané by se měli držet stranou cizích záležitostí.

Nemůžete změnit společnost na základní úrovni unaveným varováním o nejasných budoucích důsledcích.

Japonsko to má snadné, stačí oslavit 3. dítě manželských párů masivním peněžním bonusem. Přestaňte dotovat Japan Inc. a venkovské vlády a dejte všechny peníze na rostoucí rodiny. Sledujte, jak se móda mění za desetník, stejně rychle jako kov do vlasů vystřídal grunge.

Countries that are dying out can simply pay people to have children. And, I don't mean a bonus or some other BS, I mean enough money that raising children is free. Then, you need to do something to require a married couple raise the children ... not sure how to do that, but one doesn't want to replicate the black ghettos, with welfare women, hordes of fatherless children, and males that are often full-time criminals.

| China is starting to do a little bit better with the birthrate thing.

For many young men, marriage in China requires a significant financial outlay, one they cannot easily meet. At least without family help. Women expect a car, a house, and parents expect a grandchild.

This is openly debated, and a recent mainland China blog discussed the availability of young women not requiring much of an outlay, or 'bride price'. A suggestion turned on Pakistani women. China has relatively good business relations with that country, with Chinese men working there.

The upside was that those young women can be attractive, made up, and tend to be well behaved [any woman who is not fat and/or black can look good, if made up. That is one reason American women don't pass the test, because most are fat slobs. And they are all over the place in the behavior department].

The downside mentioned was that it is extremely difficult for a foreigner (non-Chinese) to obtain Chinese naturalization. Plus, the religious barrier; Chinese men are not, in general, willing to adopt a Moslem faith/culture, but expect the wife to adopt Chinese cultural norms. Something the bride's Pakistani family will not typically agree on.

| However, because China is not a Jewed-up democracy, they can just ban all feminist propaganda.

Chinese popular media, television shows, the ones directed toward women, tend to place women in the workforce, discriminated against within a male oriented business world, and fighting for 'equality'. At the same time, the shows highlight the fact that career oriented women will often face losing their fertile years, and if married, possibly wind up divorced, as men seek extra curricular activities with younger women—women who are depicted as aggressive whores willing to wreck established marriages for their own opportunistic gain.

What you will not see on TV (or on the street) are Chinese women cavorting with blacks, or any blatant homosexual material.

| The one distinction anyone can see is that the Chinese have maintained vigor, while the Japanese have become impotent, both physically and spiritually.

As far as the Japanese connection? Japanese are depicted in television propaganda as China's existential enemy. Not Americans. In fact, Chinese you meet on the street tend to be perplexed by the American government's anti-China stance. Yet Chinese are politically practical. If Japan would kow tow three times, apologizing for their WWII intrigue, official China policy would change. However it is unrealistic to expect Japan to do that. Japan would rather hitch their wagon to the US. At least for now. If the Ukraine capitulates to Russia (which it most likely will have to do), then in light of the many US military failures, both Japan and Taiwan province will most surely rethink the whole US gig, and start making deals.

You claim ZOG dropping two nuclear bombs on Japan had no effect on the Japanese psyche?

C'mon, Anglin. You're getting soft, very soft. ZOG is the root of ALL evil. That's not dogma or propaganda, but reality.

When you deny Japan's problems can be solved by eradicating ZOG from their psyche, you deny Jesus. When you deny Jesus, you deny everything.

Japan needs to go to war against ZOG, just like China needs to go to war against ZOG, just like the US needs to go to war against ZOG...

It's a fascinating topic – one would assume that Northeast Asians are by far the best preadapted to a Calhoun scenario; offhand I'd say the Chinese have their Century of Humiliation behind them while the Japanese are smack in the middle of theirs, which in all higher primates blocks the male (but not the female!) sexual function.

One could also say the Japanese like the Germans are a nervous thoroughbred nation capable of great things but unstable, while China is a giant fat prickly hog in a waller – no matter what you do all you get is a grunt and a slight adjustment of posture (as one singularly ungracious historian put it).

– The One Child Policy and consequent preferential abortion of females has resulted in a 80 million male overhang for which there is no historical precedent not resulting in war – while in Japan males are preferentially aborted because no one would condemn his child to an existence as a Japanese male;

the solution should be obvious

– It is interesting to watch the Chinese spread their Y chromosomes in such a decidedly non-Mongol way ...

take Africa (~~please~~): No one doubts the Brits were better administrators (not quite on a par with the Germans though) but the French are more popular because they miscegenated mightily

(by contrast all around the world the bastards of US soldateska are considered shameful and occupy the lowest rungs – we'll see how the Wagners measure up).

Lots and lots of interesting perspectives

China expands, and Korea, Japan, Central Asia and South-East Asia become sinoized.

China contracts, and all these places reinvent themselves as totally independent cosmic super-nations.

China expands again, and it repeats. After every contact with the external world, of course, China also become greatly changed.

Russia goes through similar historical pulsations. Until 1990 half of Europe and 90% of Central Asia were “Russified”. East of Austria and Italy everything was “Russian territory”.

Turkey too. Iran. All the old civilization centers in one way or another go through this process.

The collective West, as the youngest of the civilizations, created by the descendants of those who sacked Rome, has yet to get used to undergoing pulsations like that, back and forth, without destroying the world in the process.

Japan is extremely feminist and China has a significantly lower fertility rate than Japan. There is nothing resembling “vigor” in East Asia.

China’s fertility rate is identical to that of the USA, UK, Brazil, and higher than that of Russia and most of Eastern Europe as such.

132	China	1.7
133	United States	1.7
134	Brazil	1.7
135	United Kingdom	1.7
136	Australia	1.7
137	Czech Republic	1.7

Japan’s fertility rate is lower, identical to that of South Europe, and the more depressed and dreary parts of Eastern Europe and Scandinavia.

North Macedonia	1.5
Japan	1.4
Greece	1.4
Portugal	1.4

<https://worldpopulationreview.com/country-rankings/total-fertility-rate>

The lowest fertility in the world is however in the two Chinese “rat utopia” island cities of Hong Kong and Singapore, and in the current world leader of boy bands, TV soaps, and tank technology — South Korea.

There is something odd in the fact that basically every country everywhere is having sub-replacement birthrates — except, unfortunately for Africa, the worst place to have excess population, because they will all migrate to Europe and the US — and Japan, China, Russia, Ukraine, wherever.

A reduction in population wouldn't be bad if there wasn't immigration. If Japan remains being Japanese, it doesn't matter so much if they are 120 million or 80 million. But for Europe and the US, the problem is that they are being replaced by non-European races. That's worse than a low birth rate.

However, there is the question of war — all the developed world is basically mostly old people, with very low birth rates. But you need a surplus of young people for a war.

If a new world war breaks out — and some people seem very keen on starting one — who is going to fight it? Or will it be just ballistic missiles back and forth?

Interesting article overall.

Actually, Japan appears to have sunk into a kind of national depression as a result of the development of technological society, in particular urbanization (pornography and the infantilization of men have also had a big effect on the sexuality of men)

It's not urbanization or technology. Japan has been beaten twice by the USA, first militarily in 1945, and then economically in 1985. In 1985 they willingly participated, actually they were proud to be included in undermining the foundations of their economic growth.

Curious that you mentioned Pakistan and not the Philippines. Most of the mail-order brides in Dalian appear to be SE Asian as opposed to Pakistani.

As I understand it, there is plenty of residual/cultural circumcision that occurs in Gansu/Qinghai/Xinjiang among secularized Hui, so it shouldn't be that big of a deal for them. All that said, I think the gender imbalance is often overstated: way too many men globally are unfit to be fathers, and it's good that they are being locked out of sexual access. I was blessed by genetics to reach a height of six-foot-two. Sexual access has never been difficult for me — but I don't pity short men. They simply should not be breeding — particularly white ones because they harm the race for future race mixing with asians.

In previous generations, wars would've killed them. Now they have video games and Africa offices.

As an American Liberal/Democrat, I absolutely hate Japan and always vote against its interests whenever there's an opportunity. Many badwhite Trumpkins like Japan, and I am against whatever badwhite Trumpkins think is good. It would be best if that whole archipelago gets bought up by China.

it is an open secret that official Chinese TFR data are wrong, real TFR is much lower and has been for years. Which means by the way the population is smaller than public datas makes believe and that means GDP per capita is higher. Then again GDP data is most likely also wrong, also lower.

it is an open secret that official Chinese TFR data are wrong, real TFR is much lower and has been for years.

Is the fertility rate data then more likely to be:

- a) like Russia
- b) like Japan
- c) lower than Japan?

It's one thing to have theoretical fertility rates like those of Croatia and Poland but pretend you've got US and Brazil levels. It's another to pretend you're got US and Brazil levels while being "worse than Japan" which would mean levels of South Korea i.e. the lowest levels in the world.

Are we ready to accept that the 21st century Chinese govt, either through error or malice, has been falsely almost DOUBLING its fertility rate?

Are we ready to go this far?

Inspired by the discussion I checked out Russian federal regions by fertility.

It's the wogs

Japan's fertility rate is lower, identical to that of South Europe, and the more depressed and dreary parts of Eastern Europe and Scandinavia.

Japan actually has the highest fertility rates in all of East Asia.

A reminder that Japan, the poster child for demographic issues, now has the highest fertility rate in developed East Asia, above Hong Kong or Macau, China, South Korea or Taiwan. (Data from the Population Reference Bureau) pic.twitter.com/tqjRdBkipF

— Mike Bird (@Birdyword) January 17, 2023

China reported 9.56M births in 2022, 10% fewer than 2021. The TFR declined from 1.16 to 1.07 kids per woman and is now only half of China's replacement level (2.14).

China also recorded its first regular natural decline (absent of war and famines).

— Birth Gauge (@BirthGauge) January 17, 2023

The main problem with the Chinese is that they are mostly consumerist drones, in order to raise their birth rates, they need to fundamentally reshape their society* in a way which is just not compatible with neoliberal financial policies and being a sweatshop for the West, which makes them rich.

* – This applies to every country, financial incentives to have more children have done very little to significantly bump up the birth rates in countries which pay mothers, like Singapore, Hungary or even Russia.

Money is not the thin stopping people from having kids, it's consumerist mentality. It's why Niger doesn't have a fertility rate of 0.4...

I looked at additional data, on Chinese fertility and it is indeed weird.

There's a 2017 peak where it's eternal Anglo levels, and then a super hard crash, except in the most niggish provinces.

[https://data.worldbank.org/indicator/SP.DYN.TFRT.IN?
end=2020&locations=CN&start=2014](https://data.worldbank.org/indicator/SP.DYN.TFRT.IN?end=2020&locations=CN&start=2014)

<https://www.ceicdata.com/en/china/population-birth-rate-by-region>

I tend to accuse people of living in an imaginary world where it is the eternal 1990s, and judge global events from this imaginary vantage point.

In this case, however, it appears I myself was stuck in a “2017 bubble”, refusing to admit it is already 2023.

China's fertility rate, at least in the non-nig regions, is indeed now as low as in the rest of the developed mongoloid countries, which means China has another 15-20 years to fix its position in the world and put in safeguards to maintain it, before the population contraction sets in for real, once the boomers start dropping off in huge annual waves, with no replacement coming in.

If the One Belt thing actually works out, perhaps this can help Beijing maintain a healthy economy even in a state of abrupt population contraction, if there's an external economical structure allowing for a variation of the “eternal expansion” or at least “eternal high-end stagnation”.

In Japan, they don't have Jews and they frankly don't really even have feminism. They have women working, but they're polite and men are still in charge of everything.

This is definitely one of the most retarded and clueless talking points Anglin likes to repeat in all of his Asia-related articles.

In fact, feminism in Japan, Korea, and China is just as bad as it is in "Western" countries. Russia too, by the way. If there's one thing all sides can agree on, it's unlimited feminism.

Another foreboding trend in East Asia is the rise of ultra-effeminate males dominating the cultural sphere. The Chinese government was supposedly going to crack down on this a couple years ago, but they sure haven't actually done much about it.

I have a pretty good solution to the marriage crisis in the US and China. First, we round up all our slut moms with multiple baby daddies, all the pornographic models, and all the divorced career women, and sell them to China. Then, we pay the governments of high-crime Latin American countries (Mexico, Venezuela, El Salvador, Brazil, Honduras, etc) to gas their prisons. Then we invite all the surplus women from those countries to come up here.

An interesting and intelligent post, but I have some issues with some of it.

First: there is nothing wrong with a declining population, especially if the total number of people is still large. I mean, the Black Death in Europe cut the population in half and held it there for generations. The result was a burst of prosperity for the average person (substantially higher than modern India or Pakistan etc!), and a burst of creativity and industrial development – because all resources were not being swallowed up by a mass of chronically malnourished peasants. I am not arguing for the bad science fiction of killing people to ‘solve’ the population issue, I’m just pointing out that declining populations CAN be a really good thing – unless of course you are a wealthy landowner addicted to cheap labor.

Before WWII, the Japanese government ran a pro-natalist policy and created a population explosion – by the eve of WWII Japan was on the verge of collapse. Really, every time the rich force populations up at a rapid pace – via pro-natalist policies, mass immigration, or just lies – the result has been disastrous for the average person – though profitable for the elites.

I say let the Japanese decide their destiny for themselves and if a rich person insists on living in a country with abundant poverty there are lots of places they can move to. If Japan’s population were to slowly decline to 80 or even 50 million, that’s still plenty of people to run an industrial society. The overall economy might look stagnant, but remember, Japan is like someone who paid off their mortgage: they don’t need massive investments to maintain the status quo. Even small amounts of economic growth could in time compound to a large amount. Sure, there may be few workers per retiree, but there will also be few children per worker: the “dependency ratio” is not worse than places like Somalia, and per-worker productivity in Japan is orders of magnitude higher than Somalia. And it would take only a brief spurt of optimism to turn it all around, just like the low fertility rate of the United States during the depression gave rise to the baby boom of the 1950’s, because that was a really good time to raise kids.

And about China: you are wrong. Mao had a pro-natalist policy “strength through numbers”, honest economists like Ma Yinchu were purged, the population exploded – and China nearly imploded. Certainly post-Mao China turning away from orthodox Stalinism to something more like pre-1960’s US mercantilism was essential in China’s development – but it physically could not have happened without the one-child policy. If China’s population had continued to explode at the same rate, there would by now be over 6 billion Chinese, and ready to double to 12 billion in another 25 years. That China’s population could grow this quickly and they STILL could have increased their per-capita food production to three times subsistence is PHYSICALLY IMPOSSIBLE. There aren’t enough resources in the entire world, or any current technology, that would allow that to happen! No, in that case China would have become like India, and the population would have stabilized probably at around 4-5 billion because people would be too malnourished to have more than 2 children (NOT, typically, famine). But pointing out how bad the consequences of the rich forcing population growth is, might make it harder for them to force the population up in other countries. Like, by opening the border of the United States to unlimited third-world immigration. That’s not going to end well, because throughout history, it never has.

| Curious that you mentioned Pakistan and not the Philippines.

Just to be clear, I was paraphrasing a recent China blog. That blog referenced and compared Pakistani women as possible replacement for Chinese women, due to the 'bride price'. Other areas were not mentioned.

Regional governments have attempted to limit the price of marriage, I think with limited success. It is not easy to legislate away long established customs.

My impression, FWIW, is that for Chinese women, American and Euro husbands are tolerated reasonably well, socially. Especially for women over 30, who are popularly considered 'left over'.

A black man/Chinese woman is taboo. I've been to the so-called Guangzhou 'chocolate city', where Africans hailing from the Dark Continent go to trade goods (on temporary visa). I never saw an African with a Chinese woman. But I have read a few stories.

The black thing in China is kind of strange. NBA basketball stars are held in esteem. But that is mostly from a distance. What they watch on television. Young Chinese males are not averse to their own style of 'hip hop' rap, and dancing. But no parent wants a black son in law.

Funny anecdote: A Chinese woman told me her order of preference for her son's mate would be: 1) mainland Chinese; 2) a man from the Chinese diaspora; 3) American or Euro white; 4) Korea. Not acceptable would be someone from Taiwan province, and then Japan. However I suspect that the Taiwan exclusion would quickly evaporate once the mainland and its island are rejoined. Japan? That's going to take a lot more than I can imagine.

Curious that you mentioned Pakistan and not the Philippines. Most of the mail-order brides in Dalian appear to be SE Asian as opposed to Pakistani.

Thanks for the info!

One would expect South-East mongoloids to count as “B class Asians” in North-East China, the way for example Poles and Ukrainians count as “B class Whites” for some westerners.

But lighter-skinned Pakis and Hindus (and Persians and Arabs) could easily pass for “B class Whites” in a mongoloid place where people can’t tell the difference between a Pole and a Swede or between a Serb and an Irishman. To them a Berber or Bangladeshi chick could indeed be just an “economy-class White”, like a Turk would.

(Mongoloids and many others would also automatically count lighter Latinos as White)

Prestige-wise it could work out, especially in the more provincial parts of China, where the cities are merely the size of Berlin and Paris, and where the locals themselves are perhaps swarthier, as they tend to be.

Change the clothes and these Pakistani women are “basically like from Spain or Italy” to the untrained mongoloid eye.

The village was on the path to extinction, yet the thought of it being invaded by “outsiders” was somehow worse.

That shows a level of loyalty that Europeans seem to have given up, mostly.

The fascist solution to population issues, specifically the pro-natal, is simple.

From Mussolini to the German NSDAP list of demands the call for generous pensions for the workers who had been robbed their whole career by vultures.

FDR’s New Deal, in fact, lifted some of his ideas from NSDAP. Here’s the short version: On the one end, increase pensions. On the other, hire young men (and ONLY men) and pay them a good wage for building, infrastructure, which ultimately pays your retirement tab because it’s a straight-up investment that always pays off.

Meanwhile — NOTHING for child support and women. Want a meal ticket? Marry one of the young men working for his nation. It’s true that Germany had a small level of child support but they had to jump-start a stalled system. Understandable.

The shorter the man the more likely he is to survive a war. A taller man is a better target for a bullet or an arrow, and I'm always going to take out the easier target. The tall man has more difficulty camouflaging himself and is easier to hunt down in the bush. In hand to hand combat the taller man has more difficulty stabbing downward and again, is a larger target for the more compact fighter. I guess if we're dressing up as knights with armor and long swords the taller man might have a slight advantage, but inside a tank he's always banging his head and is hunched over at the controls. 6'2" isn't too tall, but it's tall enough that in combat across a field, in an urban environment or a jungle, you're definitely a better target than your 5'6" tall sergeant.

And let's not forget Genghis Khan's tradition of killing any man taller than a wagon wheel. Short man gets to survive and fight another day. Or maybe spend a couple nights a week in the bedroom of the tall man's widow.

The problem is, these lighter skin South Asians are prized women in their own societies, often come from wealthier background, and only want to marry within their own ethnic social class.

In multicultural Malaysia and Singapore, there are a lot of mixed marriages between Chinese, Indians and Malays, but they are almost all going one way – Chinese women marrying Indian and Malay men, rarely ever Chinese men marrying Indian or Malay women. It's the same in the West. Chinese women out marry much more than Chinese men.

With increasing East Asian immigration to the US, there are now increasing intermarriages btwn Chinese, Japanese and Koreans, but the marriage again goes in only one direction, Chinese women marrying Korean and Japanese men, while Korean and Japanese women marry whites and, as they are increasingly woke, blacks.

I don't think that is it exactly, if you look at what all these countries have in common is that they have full equality and education laws with regards to women. I am not the type like Anglin that hates women and wants Sharia, but the blunt reality seems to be that females don't want babies if they can take care of themselves (or if they let the government take care of them), even in Niger this would happen if society adopted the full equality ideology.

The problem in China, like everywhere else, is that women are stupid whores and cannot be reasoned with.

This. Right here. Anglin has a talent of boiling complex subjects and problems to their essence. Working women means fewer babies and dysfunctional families, which means fewer births, which means importing savages to make up for slower growth in the economy, which means social conflict.

Dysfunctional families result in widespread social and psychological problems, obesity, bizarre sexual identities, and a rising tide of sexual degeneracy.

Feminism is the SINGLE BIGGEST CAUSE of our social problems.

You are right about the migration and acculturation of Chinese all over Asia (and to a lesser extent Africa and South Asia) not being planned or part of some plot, because it's been going on for centuries if not millenia. The Spanish and Dutch encountered large Chinese communities in the Philippines and Indonesia, respectively, and for the most part these Chinese people simply traded with the locals and intermarried with them. They were often very prosperous as a result of their merchant activity, but otherwise kept to themselves and caused little trouble, a point made by Sir Francis Galton based on his observations of the Chinese in the far-flung lands controlled by the British 150 years ago. The interesting thing is that, as you said, the kids in these intermarriages were often raised as Chinese, yet these large Chinese-Malay or Chinese-Filipino communities changed the mainstream population and culture very little, even as these communities grew in size and wealth. The Chinese seemed to like it this way, perhaps realizing that gaining real influence would come at great costs.

Curiously enough, in Japan (and maybe Korea) where there were few Chinese settlers, Chinese cultural influence is much, much more obvious. Few Chinese migrants or traders, low intermarriage, and yet it is hard to conceive of classical Japanese or Korean culture minus the Chinese influence. This goes to your other point, that the Chinese are going to buy up property in Japan and Japan will gradually become Chinese. Kind of sounds like 'same old'. If you think about it, Japan already is kind of Chinese: tofu, ramen, green tea, sake, bonsai (gardening), Zen Buddhism, the writing/calligraphy, silkmaking, and of course pagodas and temples. The only thing really Japanese nowadays is what they've made up in the last 50 years, stuff like Pokemon and Mario and anime. But the old stuff, what lasts? It's Chinese.

If you watch Japanese TV, you'll see a lot of anti-China propaganda too. I bet those Chinese people on the street are also wondering why the Japanese hate them. "Hey, we made you!" they'd probably say.

Except for periodical upheavals, the Chinese people are ruled by their Mandarin scholars. Now they are the English speaking software developers. The Chinese people are docile and mostly stupid. But their Beijing Emperors are psychopathic bullies that always want to be at the centre of the world. On the day, Hong Kong went into the clutches of the Emperor, a squadron from the People's Liberation army moved across the border into a house owned surreptitiously by the PLA. 'The obvious thing for America to do if they care about America is to give China back Taiwan in exchange for trade concessions. It's really simple.'

'Americans should stay out of other people's business.' — Andrew Anglin

Wow. Try to synthesize these wildly incompatible statements. They don't compute.

Taiwan isn't 'ours' to give. People in Taiwan will readily tell you that first and foremost, they are Chinese. But Taiwanese live in a rich democracy, while mainlanders subsist in an autocratic communist personality cult, most of them hand-to-mouth.

'Trade concessions' become irrelevant when militaristic America is spoiling for a fight with China, just as it did with Spain 125 years ago. Anglo-Saxons, when they revert to tribal mode, can be real hardcore dickheads. Raw force — a shiv to the stomach — is all they understand. And still they spew defiance, as they are carted off ignominiously to an unmarked grave.

will the japanese allow the chinese to buy land and emigrate? last time i checked, there was no love lost between them. wouldn't it be something if, after centuries of hostilities the chinese just ended up buying japan. in the end it might be the best thing could happen, as almost eight decades of u.s. occupation has come close to destroying their culture (same with the germans and any other country the vampire squid gets its beak in). at least the chinese share a more common heritage with the japanese, as many of japans traditional customs originated in china.

China has a brilliant strategy for defeating the West without a fight by using the profit motive and greed of the West against itself.

China has amassed a large mountain of U.S IOUs in treasury bonds and other such debt related instruments...what do you do with all this confetti?

Why not use it against the West, why not flood Western Universities with your “fee paying” students denying the native born an education in their own land!

This is working...look at the standard of institutions and media as well as government representatives today in the West.

The best war is the one where the enemy loses without a fight.

This is definitely one of the most retarded and clueless talking points Anglin likes to repeat in all of his Asia-related articles.

Cannot agree more. I just stopped reading the article after that line. Like, I really, really respect Anglin, but this one specific talking point is so absolutely beyond retarded that I can't even properly describe it. It's especially more tiresome and disappointing since Anglin is one of the most prominent, effective and acute critics of feminism otherwise.

feminism in Japan, Korea, and China is just as bad as it is in "Western" countries. Russia too, by the way. If there's one thing all sides can agree on, it's unlimited feminism.

This is absolutely true, and at the same time, way too many otherwise intelligent and honest people (like Anglin) in both the East and the West are so clueless about this fact. They both think that "we are so feminists, but they are not! Be more like them!" I know one Japanese blogger who strongly opposes feminism and do it in a very intelligent and effective way, and he once said that "Unlike Japan, America is family-oriented society and not as feminist as Japan." It's beyond the pale.

I'm all for criticizing modern occupied nu-Japan, which is nothing but humiliation and disgrace on its ancestors and history, but Anglin's criticism on modern Japan is so completely out of the point in numerous ways. Japan is the most heavily occupied colony since 1945 (along with Germany), but Anglin says Japan is being ruled by 'Japanese people'. Japan is one of the most feminist country in the world, arguably as feminists as any western/northern European countries or muttmerica, but Anglin repeats all the time that Japan "doesn't have feminists problem". He may as well just stop talking about Japan at all.

China unfortunately did the “one child policy,” which everyone now sees as a misstep. Chinese are much less depressed than the Japanese, but still very big into the whole ancestors thing.

It wasn't really a bad policy over all. If they didn't do that then their population would be at least 3 billion today if not higher. That is double the amount of homes, land cleared for farming, pollution, mouths to feed, poverty, it might have been enough to sink China into permanent poverty for the majority which is something that India is likely to have.

With 1.4 billion people, they have a massive buffer to work with. It's not like Russia where it's ethnic Russian population is barely above 100 million and the decline is really noticeable. Even if China's population is cut in half that is still 700 million people, they could colonize Siberia with 100 million and 100 sent to Australia and they would still have more people than the US does today....

Japan is literally the most heavily occupied colony of muttmerica since 1945. It's literally being ruled by the jews, who controls muttmerica. See the data.

Over 70% of modern Japanese men's salary directly go into their wife's bank account, and they beg their wife to get more 'monthly pocket money' from their wife. This is literally the definition of a slave: you work, your wife get money. Things have been like this for decades. Yeah, "men are still in charge of everything", right? I have lived in Japan for more than 30 years and have seen the declining interest in marriage and childbearing firsthand. Of the 17 people in my company, only 5 have been married with children. 3 are married with no children (2 deliberately, 1 now trying) and 9 are single. Only one of the married people with children has more than 2. He actually has 7 kids, but has been married four times and is old school Japanese macho. More and more Japanese think that getting married is troublesome and that raising children is expensive. I have also seen over the years the career girls who save up their cash, get married late and then spend their cash on infertility treatments that are hit and miss.

Anglin's general understanding(or stance) about "feminism in Japan(or Asia)" goes like this:

1) Asian countries don't have feminism, because their general population is autistic in some sense and therefore can't understand what a feminism(or political correctness) is.

2) In summary, Asian societies are not feminist, Asian women are not feminist, Asian men are not feminist. Their birth rate collapse is (unlike the West) NOT because of feminism, but because of material abundance and Asian men being such a feminized faggot and jerking off of Anime girls, again for no reason other than their men being such an abominable soy faggots, even though Asian societies are not feminist and Asian women are (unlike, say, western women) not feminist and sufficiently reasonable.

At least these are the impressions I have got from his sporadic covers about feminism in Japan. I'm going to dispute these points, and argue that Asian societies(at least Japan and South Korea) are hardcore feminists in every possible sense of the term. Let me start from the governmental/institutional point of view(after that I'll cover other point of views as well).

Japanese government has been a hardcore feminist for decades now. They spend enormous amounts of budget into "women's empowerment". For example, look at this:

<https://www.japan.go.jp/diversity/women/index.html>

It's not just a 'show-off' for western media. They even have an official government department solely devoted for feminism and gender equality:

<https://www.gender.go.jp/>

And of course all of these feminist policies are legally enforced. Japanese law enforces people to give various privileges to women in every workplaces. There are a myriad of academic scholarships exclusively for women. Even the official societal goal of Japanese government is "to make the society where career women flourish(女性が活躍する社会)". You are given preferential treatment on wage, employment, promotion, and many more for simply being female, by the law. There are like 6 millions of more examples about this, but I think these are enough for the main point.

Let me get to the next point, the rape hoax. In Japan, the standard for 'sexual crime' is basically "men bad + guilty until proved otherwise". If a woman accuses you of some kind 'sexual harassment' based on nothing, that's the end of your career.

If you have a solid counter-proof, then you can eventually escape the legal punishment after 6 months or something. But during that period your life is already totally ruined, you lost everything, and there is no punishment on the woman for false accusation whatsoever. It was like, "Well, it seems that we're wrong. That woman was lying all along. Haha, sorry! Now get the fuck off."

There was a real incident where a "6"(this is not a typo for say, 16 or something) years old girl intentionally used this system and accused an innocent salaryman for fun. This man immediately lost everything and locked up in prison for 6 months. After 6 months of intense investigation, it was proved that he did nothing wrong. So he was freed from prison, but didn't get any compensation for everything he lost. All for a 6-year-old cunt's 'fun'.

In another incident, a 20-something woman accused a man for "sexual harassment" in subway based on nothing. Shortly after, this woman admitted herself that everything is a total lie and she just did it because 'it was her stressful day, and she needed to relieve it with something.' So this woman basically admitted that she completely destroyed a random man's life for 'relieving her stress'. And.. this woman also didn't get any kind of punishment, at all.

I want to emphasize that these cases are NOT some rare exceptions. This is the standard in Japan. Enough said, I guess.

But you know what? It's still much better than South Korea, the worst Korea. In South Korea, you don't get "guilty until proved otherwise". Instead you get "guilty even if you can prove otherwise". I wish I am lying here, but it's a fact. A man absolutely proved he is innocent in court with totally legal CCTV data, and he was punished regardless based on the accuser(woman)'s claim alone. Search "보배드림 사건", if you know Korean language.

Of course there are some exceptions, both in Japan and South Korea, but it's the same with the West. Some rare exceptions do not disprove the general rule.

Next, marriage. Admittedly Japan does not have 'no fault divorce' per se like the West. Instead, they have 'divorce for personality difference'. Of course custody is given to women for virtually every cases, and you must pay for the child support. Admittedly the assets are not 'all' given to women, but it's half-divided. Maybe this is a 'patriarchy', because it's somehow slightly less feminist than the West where all of the assets just go to female, I guess. And of course, the "DV" accusations are rampant in modern Japan. It's all the same story you are familiar with in the West.

There is a popular 'children's Anime series' in Japan for feminist brainwashing which is called "precure"(you can search this – it's big). The show's official slogan is "girls want to be violent!" "girls can be a prince" "boys can be princesses" and so on. In the show, girls do fistfights with some magic stuff with another female villain. Boys(or men in general) are totally helpless and weak, who need the mighty, strong and independent "precures" protection to survive.

It's not even just a random one-shot show. It's a decades-long 'franchise' like the Marvel movies in the West. In recent seasons, it went much more aggressive and made the boys 'weak princess'(this is not an analogy, the boys are literally called as 'princess') who waits for the strong and powerful girls' rescue. And the worst of all is the fact that this is heavily recommended and advertised as children's show(for 3 years old and older), and the retarded parents actually show this to their children.

I once saw Anglin's meme in Daily Stormer's memetic monday post which are implying "Abe was assassinated because Abe said Japanese people to have sex, and they don't like it". Judging from his other writings about feminism, it seems that Anglin strongly agree with the fact that in a feminist society, it's not actually a man's fault to not be married. So, the implication here is that "Japan is not a feminist society. Unlike the West where men are victim and really have no choice, Japanese men are not 'victim' and should be married, and it has nothing to do with feminism".

This is not true. You can say Asian men nowadays are extreme faggots, feminized or whatever(all of which are true by the way), but this is not true. It sounds exactly like the male feminists in the West saying “men must man up and get married, it’s not women’s fault and it’s not feminism’s fault. It’s men’s fault that they are not married”. But it’s not true. Japanese men can’t get married just exactly like western men. This is a feminist society, pretty hardcore. Japanese men(or South Korean men) have no choices any more than western men.

Japan is dying, degenerate society, but it’s not because they are ‘homosexual pedophiles’ like Anglin said several times before. Modern Japanese men are emasculated, feminized cucks, but these people are not ‘homosexual pedophiles’. Japan is a feminist society. If anything, you can take Japan and South Korea as solid real life proofs that even if you don’t get immigration or race issues, your country can be totally destroyed by feminism and feminism alone.

Here in Asia, you don’t have blacks or any other privileged class of identity politics. It’s just women and women only. So the result is that every single jewish social engineering efforts went to feminism, instead of being divided into various other things. We are doomed by feminism, and Japan/South Korea is as feminist as it gets. Also, it’s not just some ‘modern phenomenon’, it’s decades-old, started from 1945.

Lastly, this is not something that “Japanese people voluntarily chose” any more than European people “voluntarily chose” feminism. There is a book which explains the early US occupation of Japan in 1945-1952, and their operation for imposing feminism on Japan. The title is “Pedagogy of Democracy: Feminism and the Cold War in the U.S. Occupation of Japan”.

<https://www.goodreads.com/book/show/6541918-pedagogy-of-democracy>

You can download the ebook from library genesis. The US imposed feminism on Japan from the very start, just like Afghanistan. In fact, “imposing feminism on Japan” was the very first and foremost objective of the occupation forces. Japan is an occupied country just like Germany. It’s not “ruled by Japanese people” any more than the European countries are “ruled by European people”.

This is not a personal attack on Anglin or something. I respect and appreciate Anglin for his great contributions on the Jewish Question, the Women Question and much more. But unfortunately he is so deadly wrong about this topic, so I'm just correcting the obvious and serious errors.

Japan has divorce, which means they have feminism, and it's almost certainly the primary driver behind the declining birth rate.

If you have divorce, it's not really marriage. If it's not marriage, it's fornication. If it's fornication, the woman is a whore. She doesn't want to have kids, and the John ("husband") doesn't want to have kids with her either. Bonus: the kids don't want to have a whore mom, and would rather not exist.

| a modern economy is not designed to ever shrink, and trying to shrink it would cause a catastrophic failure.

A Fascist economy.

The economy can shrink just fine. Firms downsize all the time. The problem is the government. Black governments are cancer. Cancer does not downsize. If the population shrinks and the government doesn't, the government rapidly becomes unsustainable.

Cancer does not go quietly into that good night. Tends to go out with a bang, not a whimper.

Not to mention the scam rapidly becomes clear when services decline but the fees don't.

On the topic of Fascism, ironically the Feudal inclusions in the Japanese economy, although excellent in many ways, are broken in precisely the ways required to make the whole marriage thing worse.

If you don't spend time with your wife, you're not a husband. It's a social relationship, not a legal one.

If you don't spend time with your kids, you're not a father.

Kids need a mother who is married to their father.

Japan's public schools seem optimized to ensure adult Japs can't have social relationships with anyone at all, except when explicitly commanded to do so by the State.

| New York has been rich and overcrowded for more than a century, and the population has only recently surrendered to fate.

It also “surrendered to fate” in the 1980s, which was also a period of peak anarcho-tyranny, when laws simply weren’t enforced against criminals. For some reason Singapore isn’t “surrendering to fate” except of course that whole divorce thing.

| Americans should stay out of other people’s business.

Sticking their nose where their nose has no business being is the entire point of America. If you want to stop being irresponsible like that, you have to give up being American.

| In terms of violent conflict – the US military has surrounded China completely, they are occupying internationally recognized Chinese territory, and China just keeps saying “please just try to be more polite, sirs.”

...yeah, because they’re surrounded. It’s not like this rudeness doesn’t merit a violent response, it’s just that China can’t get away with it yet.

It’s true that if America wasn’t rude China would have no interest in expanding, however. Expansionism is very much Western vice. It’s that universal morality thing. If you have a universal truth and you force someone else to believe it, why, you’re just doing them a favour, now aren’t you?

| Assuming there isn’t going to be a catastrophic world war (which would be a silly assumption at this point)

“The more my predictions don’t come true the more right I was.”
Reasoning with religious fanatics is a fool’s errand.

Who said Genghis Khan was an average Mongol or that Mongols today are representative of the warlike kind?

https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Genghis\_Khan

According to Paul Ratchnevsky, the Song dynasty envoy Zhao Hong who visited the Mongols in 1221,[130] described Genghis Khan as “of tall and majestic stature, his brow is broad and his beard is long”.[128]

There is something odd in the fact that basically every country everywhere is having sub-replacement birthrates

The heuristic is that every industrialized country after WW II stopped reproducing its human population. The non-industrialized countries reproduced strongly, in some cases up to the Malthusian limit of a malnourished and sick society (e.g. the Middle East). Other societies are on their way to the Malthusian limits.

Within industrialized countries , association with industry (to include administration and finance) is associated with below replacement reproduction.

This might be associated with difference in women's personalities. Using the OCEAN system of personality classification, women differ most from men in N, "neuroticism". Neuroticism is a euphemism, there is nothing wrong with women's neurons. In English, "Neuroticism" would be called "Fear". Women are perennially afraid, including fear of their husbands and fear of admitting their fear. <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=Q3WsgZZtL5Q> actually gives a good summary of this from the woman's point of view. (I know it's slick media for women, but give it a chance.) Note that the successful part of Feminist propaganda was making women terrified of men and completely untrusting of men as protectors and supporters. Women were made terrified of their one refuge, and laws were passed making that one refuge unsafe.

Or, it might be associated with men's psychology. I once worked for a very large industrial conglomerate, and the very first thing they did was have me sign over all my engineering ideas to them. Then, they put me to work for about two years doing nothing — quite literally nothing, while not communicating with me at all, and demanding 48 hour work weeks. For two years. To do no work. And remain unmarried.

Why? Well, part of it was that my salary was apparently charged off to the Federal Government. However, I think that another part of it was male psychology in dealing with other men. Other men are always seen as sexual competitors, or (if married) as competitors for resources. There is a tendency to (figuratively) to effectively castrate male employees, with the lack of family seen as a way of extracting more work from the employees. Women are treated as “honorary men” in this regard.

Or, of course, it may be from something completely different.

In any case, even married men are denied women’s respect and trust.

To be fully hit by the above, you have to be smart enough to read/understand the propaganda and you need to have a job. In a slogan: Industry sterilizes.

The next question is why this should be true only after WW II. Before that, industrialized countries had growing populations.

| 1985 they willingly participated

Retarded on multiple levels. Why specifically 1985? The U.S. economic attacks on Japan started a few years earlier than that, continued into the nineties, then became zio-U.S. attacks or grabs on the back of unwise investments in the bubble-economy years.

Sony's investment in Hollywood and subsequent hostile takeover by Jews (although they leave the tech. parts alone, SCE in particular, some other tech. parts of the company are again allowed to make interesting trial products at times, but there were none for many years) is the best example of the latter.

It's not from kneeling that the knees go bad, it's from carrying the larger frame. A taller man engaged in warring, hunting or even sports will find their knees getting painful by their late thirties, early 40s. I can't speak to the knees of historical kings, but the taller fellows I played sports with and served in the military with, all have bad knees, and, unfortunately for them, made larger targets for snipers and enemy soldiers. They had a definite advantage on the basketball court in our teens and twenties, though, I'll give you that. In the old South plantation owners preferred their slaves to be tall, too, so there's that "advantage" also.

That's because basically every country everywhere – including China, Russia and so on – has feminism and their government eagerly imposes it on their population.

There is no exception to this rule. No, never. If you have found a country which is supposedly not feminist and has sub-replacement birthrates, then it's either 1) your birthrate statistics is wrong or 2) your information about feminism is wrong and it is actually a feminist society. Japan's birthrate is 1.3 because it is one of the most feminist country in the world. South Korea's birthrate is 0.8 because it is the most feminist country in the world. It's that simple.

The Indians were wiped out by European viruses, whereas malaria restricted European expansion into Africa.

I don't understand why nations like Japan don't view this as a national crisis and treat it as such. Try different things—for example, single or co-ed sex schools, or enrolling boys in boxing classes or military service to try and butch them up a bit. Have structured activities such as dances in which boys and girls get to meet and some instruction and 'real talk' is given to the boys about ways to approach girls. Make family formation a part of the ethos of their schooling, so that people understand how important it is.

And the media can do a lot to either hide or reveal the impact of low fertility. For example, in Germany at the moment there is a lot of talk about the 'skills shortage'. They treat this as an economic issue, whereas it could be framed as a family formation issue, because the lack of German fertility is the root cause for the lack of skilled labour—and the proposed solutions, more 'flexible' working for women and immigration, will only make the problem worse.

Nah. Japan, until more or less recently (1960s), had a tradition based mostly on arranged marriages. Just watch any Ozu movie. The parents would choose and arrange meetings between the bride and potential suitors. The daughter would have the final say, sure, but, save some exceptions, it was arranged by the parents or even matchmakers.

I think this is the way for Japan and other Asian countries. Just go back to arranged marriages. It works for other cultures too (i.e. Muslims, religious Jews — well, those groups have more cousin marriages, but it's similar).

For the West, it's a bit more complicated, as we had a more individualistic tradition from early on. But some sort of system needs to be worked out. The whole problem is related to women's current lack of any social or sexual constraints, and the destruction of extended, multi-generational families where the elders have some sort of authority over the younger ones.

Excellent points.

Here in Asia, you don't have blacks or any other privileged class of identity politics. It's just women and women only. So the result is that every single jewish social engineering efforts went to feminism, instead of being divided into various other things. We are doomed by feminism, and Japan/South Korea is as feminist as it gets.

Perhaps not every semitic social engineering effort — I get the impression that they're really been ramping up the “need to import large numbers of non-Japanese because muh ‘labor shortage’ and muh ‘diversity’” narrative lately. And the “Rape of Nanking” and “comfort women” narratives are Holycost Lite, of course. But yeah, I get your point.

Lastly, this is not something that “Japanese people voluntarily chose” any more than European people “voluntarily chose” feminism. There is a book which explains the early US occupation of Japan in 1945-1952, and their operation for imposing feminism on Japan. The title is “Pedagogy of Democracy: Feminism and the Cold War in the U.S. Occupation of Japan”.

Yes. See also:

Beate Sirota Gordon (October 25, 1923 – December 30, 2012), was the daughter of Russian Jewish parents who at 22 almost single-handedly wrote “women’s rights” into the Constitution of modern Japan

And of course, it's quite obvious that Japan is still quite literally an occupied country; a vassal state of the Empire. And any outpost of the Empire simply must promote sodomy and feminism. It's a basic requirement.

Seems rather analogous to this sort of behavior — only at the societal, rather than the individual, level:

Countries that are dying out can simply pay people to have children. And, I don't mean a bonus or some other BS, I mean enough money that raising children is free.

It will only work in countries with mostly productive people.

It is better to cut most of the welfare, create an economy where a single income earner in a family can minimal support a family with two children. Maternity support such as paid maternity leave, supported child care, free medical care, free pre-school and free college. Those who do not work, will not be able to afford it even they get free health care and free college.

If it is 100% capitalistic, which I have zero problem with it, then it is only the top percentile of people who will be OK. I mean the top 1%. The rest can go figure it out themselves which is very difficult in the 21st century where one needs at least an IQ of 110 to function competitively

Pashtun ladies can be pretty alright, but aren't Pashtuns only 15-20% of Pakistan's population? That would mean that the other 80-plus percent are not substantially white European: they tend to look instead something like the woman whom you said must be "Indian/Bangladeshi."

Most Pakistanis (excluding Pashtuns) are indistinguishable from most Indians (excluding the noticeably taller and more muscular Punjabis in the NW, or the very small population of Portuguese/British-mixed Indians found on and near Goa).

They are largely the same people genetically. The bulk of Pakis are separated from their genetic brethren in India by pointless "disagreements" between their stupid religions — to make it even better, the conflict is usually over ideas and assertions that are unproven, unprovable, implausible, and often not useful.

Muslims can keep them in line, and Muslims probably will. Jews seem to imagine that Muslims are their allies and can't see (despite various blood-curdling terrorist attacks against Jews in France) that Muslims hate them. And so they push for open borders and let as many Muslims in as possible. It's probably the stupidest thing anyone has ever done in the history of the world.

Muslims will control the West by the end of this century, because the West (thanks to our elites, whether Jewish or not) have no will to stand up to them. Plus, the West is feminized, and any feminized society is vulnerable to societies that aren't. Muslim society is young and virile, while the West is old and feminized, plus the West has foolishly let in the enemy. Why would anyone think the West is going to win this encounter?

Not only will Muslims control the West by the end of this century, it's their best time ever for achieving their goal of conquering the world. Japan has the will to stop them, unlike the West, but like the West, they are old and (based on the comments here) feminized. China I used to think would never be conquered, but they too are old, so I don't know anymore. Ditto for Eastern Europe. Still, in the pre-shrinkage world, Muslims never had a chance in either area. Now they do.

The big confrontation of this century will be Muslims against non-Muslims, though none of our elites want to admit this.

The main problem with the Chinese is that they are mostly consumerist drones, in order to raise their birth rates, they need to fundamentally reshape their society* in a way which is just not compatible with neoliberal financial policies and being a sweatshop for the West, which makes them rich.

Having read the above, I know you have no idea what you are talking about. Just a projection of your ignorance.

The Chinese, whether in China, Hong Kong, Taiwan, Singapore or the other Chinese diaspora, always have the highest savings rate compared to other people. Credit debts are low or non existent.

All Chinese whether they are in China or outside, have the largest percentage of homeownerships and invest most of their disposable earnings. Consumerist drones? Americans afaik are the consumerist drones. Living paycheck to paycheck and can't even muster up $500 for emergency expenses.

Chinese in China may seem like they are consumerist drones because of that nouveau riche syndrome that affect people who suddenly have money and want some semblance of the "high life". Usually tacky and tasteless. No different from Americans in the 1950s. Showing off tacky sudden wealth to the disdains of war devastated Europeans.

What sweatshop for the West? You are 25 years behind my friend. In the 1990s and the earlier part of the 2000s, perhaps but not anymore. China's exports to the West is less than 10% of its GDP.

China is starting to do a little bit better with the birthrate thing. China unfortunately did the “one child policy,” which everyone now sees as a misstep. Chinese are much less depressed than the Japanese, but still very big into the whole ancestors thing.

The problem in China, like everywhere else, is that women are stupid whores and cannot be reasoned with. However, because China is not a Jewed-up democracy, they can just ban all feminist propaganda and start cutting off other avenues for sluts.

It doesn't matter if the birth rate is low in Europe, that is a problem, but it's a different problem than "replacement by immigrants", which is neither a solution (just an extra problem), nor applies to Japan (at least, until now — maybe they will give in to the globalists eventually).

These two “women” look like men to me. I think you would have to be a closeted fag to be attracted to them.

Even a below average southeast Asian woman would look better. That’s why they ain’t marrying Pakistains.

If we are going into this direction, let’s be fair and go all the way.

European white women look like women until around 27-28 years of age. This is followed by a transition period in which they look like less and less passable trannies, and then the Slavic ones end up looking like Boris Yeltsin in drag, the Germanic ones end up like Rod Stewart in drag, and the Mediterranean ones become classical crones.

Even if we accept that South Asian and Middle Eastern white women “look like dudes” to start with, with European white women the difference is about a decade of potential femininity, in the all too fleeting period between “loli” and “tranny”.

The only ethnic demographic capable of producing at least 25% of women who look feminine all the way until suddenly turning into grannies, is the mongoloid one.

If one wants a woman who does not turn into a pumpkin once the clock strikes thirty, one does not take any type of white, brown, or black woman. All else is ephemeral details.

Unless, of course, one takes the DiCaprio route, and goes through consecutive relationships until the point in which the woman starts the process of morphing into an angry tranny, send her on her way with a cash thank you basket, and then starts over with the next one.

Either that, or, yellow fever aside, a guy has to make his peace that even the fairest shield maiden will turn into Rachel Levine once the warranty runs out.

@James Forrestal

Seems rather analogous to this sort of behavior — only at the societal, rather than the individual, level:

https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Parasitic\_castration

Hear hear. Not something I would apply specifically to Eastern Asia, rather to the Western tip of Eurasia and some colonial offshoots, but hear hear.

Parasitic castration is the strategy, by a parasite, of blocking reproduction by its host, completely or in part, to its own benefit. This is one of six major strategies within parasitism.

Evolutionary strategy [ edit ]

The parasitic castration strategy, which results in the reproductive death of the host, can be compared with the parasitoid strategy, which results in the host's death. Both parasitoids and parasitic castrators tend to be similar to their host in size, whereas most non-castrating parasites are orders of magnitude smaller than the host. In both strategies, an infected host is much less hospitable to new parasites than an uninfected one.<sup>[2]</sup>

A parasite that ends the reproductive life of its host theoretically liberates a significant fraction of the host's resources, which can now be used to benefit the parasite. The fraction of intact host energy spent on reproduction includes not just gonads and gametes but also secondary sexual characteristics, mate-seeking behavior, competition, and care for offspring. Infected hosts may have a different appearance, lacking said sex characteristics and sometimes even devoting more energy to growth, resulting in gigantism.<sup>[3]</sup> The evolutionary parasitologist Robert Poulin suggests that parasitic castration may result in prolonged host life, benefiting the parasite.<sup>[4]</sup>

Parasitic castration may be direct, as in Hemioniscus balani, a parasite of hermaphroditic barnacles which feeds on ovarian fluid, so that its host loses female reproductive ability but still can function as a male.<sup>[5]</sup> Parasitic castration may equally be indirect, as when a parasite diverts host energy from developing gonads, or secretes castrating hormones.<sup>[4]</sup>

The parasitic castration strategy is used by some larval trematode parasites of snails and some isopod and barnacle parasites of crustaceans.<sup>[3]</sup> For example, 18 species of trematodes parasitically castrate the California horn snail, Cerithidea californica.<sup>[6]</sup>

Certain other effects of a parasite on its host may appear similar to parasitic castration, such as the host's immune system diverting energy from reproduction in response to numerous parasites that singly would have no impact on fecundity or fertility, or parasitoids that may consume reproductive organs first.<sup>[3]</sup>

Crab with egg sac of the parasitic barnacle Sacculina carcini. The parasite stops reproduction in its host, the crab, and stimulates the female crab to disperse parasite eggs with the same behavior that she would normally use for her own eggs.<sup>[1]</sup>

I believe you're on to something regarding the Japanese making deals with China. Clearly, Tokyo sees the writing on the wall. They are continuing with their investments and participation in the Russian Sakhalin Oil projects. It's a hedge for them. Maybe, they'll finally sign a peace treaty with Russia over the Kuril Islands officially ending WWII technically. One thing is for sure if America loses control of all of its vassals and the global narrative Japan will have to rethink their geopolitical relations.

I don't agree that the Chinese have "maintained vigor". They're a nation of awkward nerds addicted to video games and hentai like everywhere else in Northeast Asia.

The more salient difference is that the CCP recognizes the problem and is taking steps to fix it. See: Xi's crackdown on cram schools (useless money- and time-sinks and nerd factories) and online video games, and promotion of physical education in schools. We'll have to wait a few years to see if it works.

If Japan were smart, they would ban cram schools, ban pornography, introduce similar restrictions on video games, and make basic proficiency in a combat sport and strength training a requirement for men to graduate high school.

However, the values of their American constitution have actually penetrated quite deeply into the national consciousness. People care too much about personal liberties and value-neutrality to accept this kind of thing. (A friend who works in local government in Japan has informed me that he's received complaints from citizens just because of Kishida announcing an intention to fix the problem – they say the decision to have children is too personal for government to intrude upon – even though Kishida is really just talking about incentives and not "intrusion" at all.)

The "Sinicization of Japan" will never happen. Fewer Chinese want to go to Japan than did a few decades ago. The economic incentives of migration to Japan are near evaporating. The labour market is difficult to break into even with high Japanese language proficiency – companies prioritize hiring fresh grads and training them over a period of years – without a specialized, transferable, and economically valuable skill, opportunities for jumping straight in are limited. Chinese who want a higher income or better quality of life overwhelmingly prefer English-speaking countries, especially the USA. Even Canada and Australia are perceived as second-best destinations for emigrants.

Conversely, despite the huge absolute wealth gap and dwindling relative wealth gap, Chinese people have a worse perception in Japan than they do in the USA. (Therefore, Japanese girls don't give it up easily for Chinese guys.) Maybe they're perceived similarly to Russians in pre-2022 Europe – thick accents, mostly uncouth and broke, some are uncouth and comically rich.

Also, the cultural influence of China in Japan is not good. American popular culture and “moral” “values” are big. Korean dramas, music, and fashion are huge. China is practically culturally invisible and is more often the object of ridicule.

As for Japan's prospects with a shrinking population – they aren't necessarily catastrophic in the long term, but they do need to get over the present demographic hump. Supporting all the old folks is a huge burden, but it'll be easier once they die off.

Japan's immigration policy is already lax. It's generally not a desirable destination for Asian immigrants anyway because of the language barrier, and because salaries are significantly lower than in the English speaking world. I don't really see a “flood of immigrants” happening no matter what the government does.

@Dumbo

A common misconception among those who have never been to Japan, is that Japan has no foreigners.

Tourism is an essential part of Japan's economy. Don't be fooled by the naturalization statistics. At any given time Japan has just as many foreigners as France does non-whites.

40m is roughly 30% of Japan's population, which was already 3% naturalized foreigner.

You dumb bastard. Japan has a ton of undocumented and temporary immigrants as well. Japanese will of course be replaced. They gave in to globalism a long time ago, and they lose more and more influence the less fertile they become. Lots of blacks walking about in Tokyo.

The future only belongs to people who show up. You just want to bitch about immigrants and vote every 2 years but don't want to do the real heavy lifting. Because you are a stupid, lazy, cowardly sumovabitch.

And yet we in the West somehow couldn't protect those girls trafficked in towns like Rotherham in northern England. Nor could we prevent Theo van Gogh's throat from being slit in broad daylight on the streets of Amsterdam, nor the massacre of the people at Charlie Hebdo. Bruce Bawer, the gay writer, says that gay bars in Amsterdam have closed because too many gays were getting beat up by Muslims. We couldn't prevent that, either.

No matter what we have done to Muslim countries, when Muslims do something outrageous here in the West, we chose a feminine rather than a masculine response. When the fatwa was issued against Salman Rushdie, we should have rounded up those calling for his death and exiled them. That would have sent a message and would have saved us a lot of problems later on, but we basically did nothing. Ever since then, we have let Muslims do whatever they want. The current brouhaha at Hamline University is typical of what is happening. Despite the fact that the instructor gave plenty of warning about the image of Muhammad that was going to be shown, a Muslim complained. A response from muscular secularists would have been to tell the complainer to go back to the Muslim world if she couldn't stand seeing an image of Muhammad. Instead, the administration whined about the "harm" caused to the student and fired the instructor.

There have been thousands of little clashes between Muslims and Westerners in recent years, and almost always the West's response has been to give in to the Muslims, a very feminine reaction. And that's why I say they will be ruling us in a few decades.

It’s a tired talking point at this point, but: in white countries, the government/media was telling everyone to have fewer kids because of global cooling or the ozone hole or whatever (this was pre-global warming), and then when people did that they came out and said “well, you people aren’t having enough kids, so we’re going to have to flood you with poor brown people.”

You are right, except it’s not a “tired talking point.”

I would not insult Islam out of simple good manners, but if I felt that I had to criticise it, and someone attacked me for it, then they and their enablers must be severely punished by the State, which must protect all. | pls do a summary of how the world works today.

The mid-deep history is that Egypt screwed up and decided that the point of having flesh was to stop having flesh.

Imagine buying a gallon of bleach for the purposes of getting rid of all your bleach. It's just kinda dumb.

Then, instead of allowing themselves to be corrected, they fell to Pride. Lies are cancerous. To defend them, you eventually have to deny all of Reality. They doubled down and allowed the cancer to metastasize. After 5000 years, here we are.

The lesser deep history is that Greeks are amazingly dishonest. They lie so much and so intensely that something broke and created Socrates. From Socrates you get science. From the rest of the Greeks you get everything else.

Greek Sophism is the art of using logical fallacies to scam gullible rubes into supporting your interests instead of their own.

Sophists reliably produce Egalitarian Democracy. If, formally speaking, a mass of dumb, gullible peasants are in charge of the government – well, then nobody can challenge Sophist rule, now can they? You're not going to out-lie the Sophist, it's their job.

Egalitarianism both justifies Democracy and helps the Sophists hide their behaviour. If you believe in Egalitarianism, when you see voters voting exactly how they're told to vote, you don't go looking for a puppetmaster – especially not a specific puppetmaster with a name and address. There can't be anyone specific, with specific ideas and interests. There's no king. No no! It's "market forces" or whatever. Historical poltergeists – that plate threw itself, see.

At the same time, Egalitarianism is self-reinforcing because it lionizes Envy. Anyone who has ever been jealous supports Egalitarian rules, so as to tear down the object of their sinful thoughts. There's quite a few more inferiors than superiors. Those prone to Envy have much to be Envious about...

(You can see the Egyptian flesh-negative ideas still survive in Egalitarianism. The bodies don't matter, only the souls, which are all equal before God. Come secularism, this becomes transmuted into all the bodies being identical, and equal before I Fucking Love Science. In Reality, if you use Aristotle's three-part soul paradigm, the true third part is the gestalt of spirit and body. A sun is meaningless without a planet to nourish.)

This means the Sophists doubly have to hide. If anyone notice they're in charge, they will be mobbed by an Envious mob. They are arch-viziers. They merely "advise" you see. (Mind without force, which comes from the body. Egyptian ideal.)

E.g. Schwab can't be in charge of jack shit. If you, some random outsider, can see he's in charge of something, I can assure you his rivals figured it out a long time ago, and organized a lynch mob. He's a hollowed-out puppet. A political cripple marched out to help focus blame away from where it belongs.

As such, Democracy is a usurper regime. Nobody has even the trappings of legitimate power. Everyone with real power usurped somebody else, and they will lose power by being usurped in turn. Turns out lies are insecure.

Having to hide makes it impossible to consolidate rule. As such, America, while highly imperial/colonialist, is in fact many, many empires. I reckon about 500 or so. Each with its own secret emperor. He (very occasionally she) rules with an iron fist...until someone realizes he's the emperor so they can properly organize all his jealous rivals.

I figure someone outed Biden's emperor recently and had him suicided or whatever. Or perhaps more likely he died of ncov. Sophists can't have competent subordinates because they'll just get usurped. Biden's puppetmaster died and the lieutenants are squabbling for supremacy rather than trying to fend off the vultures. Perhaps having him be president was intended to humiliate him and his whole clan. Perhaps his former master's mutts started the Ukraine war since they became leashless. Too stupid to realize Russia would win. Both the Kremlin and Foggy Bottom have an interest in depleting Pentagon armouries...

Empire is always Sophist. Non-Sophists aren't interested in that kind of expansionism. Result: Empire is always weak, and always doomed. Lies have a shelf life. When the lies go stale, the empire goes with them.

The thing about Sophist rule is you can just not listen. If you don't let them lie to you, it doesn't matter how Sophisticated they are. "Does it replicate?" If it hasn't robustly replicated, they're just lying. There's no need to think about it.

They key to success in America is to give up being American. Your ancestors fucked right the hell up, but there's no need to repeat their catastrophic mistakes. They're pretty obvious at this point. You can just... not.

You're on the wrong website and wrong OP's thread if you're complaining about that. Don't you know that Omar Mateen is the OP's hero and many commenters here would choose the handle "my name is Omar Mateen" if it hadn't already been taken up? I suppose "I am Luca Traini" sounds better by what do I know?

The problem is that these immigrants are now citizens and have all the rights of other citizens and cannot be discriminated against in any way. I hear some countries want to strip immigrant criminals of their citizenship and deport them but I don't see how that can work as that would surely be unconstitutional. They should then have to do the same with their own indigenous criminals but where to send them? Australia perhaps, like in days of old?

I think short of a civil war there is nothing to be done and the longer that is postponed the more likely it will be that the whites will be fighting to establish some smaller enclaves for themselves in their former countries. But do you see even that happening? More likely Europe and USA will become something like Brazil, or even South Africa -the rainbow nation.

Because it’s a Ponzi!

With a regular pension plan, you work 35 years and pay your dues each month. When you retire, there’s a ton of money in the bank with your name on it. That’s what old Grandma and Grandad Suzuki thought they were doing all this time.

But no, Japan has a Ponzi. All that money they put in back in the 60s, 70s, and so on has vanished up the government’s sleeve. Now the new marks have to pay for the old.

Kishida’s party has a bad habit of coming up with wild ideas and just dumping them on everybody without any discussion. Abe gets a state funeral. Done deal. You’re paying. What?

In this latest scam we get a twofer: Population Panic (it’s gonna cost ya), and We’ve decided to double “defence” (military) spending, we’re shopping at the top from the US, and you’re paying.

Nobody cares about random assassinations of provocative trolls or a handful workiny class sluts getting trafficked.

Based on their rhetoric, leftist elites should have cared about these people, and presumably did care about them, but not enough to help them, the reason being that they are too feminine to provide the protection that masculinity typically provides.

On the other hand, a handful of Russian and American soldiers have destroyed the Arab and Irano-Afghan worlds in just 40 years, guaranteeing their doom.

James Michener's novel Caravans gives what I presume is a reasonably accurate portrayal of Afghanistan from the 1960s. It was doomed back then. The Arab and Irano-Afghan worlds were doomed as far back as Al-Ghazali. Whether he was the cause of it or an effect or a catalyst, I don't know.

@Alrenous

As usual with Unz articles and especially Anglin's contributions there is a lot of dross but an occasional nugget worth replying to.

The idea that Chinese official statistics are not just unfortunately inaccurate but actively fraudulent is a claim that comes up often in discussions about China. However I have yet to see someone who actually makes that claim also carefully think it through and deal with its implications.

Potemkin villages, along with various other forms of frauds and illusions can work, but only for a short time and only to fool certain people when seen from a certain angle. Watch the illusion long enough or switch your line of sight and it all disappears.

The number of people affects everything in society, any plan need accurate statistics, or at least as accurate as you can get. @Alrenous sees this point and thinks there must be two parallel sets of books, one accurate but secret, held only by the government and another fraudulent and public, open to everyone (including presumably also the Americans, the CIA, MI6 etc.).

How far down the chain of command does the access to the secret books go ? Xi jin Ping obviously has access, how about regional governors ? City mayors ? District controllers ? Neighborhood committees ? Block captains ? Are the members of a local housing estate residents committee allowed access to the true but secret information about their own community, or are they stuck with relying on the false information in the public books ?

What's true for that residents committee would also be true for any other sector of society, education, transportation, health, commerce, power generation, waste disposal, law enforcement and defense.

And all this time the true books have never been discovered !

The idea that a society as massive and as complex as China is running on secret books and Potemkin statistics is ridiculous.

The interesting thing about reality that distinguishes it from illusion or fantasy is that it all fits together and it all runs neatly down from the very big through to the very small. Potemkin statistic don't, it's a fantasy.

@Alrenous and @Erik Sieven almost confess this to themselves when they write " I like to think that..." and "it's an open secret..."

You have been hypnotized.

@Commentator Mike

You're on the wrong website and wrong OP's thread if you're complaining about that. Don't you know that Omar Mateen is the OP's hero and many commenters here would choose the handle "my name is Omar Mateen" if it hadn't already been taken up?

I'm not complaining about it. I'm just pointing it out. A masculine society wouldn't have allowed that.

By the way, what does OP stand for?

The problem is that these immigrants are now citizens and have all the rights of other citizens and cannot be discriminated against in any way. I hear some countries want to strip immigrant criminals of their citizenship and deport them but I don't see how that can work as that would surely be unconstitutional.

We Americans seem quite happy to exile German immigrants who turned out to have been guilty of Nazi crimes, so I assume it could be done. I don't know about Britain or any other European country, though; however, I think some of them do exile imams who are too extremist.

Ideally, what should have happened after the fatwa is that massive demonstrations of support for Rushdie should have occurred throughout all cities of the Western world. With such support, the authorities could have acted so as to tamp down any inclinations that anyone had for religious violence, whether against Rushdie or anyone else. Their welfare could be cut, for any who were on welfare, and no doubt other things could have been done to encourage such people to leave the West. Instead, nothing was done, and not much was even said except some vague and nearly invisible handwringing. For example, it wasn't till after she died that I learned that Susan Sontag – the woman who said that whites were a cancer in human history – had supported Rushdie. Thanks for nothing, Susan. You could have shouted that out loud.

I think short of a civil war there is nothing to be done and the longer that is postponed the more likely it will be that the whites will be fighting to establish some smaller enclaves for themselves in their former countries. But do you see even that happening?

Do I see it happening? Not really. What I sort of expect is that our elites will wake up to Islamification when Muslims have in effect taken over countries like Belgium and Holland. This will inspire lots of terrorists elsewhere in Western Europe who want to take over their countries. At that point, we in America and Canada might be deluged by whites from Europe fleeing and demanding that we “do something.” First, the problem is that lots of people, especially here at Unz Review, think we saved Europe twice already and that Europeans were not a bit grateful, so they will not be inclined to do it again. As for those further to the left, they’ve been brainwashed into thinking that they mustn’t go against Muslims because that would be Islamophobic. So, we won’t be doing anything. Second, we ourselves will be dealing with terrorism, since I’m sure plenty of terrorists have been coming in through our leaky southern border. Thanks, Biden. Maybe we will prevent Islamification here, and maybe not. I’m guessing not, since our elites are too thick-headed on this subject to change their minds quickly.

But I agree that the longer that action is postponed, the harder things will be.

Anglin is ok on the female question, but he still falls short of possessing full understanding and presenting solutions. As a liberal-conservative, Anglin is opposed to revoking female rights, so his solution is something like “the culture needs to change,” which is the standard non-solution liberal-conservatives have for everything. “Culture” is a function of law, and it is impossible to have non-feminist culture under feminist law.

@Alrenous

So you have no actual facts or logical arguments to show that the official Chinese statistics are fraudulent, it's just something you believe and you have chosen to double down on that belief as if that somehow obviates the need for facts and logic.

Here are some more tangible examples that might make your errors clearer.

McDonalds, Burger King, Pizza Hut and KFC all operate in China. They are all sophisticated international brands that report upwards to international directors. In every country they employ detailed statistical models to track things such as numbers and locations of restaurants, sales volume, profit/loss etc. If their statistics of the population of China (their customers and potential customers) is radically different from the official government statistics then why has this never been discovered ?

Or has Xi jinning employed his Chi-com magic to get them all to flush their money down the toilet by attempting to sell burgers, pizza and fried chicken to ghosts ?

If you think the very detailed numbers that are presented are wrong then you should have an equally detailed explanation as to why and another detailed explanation of what the correct numbers actually are.

You don't.

This is because reality can be explained mathematically but fantasies can't. You are living in a fantasy world.

Maybe Japan is just further along the modernist treadmill than China and Singapore? Isn't the whole Sodom and Gommorah story about the social rot of urbanization? If homos are about 2% of the population and traditional pastoral or hunter gatherer bands humans evolved in were 80-100 people then odds are that each group had only one single queer male so none of this grinder-blue oyster bar type lifestyle could go on. Only when they got together in big cities were there enough of them to live it up in perpetual adolescence...and have a bad influence on their female friends encouraging them to live the same way. And besides the destruction of those two cities in Genesis was about far more than gays, the homosexuality in that tale sounds more like prison rape or the bacha bachi of straight sexually frustrated men basically masturbating into low status boys rectums in a society where rich men sequestered all the women. The people themselves were wicked and evil in the city, urban life was said to rot the soul already 3000 years ago or so when these tales originated. And Lot himself was in the predicament that most are today, he knew the modern urban life was wrong and against the morals he was raised in, but there was just too much money to be made living the good life in Sodom for him to leave. The exact same type of person that this Sikh guy I worked with 25 years ago was, he railed on endlessly about the sexual morals of the youth in America, the "living together," bastards, teens running wild, yet if it was so bad what was this guy doing living here? Why didn't he pick up and take his family back to Punjab? Just like lot he chose to stay on in Sodom for the money.

As far as Chinese taking over all of Asia I sure hope not because no language is more foul sounding than that Chinese language. I'd rather listen to Tagalog all day than spend five minutes listening to the sound of birds screaming bloody murder as Chinese sounds just like. They are also cheapskates that cheat each other and don't trust anyone outside the family. No Chinese company can ever build a quality type car you can trust like the Japanese automakers do.

Yes, the Plaza Accords of 1985 doomed the Japanese economy up to the present time, it stopped their ascent in its tracks, and the funniest/saddest part is that them Japanese negotiators and their press emphasized how proud they were to join the big guys in deciding over the destruction of the foundations of the Japanese economy.

Their prime minister at the time, Mr. Takeshita, a sake brewer, was the stupidest Japanese ever to have been born and climb up the state hierarchy.

After the Plaza Accords came the Louvre Accords, another gross manipulation of currency markets that the USA imposed on its attachments, which makes me hypothesize, as I've done here on TUR, that as soon as the US$ starts falling to the value corresponding to America's export capacity, within the next few years due to dedollarization, it will be floated for some time through the sacrifice of the EU, JP, UK, AU, NZ, SK and TW economies/currencies, perhaps NZ will be spared, they are so small.

In brief

China’s Wuhan Kingold Jewelry used at least 83 tonnes of counterfeit gold as collateral for loans.

The gold was used to secure loans worth in excess of $2 billion.

The discovery raises questions about the practicality of gold as an asset.

An investigation has uncovered one of the biggest gold counterfeiting scandals in recent history.

The probe, carried out by Chinese news outlet Caixin found that Wuhan Kingold Jewelry, the largest privately-owned gold processor in central China’s Hubei province, used at least 83 tonnes of counterfeit gold as collateral for loans amounting to 20 billion yuan ($2.8 billion) from over a dozen Chinese financial institutions.

According to the report, the faked collateral is equivalent to 22% of China’s annual gold production and 4.2% of the state gold reserve as of 2019. In short, more than four percent of China’s official gold reserves may be fake.

I think it's always been like that. What has degenerated is their will to live (and liberate themselves from American hegemony).

| Korea is heading in the same direction. Kpop stars look more like girls than boys.

Maybe... but where would they be without KPop? Smoking crack to American rubbish? What would you rather have your kids listen to? I think a lot of parents should be thankful for KPop. It's one of the few wholesome music genres available that get young people interested.

Interesting that the Andrew Joyce article published today is on Jewish vulgarity. Andrew Anglin is Exhibit A of this Jewish low culture rubbing off on Anglo culture. Jews have turned us all into vulgarians. Anglin needs to clean up his mouth and stop sounding like Jews with so much vulgarity and hysterical language. Exercise some self-control and use good manners like a good old fashion WASP, it'll make him a lot more convincing.

In recent months, there was a video on YouTube of some Muslims in Denmark taunting some Danes by saying that they were going to outbreed them and that they would then take over. What can one say in response? That our elites will never let that happen? Yeah, right.

Women in that part of the world can be just as rude, shrewish, and gold digging as any American. Lots of women are thin because they're impoverished (those women typically are ugly), but the middle/upper class (which actually produces semi-decent looking women) is just as obese as what you find here. As for beauty, that's mostly just wedding makeup. I'd assume that with their relative affluence, the Chinese men got arranged with the best-looking local girls.

I'll give you that women there actually value family & religion (unlike American women), but are undesirable in most other ways.

I've dealt enough with Muslim women in America to say that they're not a desirable option. Not in looks or personality. It's mostly their strong family & religious commitment that makes them different. Other than that, not so different.

American men, by the way, don't value family or religion either.

Lots of American men live in a fantasy world, in which the third world is full of charming, caring, loyal, and beautiful women. Reality is very different on the ground over there.

Look up "Linda Sarsour."

That is an impressive summary.

Let's try a little role playing here.

Women differ from men cross-culturally in the OCEAN [1] system of personality classification. Women differ from men most in “Neuroticism”.

To get this point, you must remember that psychiatry is much like general practice medicine before antibiotics — killed more people than it saved, and generally confused “diseases” with “symptoms”, so that “croup” in babies was considered a disease then, and is now considered a symptom (“respiratory distress”) common to a number of diseases, each of which diseases requires its own treatment. Here's the mnemonic:

I don't claim to understand human psychology, but also don't claim to. I can detect some differences between psychology's claims and observed reality, however. Here's one such difference.

OK, so what does “Neuroticism” really mean? The name translates as “Effects of sick nerves”, but there is nothing wrong with women's nerves. The English language meaning of “Neuroticism” appears to be “fear”, something not mentioned in [1]. Women fear more than do men. Here's a presentation on the subject, a presentation intended for women and perhaps overproduced, but please give it a chance:

Note that Feminism teaches the following lessons:

- 1) Men always lie.
- 2) Men hate women.
- 3) Men are planning to enslave women.

(NB: substitute “goyim” for “men” and “Jews” for “women”, and “holocaust” for “enslave”, and you get the conditioning given to Jewish boys.)

So, take this and add in the Japanese government emphasis on “career” for women, and for that matter “precare” (“Pretty Cure”), and you get women with a perceived word in which women are still afraid, will always be condemned to abandon any babies they have (when the newly delivered mother returns to her job) to the care of hostile strangers (daycare & school), and in which there are no protectors for a fearful woman.

These are classic environmental drivers for refusal to breed by female mammals, who regard absent offspring as dead offspring and who won't deliver a litter when it has no chance of staying alive in a protected environment. Refusal of female rats to breed and actual inability to bring litters to term when litter survival approached zero was a major cause of population collapse in the Rat Utopia [2]. No surprise that it does the same thing for humans.

Women's longing for safety (a requirement for child bearing and rearing) accounts for several of the more paradoxical behaviors of feminist women. Of necessity, feminist women are “frustrated”; they want safety and reject the only source of safety they will have: membership in a mated pair that is part of a society that protects mated pairs.

Offers of “protection” from what women have been told (in list items 1-3, above) are the source of all danger yield half insane rejections. This is reinforced by male human mating strategies: young men cannot support or protect a mated pair, but want to mate anyhow. They seem to confirm the 3 item list, above. Further, interactions with some adult men also tend to confirm the 3 item list, above.

And, yes, you can extend the above beyond “mating pairs” to polygamy and polyandry, but in all cases women use the hominid strategy of male provision and protection to provide the environment needed to raise a family.

So, why feminism, either in the US or Asia?

The current function of feminism is political: the production of fanatical political agents that are motivated by the pain of not being able to get something that their basic biology needs. Other such political agents would be the members of hunger marches (Arab Spring), men without wives or the prospect of families (e.g. Antifa and BLM), members of religious cults who think the world should be their slaves (Weather Underground), etc.

Mouse Utopia is an analog to present day human society. Towards the end of a Mouse Utopia run, a mixed-sex sample of mice were moved to a completely untenanted Mouse Utopia. The sample were not able to survived, or to act like ordinary laboratory rats. Apparently, rats have to “learn to be rats” while young; if they learn something else, they become and stay something else. The “inner city” inhab itants produced quite deliberately by a welfare system that penalizes mating pairs and enforces grinding poverty will never be able to exist outside of the inner city, and it’s worth noting that the inner city is undergoing a population collapse hidden by immigration.

Perhaps that is why social organizations that keep their distance from modernity (Amish, Mennonites) continue to do very well, and those that try to make women into office workers (or heavy infantry) can’t reproduce themselves.

Well, there are quite a few Muslim women who are dissatisfied with Muslim men, so I guess some will go for old white men.....

Muslim man logic is so transparently hateful like women can cause earthquakes wearing jeans but men can be involved in sex trafficking and still not be judged like you guys really do hate us don't you

— baby-goatsong (@amnawintour) January 7, 2023

converting to Islam has become an ultimate protection net for men who raped, trafficked and publicly incited violence against women, Muslim men like khalid beydoun will vouch for rapist men and act as performative Muslim women allies, majority of this community are bigots

Muslim men are the worse, how do y'all cry for these men, they are our abusers and what they do to women is unforgivable, you can't whitewash religious oppression subjected to women in the name of Islam, these men consistently hurt us <https://t.co/ayes8uuprn>

You're welcome.

I'm not sure why they care about voting. Even if Democracy were real enough that gullible peasants weren't too gullible to vote responsibly, the obvious thing is for elected officials to give away all their power to the unelected bureaucracy, then have their friends in the bureaucracy hire them when they lose an election. All power is given away to the "deep state" within like 20 years max.

They could have just ignored Trump for 8 years. Ultimately nothing would have happened because POTUS doesn't have any power – can't even get a fence built in his back yard. Obviously they do care a great deal but I'm not sure why. Maybe loyalty, but you can't fake loyalty by defrauding the measure...

Immigration is mainly about triggering federal subsidies. When a town builds a new subdivision they get all the cash needed to build it from DC. Only they can't afford maintenance with the taxes, so they need to Ponzi up and build a new subdivision, but skim the subsidy to pay maintenance on the old subdivisions. Needs to happen way faster than natives can breed, or even natives+old immigrants. It does votes too of course, but as we can see they'll just defraud the vote if necessary, and it isn't necessary...

They don't like marriage because single moms vote left. They don't need the votes but they do need the loyalty.

They wanted to defund the police because teacher's unions donate 97% blue whereas police unions are like 60% red. Can't have that, now can we? (Being physically fit makes you dislike leftism. Training with weapons too.) Of course, if they actually defunded the police then they would have nobody to stop white men with guns from defending themselves from criminals, so somebody smart and evil whapped them upside the head and told them to get a grip. Orders are issued, but they take a lot of time because responsibility has to be laundered. They have to get to the relevant people but it has to be impossible to trace them back to their source. Goes through seven proxies and the proxies are made of people.

America is car-addicted because GM gotta get paid. They bribed the proper (unelected) people, then were given corporate welfare to buy up all the trams and trains and sell them to scrapyards. Then the government built a massive road network for them and taxes some random demographic (instead of GM) to pay for it. There's regulations about how much parking every business needs, which a) justifies more taxes and thus more sinecures and stuff and b) puts everything at least twice as far from each other as it has to be, so you have to own a car to reach anything before it closes. Then GM gets paid, and GM can turn around and continue delivering kickbacks. A wildly inefficient Rube Goldberg machine to legally transmute tax dollars into personal wealth. Likewise the vaccine is mainly about how Pfizer gotta get paid. The FDA is not exactly immune to bribes. On the contrary...

A strong driver of women in the workforce is that you can't tax stay-at-home moms, whereas you can tax their daycares and babysitters. There's no breast milk lobby giving cushy gifts to senators, whereas Gerber most certainly has lobbyists.

Flouride is in the water supply largely because it lets the government give flouride-waste companies money, thus generating taxes and kickbacks, rather than the flouride having to be disposed of at the company's expense.

Another major driver is Moldbug's Impact. The political formula is "consent of the governed." As such if you're really chad you can deliberately contravene the political formula, now can't you? Provoke as much dissent as possible, and get it done anyway. Government becomes, when they're not infighting over scraps, about sadism maxxng. Gay marriage was driven precisely by the fact it was, before being rammed through legislatures, wildly unpopular.

Best to pick unpopular manifestations of Egalitarianism, though. Can't go around debunking your religious foundation. This is what trannies are about – everyone is identical, as in, men are women and women are men. In America, everyone is a woman specifically. Including children, when they get around to it. You don't want to rush the sadism. As long as the previous initiative is still causing pain, it's time to savour it.

I don't know why the power and water are basically fine. Lights generally stay on. Nothing else works, how did they get those to work? Big WTF moment.

Those are all hornyposting. Women love being oppressed and they're drooling for the Muslims who "hate" them so much. At least, certainly every woman deranged enough (daddy issues or whatever) to have a social medium account. Don't watch what they say – watch who they choose to date.

It is still the case that medicine kills more than it saves. Americans who lose American hospital access gain life expectancy about on par with quitting a pack-a-day cigarette habit.

There are certain sub-fields which can help you, but if you don't know in advance that it's a net win, it's fine to simply avoid all doctors.

The term "doctor" isn't a job description. It's a personality type. The personality is: fucking quack. Plague doctors were crazy because they were doctors, and doctors are still doctors. I support them wearing the plague beak as a mnemonic. "This is a whacko, be careful." There's a few lost and confused regular folk, but unless you're very lucky you're dealing with someone who puts their brain in backwards every day.

I realized this when I read about a surgeon waxing lyrical about holding someone's liver in his hand during surgery. Dude, "pervert" doesn't even begin to cut it. They want to fondle your internal organs. "Put it back and go Canadian Healthcare yourself."

E.g. if you're prescribed antibiotics, rather than filling the prescription, you should go look up the antibiotic. If you'll recover on your own, don't take it; it's not worth the damage to your gut biome. Sure if you're dying then guzzle that shit, but... If the antibiotic has high resistance, don't take it; it will make it worse, not better.

Trauma surgery is good. They learned how during WWI and WWII. If you have a broken bone or are bleeding out, a hospital is just the thing. If they can get to you in time.

Nowhere in that post is there any suggestion that the Chinese are deliberately creating and publishing false statistics. You yourself are “fudging” it if you immediately slide from “inaccurate” to “fraudulent”. It seems certain that some people did not officially register their child if that would have violated the former one child policy, but remember that would have meant that the real population was higher than official statistics, not lower. So the Chinese National Bureau of statistic attempted to correct for this inaccuracy. The writer uses the NBS data, if they thought there was fraud they would have mentioned it.

We are still left with the problem of why anyone would intentionally create fraudulent data that they themselves rely on. Who would intentionally create false data about the strength of the steel being used in the construction of a bridge that they themselves will drive over ? Or the quality of cement for a house that they and their family will live in ? You are asking me to believe that intelligent people would deliberately and knowingly work against their own best interests.
