Covid a vzestup hnutí Anti-Vaxxing

Až do posledního roku nebo dvou jsem nikdy nevěnoval pozornost hnutí proti vaxxingu, kterému se velmi občas dostalo nějaké pozornosti v mých novinách. Zdálo se, že se většinou skládal z malého kousku rozrušených žen z bohatých předměstí, které se chorobně bály, že standardní série dětských očkování zraní jejich kojence, možná způsobí autismus nebo jiná vážná postižení. Považoval jsem je téměř za výstřední kult, který jsem mentálně odložil scientologům nebo přívržencům UFO.

To vše se změnilo v roce 2020, protože masivní epidemie Covid vedla Trumpovu administrativu k návrhu stejně masivního zavedení vakcín mRNA, které byly urychleně uvedeny na trh, aniž by prošly obvyklými roky pečlivých klinických zkoušek. Vzhledem k použité nové technologii – která účinně unesla vlastní buněčnou mašinerii těla, aby produkovala části spike-proteinu Covid – a nedostatečným testům není divu, že se mnoho jedinců bálo takových injekcí. Skutečně existovala hodnověrná tvrzení, že rozsáhlá mediální kampaň proti alternativní léčbě Covid spoléhající na HCQ a IVM byla ve skutečnosti zorganizovaná s cílem zajistit, aby nedostatek účinných alternativních léků umožnil vládě využít své nouzové pravomoci k nasazení vakcín proti Covidu bez zdlouhavý normální testovací proces.

Takže do roku 2021 byly naše webové stránky zaplaveny vlnami militantních anti-vaxxerů, zatímco mnoho našich stávajících autorů a komentátorů se také zabývalo stejným problémem, někdy s téměř vyloučením většiny ostatních, což je situace, která mě velmi rozčillovala. Jejich divoké pokřiky varovaly, že mRNA vakcíny zabijí miliony – nebo dokonce miliardy – možná jako součást d'ábelského globalistického spiknutí Billa Gatese s cílem vylidnit Zemi. To vše mi připadalo jako kruté, šílené šílenství a pravidelně jsem to říkal a vyvolával tak jejich zuřivé rozhořčení.

Cítil jsem, že jejich základní obava z rozšířeného používání relativně nevyzkoušených lékařských technologií by mohla mít možná opodstatnění. Ale v rovnováze se rizika zdála menší než nebezpečná epidemie Covid, kterou měla zmírnit, alespoň podle drtivé většiny.

lékařských odborníků . Vzhledem k mé nedostatečné osobní odbornosti to bylo nejvíc, co jsem mohl říct. Tak jsem dostal své panáky, přestal jsem tomu problému věnovat jakoukoli pozornost a doufal jsem v to nejlepší.

Naštěstí se nyní zdá, že dva roky statistických údajů naznačují, že lékařský establishment měl většinou pravdu a jeho horliví kritici se mýlili, a v několika nedávných článcích jsem ukázal, že v mnoha zemích se počet úmrtí mladších lidí na vakcínu zdá téměř neviditelný. nízká, příliš malá na to, aby byla patrná ve statistice úmrtnosti. Anti-vaxxeři často tvrdí, že vakcíny jsou zodpovědné za velkou vlnu náhlých úmrtí mezi mladými jednotlivci a sportovci; ale důkazy naznačují, že jsou mnohem pravděpodobnější kvůli přetrvávajícím následkům infekcí Covid spíše než vakcínám určeným k boji proti viru, jak jsem diskutoval v několika nedávných článcích:

Rozhodně není vyloučeno, že dlouhodobé následky injekcí mRNA mohou být škodlivé, ale alespoň se zatím nezdá, že by o tom bylo mnoho důkazů, což je nejvíce, co můžeme v této fázi očekávat.

Překvapivé nedostatky v testování bezpečnosti vakcín

Obavy z vakcín Covid na bázi mRNA do značné míry definovaly dnešní hnutí proti vaxxingu, a to natolik, že se zdá, že se na ně soustředí snad 95 % nebo 98 % všech našťvaných antivaxxerů, které jsem potkal. setkali za posledních pár let. Ve skutečnosti mnozí z těchto aktivistů výslovně řekli, že by se cítili docela dobře s tradičnějšími vakcínami proti Covidu, které vydalo Rusko a různé další země. Ačkoli jsem si jistý, že většina původních anti-vaxxerů z roku 2019 stále existuje, zdá se, že byli zredukováni na nepatrnou menšinu v hnutí, které kdysi propagovali.

Nicméně tyto dřívější obavy z rozčilování se tu a tam stále vyskytují a před několika měsíci jsem dostal knihu přesně na toto širší téma, vydanou pod záštitou organizace Children's Health Defense Roberta F. Kennedyho Jr. Původně byla vydána v roce 2019, dlouho předtím, než kdokoli slyšel o Covidu nebo Wu-chanu, takže to nemělo nic společného s těmito aktuálními problémy, ale řešilo předchozí kontroverzi o vakcíně. Autoři byli anonymní – údajně několik izraelských lékařů – a jejich práce původně vyšla v jejich vlastní zemi, ale nyní byla vydána v anglickém americkém vydání. Kromě několika jednoduchých grafů se obsah skládal výhradně z textu a název byl záhadný: Želvy až dolů. Ale vysvětlující podtitul „Věda a mýtus o vakcínách“ mě na toto téma upozornil a vzhledem k mému nezájmu o problém vaxxingu jsem ho odložil na polici, nikdy jsem ho neměl v úmyslu číst. Koneckonců, protože jsem dospěl k závěru, že radikálně nové mRNA vakcíny Covid se pravděpodobně zdály neškodné, jak pravděpodobné je, že ty tradiční, které se používaly tolik desetiletí, byly skutečně nebezpečné?

Nicméně začátkem října jsem náhodou poslouchal rozhovor Kevina Barretta se Zoey O'Toole, jednou z redaktorek amerického vydání Turtles. K mému značnému překvapení mi přišla docela racionální a presvědčivá, vytvářela různé velmi rozumné body a nastolila důležité otázky, o kterých jsem nikdy předtím neuvažoval, takže jsem knihu vyhrabal a rozhodl se strávit pár dní jejím čtením. .

Přehrávač zvuku

Byl jsem opravdu docela ohromen. Většina antivaxxerů Covidu, se kterými jsem se na internetu setkal, byla náchylná k divokým, velmi pochybným obviněním zahrnujícím gigantický počet těl, ale v této extrémně střízlivé 500stránkové diskusi na toto téma jsem se setkal jen s velmi málo takovou grandiozitou.

Přestože byl tón a faktická tvrzení dosti zdrženlivý, v mnoha jiných ohledech tato kniha představovala mnohem radikálnější kritiku vakcín, než cokoli, co jsem předtím viděl, což představuje frontální útok proti jejich tradiční roli v moderní medicíně. Želvy Cílem bylo svrhnout to, co většina z nás dlouho předpokládala, že víme o těchto zavedených opatřeních v oblasti veřejného zdraví, takže mě sotva překvapilo, že se autoři rozhodli skrýt svá jména ze strachu z profesionálního postihu. Podle předmluvy k americkému vydání získala kniha několik měsíců po svém původním vydání silně příznivé hodnocení v předním izraelském lékařském časopise, ale přední akademici, kteří ji chválili, byli poté tvrdě haněni lékařským zařízením, které nebylo ochotno přímo napadnout. podstatu textu, kterému tleskali. Přední strana knihy je poseta dlouhými doporučeními téměř tuctu lékařských profesionálů a dalších akademiků, což je rozhodně dostatečná podpora k tomu, abych knihu bral vážně, než abych ji pouze zavrhl z ruky. Před více než rokem jsem byl ohromen obsah Kennedyho vlastního bestselleru č. 1 na Amazonu a od té doby jsem mnohem opatrnější v přijímání konvenční moudrosti lékařského establishmentu.

Turtles poskytuje asi 1200 odkazů, které zaplňují 273 stránek online dokumentu, ale stejně jako v případě Kennedyho knihy jsem se nepokoušel žádnou z nich zkontrolovat, částečně proto, že mi chybí technické znalosti, abych tak učinil. Tvrzení autorů nebyla podle redakce za tři roky od zveřejnění zjevně vyvrácena. Aniž bych tedy k těmto otázkám zaujímal jakýkoli postoj, pokusím se pouze shrnout některé z jejich hlavních argumentů a povzbudit ty, kteří mají takový zájem, aby si knihu přečetli a rozhodli se sami.

Ústředním tématem anti-vaxxerů bylo, že mnoho vakcín, které kritizují, má ve skutečnosti vážné nepříznivé vedlejší účinky, někdy způsobí více škody než užitku, a já jsem byl k tomuto tvrzení vždy docela skeptický. Koneckonců, věděl jsem, že před svým všeobecným uvedením na trh musí nové vakcíny obvykle projít dlouhým obdobím klinických studií, ve kterých jsou porovnávány v randomizovaných, zaslepených rozsáhlých testech s placebem. Ale hned první kapitola Želvy tvrdila, že jde většinou o mýtus a podvod.

Podle autorů se takové testy vakcín neprovádějí proti skutečným placebům, jako jsou fyziologické roztoky, ale pouze proti dříve schváleným vakcínám. Takže nová léčba je považována za bezpečnou, pokud její míra škodlivých vedlejších účinků není horší než u dříve schválených verzí, spíše než žádná léčba, což je nelogický přístup, který, jak se zdá, nedává smysl. Předpokládaná bezpečnost a účinnost současných vakcín byla tedy stanovena pouze ve vztahu k dlouhé řadě jejich předchůdců, často sahá desetiletí zpět, a to tvoří metaforu „Želvy až dolů“ v názvu knihy. Tento druh velmi jednoduchého faktického tvrzení se zdá být nepravděpodobný, pokud by nebyl skutečně pravdivý.

Překvapivě je testovaná míra nežádoucích vedlejších účinků vakcíny někdy docela významná. Například během klinických zkoušek vakcíny Prevnar asi 6 % ze 17 000 testovaných kojenců potřebovalo návštěvy na pohotovosti a 3 % vyžadovala hospitalizaci. Ale protože předchozí vakcína používaná pro účely srovnání měla podobně vysokou míru negativních vedlejších účinků, Prevnar byl posouzen jako bezpečný a účinný, což je šokující verdikt.

Existují také případy, kdy neexistovala žádná dříve schválená verze vakcíny pro použití v takové srovnávací studii, a dalo by se přirozeně předpokládat, že jedinou možnou volbou by bylo použití skutečného placeba, jako je fyziologický roztok. Přesto, jak Turtles odhaluje, v této situaci je druhé polovině pokusné populace podána záměrně zmrzačená verze samotné vakcíny, sloučenina, která nemůže poskytnout žádné výhody, ale stále pravděpodobně bude mít všechny stejné nepříznivé vedlejší účinky. Nejpravděpodobnějším důvodem pro tuto podivnou metodologii by bylo maskování existence těchto nepříznivých vedlejších účinků, čímž by bylo zajištěno schválení vakcíny.

Turtles shrnuje tuto nehoráznou situaci prohlášením, že každý rok jsou v Americe kojencům a batolatům podávány desítky milionů dávek vakcín a ani jedna z nich nebyla nikdy testována v klinických studiích proti inertnímu placebo. Nic z toho nedokazuje, že některá z těchto vakcín je nebezpečná, ale rozhodně to vyvolává tuto vážnou možnost. Piloti, kteří létají naslepo, nemusí nutně havarovat, ale pravděpodobně mají mnohem větší šanci, že tak učiní.

Jakmile vakcína projde klinickými testy a bude schválena pro obecné použití, všechny budoucí problémy, které se mohou objevit, jsou údajně pokryty VAERS, „systémem hlášení nežádoucích příhod vakcín“, jehož název naznačuje jeho roli při upozorňování na jakékoli takové problémy. orgány ochrany veřejného zdraví. Tomuto systému, o kterém autoři tvrdí, že je velmi špatně navržený a značně nespolehlivý, věnuje Turtles celou kapitolu.

Zejména systém hlášení je zcela dobrovolný, takže zdravotníci nejsou povinni podávat hlášení o škodlivých výsledcích, se kterými se setkali, a to ani s těmi nejzávažnějšími reakcemi. To naznačuje, že může docházet k velké míře nedostatečného vykazování, přičemž zároveň může kdokoli podat nepravdivé nebo zavádějící zprávy bez jakéhokoli ověřovacího procesu.

Výsledkem je, že data shromážděná VAERS jsou statisticky podezřelá a pravděpodobně docela nespolehlivá a autoři jsou podezřívaví, proč byly tyto obrovské defekty v tak zdánlivě životně důležitém systému ponechány bez nápravy po celá desetiletí. Mají podezření, že tyto chyby mohou být záměrné, jejichž účelem je maskovat nebezpečí vakcín, které má systém údajně monitorovat.

Autoři uznávají, že pro skeptické čtenáře může být obtížné uvěřit, že neblahé účinky tak rozšířeného produktu, jako jsou vakcíny, mohly zůstat skryty po celá desetiletí, a tak si udělali krátkou odbočku do minulosti epidemiologie nemocí. Poznávají, že rakovina plic byla kdysi extrémně vzácná, ale pak se náhle začala objevovat na počátku dvacátého století přibližně ve stejnou dobu, kdy se kouření cigaret rozšířilo, a stalo se tak v mnoha stejných populacích. Ale ačkoli vědci začali poukazovat na možné spojení a podpůrné statistické důkazy, tento kauzální vztah byl po desetiletí zuřivě sporný, částečně kvůli bohatství a síle odpovědného průmyslu. Želvy navrhuje, že tuto tragickou historii, která vedla k předčasným úmrtím milionů obětí rakoviny plic, bychom měli mít pečlivě na paměti, když zvažujeme otázku bezpečnosti vakcín.

Koncem 90. let se ve vědecké literatuře začaly objevovat nové otázky týkající se bezpečnosti vakcín, zejména v roce 1998 zveřejnění velmi kontroverzní studie týkající se bezpečnosti vakcíny MMR od Dr. Andrewa Wakefielda a jeho kolegů v Lancet, a. přední lékařský časopis. Objevení internetu navíc poprvé umožnilo běžným jednotlivcům sdílet své zkušenosti a obavy a organizovat se, aby tyto problémy prozkoumali.

Ale podle Želvy Reakcí očkovacího establishmentu bylo zveřejnění řady studií, které tyto obavy odhalily, studií, o kterých autoři tvrdí, že byly vážně chybné, zaujaté a možná dokonce zkorumpované, ale které byly silně propagovány lékařským establishmentem a jeho podřízenými mediálními spojenci. Většinu dlouhé kapitoly věnují poměrně podrobné analýze pěti z těchto hlavních studií a poznávají, že některé z nejvlivnějších obsahovaly chyby, které zřejmě vážně poškodily jejich důvěryhodnost. Je pozoruhodné, že nezpracovaná data prezentovaná v jedné z nejdůležitějších, Madsenově studii z roku 2002 o dánských dětech, ve skutečnosti zřejmě podporovala opačný závěr, naznačující, že vakcína skutečně měla nebezpečné vedlejší účinky, ale poté došlo k různým pochybným statistickým „úpravám“. použity k dosažení požadovaného, uklidňujícího výsledku.

V tomto bodě autoři položili velmi jednoduchou otázku.

Nejjednodušším a nejpřesvědčivějším způsobem, jak prokázat, že vakcíny jsou skutečně bezpečné a prospěšné s několika vážnými vedlejšími účinky, by zjevně bylo provést velkou randomizovanou zkušební studii srovnávající celkové zdravotní důsledky očkovaných a neočkovaných jedinců, což nazývají „očkování vs. Neočkovaní“ (VU) studie. Přesto podle Turtles žádná taková studie nebyla nikdy provedena: „Zdá se nevysvětlitelné, že studie VU nebyly zahájeny očkovacím zařízením po tolik let.“

Ve skutečnosti již existují značné populace, jako jsou Amishové, kteří se zřikají očkování a jejichž zdravotní výsledky lze snadno porovnat s odpovídající kontrolní skupinou široké, plně očkované veřejnosti, a želvy .konstatuje v tomto ohledu některé znepokojivé náznaky. Novinářské vyšetřování zjistilo, že míra autismu u Amishů byla jen malým zlomkem v porovnání s běžnou populací a stejný stav se nevyskytoval u neočkovaných dětí narozených v Etiopii v Izraeli, zatímco u jejich plně očkovaných sourozenců narozených v Izraeli vykazovaly normální hladiny. Podobný vzorec nastal u rodin somálských přistěhovalců do Minnesoty i Švédska. Vzhledem k tomu, že tyto obavy z autismu a vakcíny byly po léta takovým ohniskem mezi aktivisty proti očkování, zdá se být docela podezřelé, že orgány veřejného zdraví nebyly ochotny reagovat rozsáhlou studií VU, aby se problém přesvědčivě vyřešil.

Opakovaně byly požadovány takové studie VU, ale pravidelná reakce lékařského zařízení byla zamítnuta jako neetický návrh s tvrzením, že by vyžadoval odepření přístupu velké skupiny dětí k prospěšnému očkování; ale to je evidentní nesmysl. Nerandomizovaná studie by mohla být založena na neočkovaných skupinách nebo by retrospektivní studie mohla využít zdravotní anamnézu velkého počtu dětí, které byly v minulosti neočkované. Želvy poznává, že 0,8 % všech amerických dětí je dnes zcela neočkovaných, což představuje 30 000 potenciálních jedinců v každé kohortě narození, zatímco v Austrálii je to 1,5 %. Ty by zjevně poskytly dostatečně velká čísla, aby přesvědčivě určily relativní zdravotní přínosy očkování, takže se obvykle objevují různé další pochybné nebo zcela falešné výmluvy.

Proč tedy existuje tak silný odpor proti provádění komplexní studie VU? Želvy nabízejí jednoduchou odpověď.

Vysvětlení může být jediné: Výsledky byly výrazně ve prospěch neočkovaných. [tučné písmo v originále]

Autoři tvrdí, že takové studie byly skutečně téměř jistě provedeny v tichosti, pravděpodobně mnohokrát, ale výsledky nebyly nikdy zveřejněny, protože ukazovaly špatným směrem. Koneckonců, data jsou vládním orgánům přístupná již mnoho let a zdá se nepředstavitelné, že nikdy nebyla provedena žádná analýza, pouze že zjištění nebyla nikdy zveřejněna. I když si nemohu být jistý, že mají autoři pravdu, myslím si, že jejich hluboce cynické podezření je spíše správné než ne.

Přehnaná role vakcín ve veřejném zdraví

Druhá polovina knihy se posouvá k širší historické perspektivě a zaměřuje se na to, co autoři popisují jako „zakládající mýty“ veřejného zdraví, zejména na údajně zásadní roli, kterou lékařské inovace, jako jsou vakcíny, sehrály při osvobození od smrtelných nemocí minulost. Téměř celý život jsem tato přesvědčení přijímal nejasně a nikdy jsem je vážně nezpochybňoval.

Autoři vyprávějí úplně jiný příběh. Vysvětlují, že počátkem 60. let 20. století publikoval Dr. Thomas McKeown, přední britský lékař a akademický výzkumník, a jeho kolegové sérii průkopnických článků, které úspěšně zpochybnily tyto předpoklady, a poznamenali, že obrovské snížení úmrtnosti na infekční choroby v Británii ve skutečnosti dávno předcházela zavedení buď vakcín, nebo léčebných postupů, jako jsou antibiotika. Místo toho bylo prudké snížení úmrtnosti na nemoci z drtivé většiny způsobeno významnými zlepšeními veřejné hygieny a soukromé hygieny, což byl překvapivý závěr později potvrzený i v USA. Poskytují několik velmi výmluvných grafů demonstrujících tato fakta.

Mortality in Children 0-4 Years, US 1900-1996

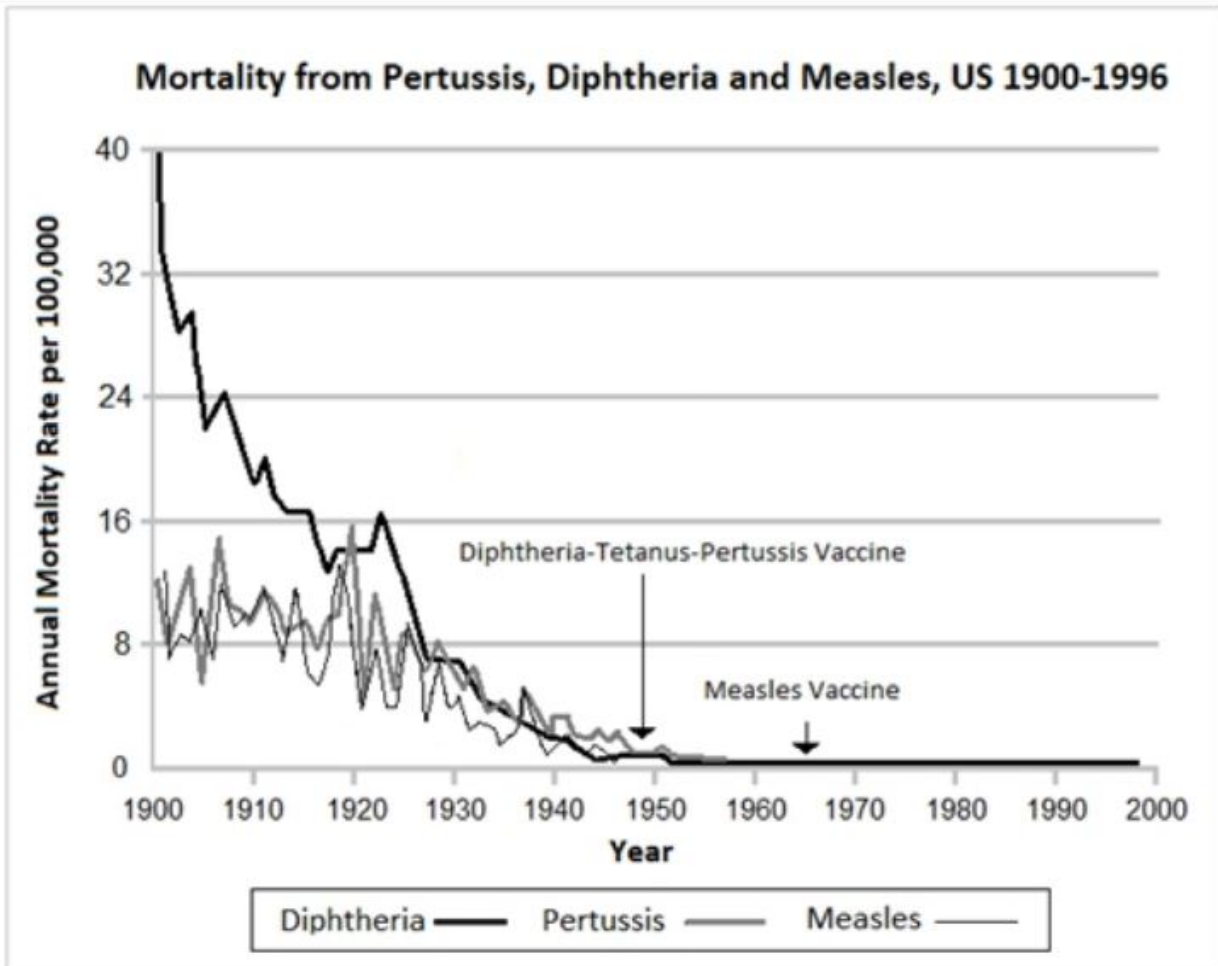

Figure 8-3: Mortality rates of pertussis, diphtheria, and measles in the United States (1900-1996)

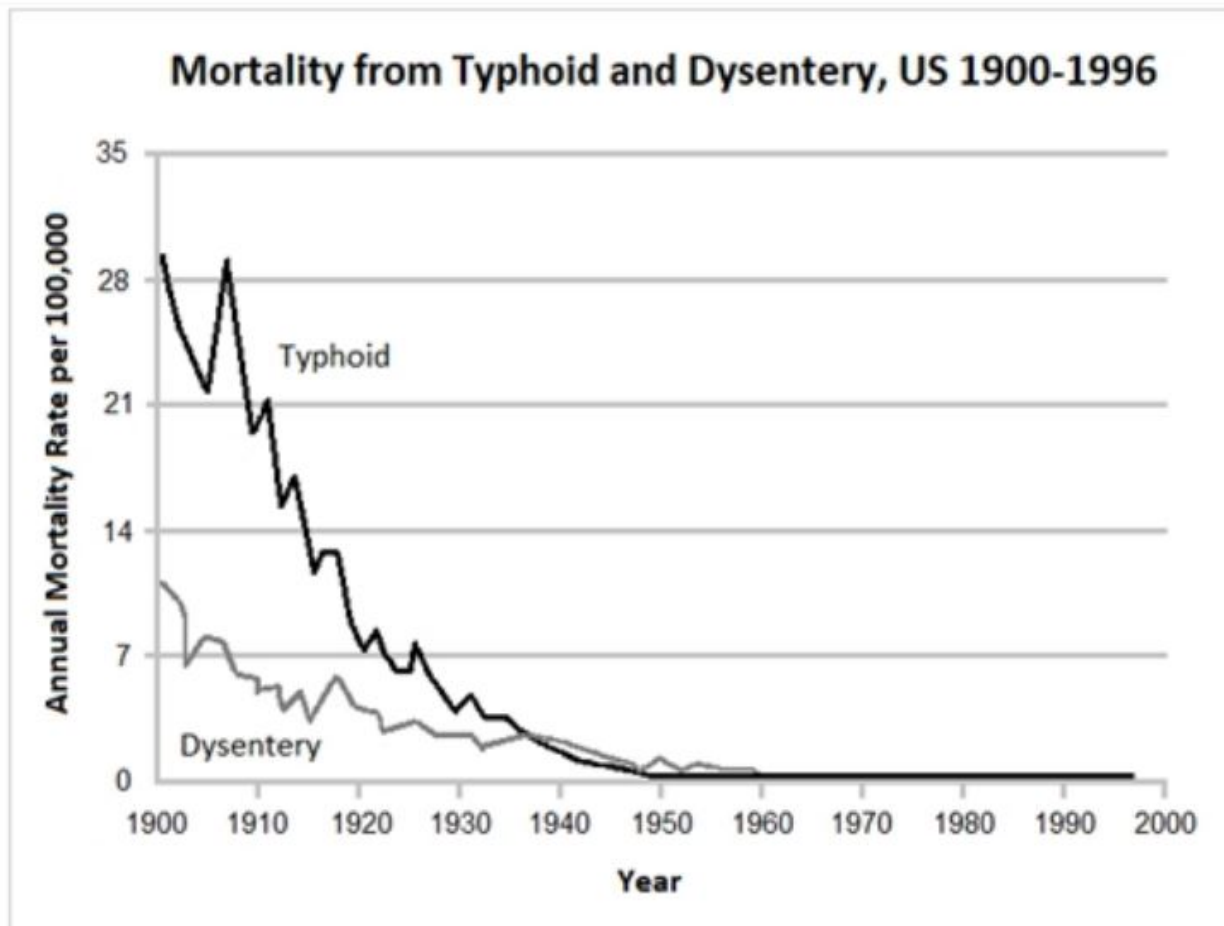

Figure 8-4: Death rates from dysentery and typhoid in the United States (1900 – 1996)

Kromě jiných faktorů měly změny v technologii městské dopravy, jako je nahrazení koní automobily, obrovský dopad vzhledem k tomu, že ty první produkovaly v průměru 25 liber výkalů denně, z nichž velká část byla rozptýlena po ulicích města. Městská závislost na koních zahrnovala další velká zdravotní rizika, přičemž New York City muselo během roku 1880 odstranit ze svých ulic asi 15 000 koňských těl. Mezitím chlazení výrazně snížilo spotřebu zkaženého nebo znečištěného jídla a pokroky v pochopení výživy zvýšily osobní zdraví.

Autoři zdůrazňují, že čtyřicet let poté, co McKeown a jeho spojenci vytvořili tuto „konceptní revoluci“, přední zdravotnické autority plně uznaly relativní důležitost těchto různých faktorů. Uvádí to zpráva Amerického lékařského institutu počet infekcí, kterým je zabráněno imunizací, je ve skutečnosti poměrně malý ve srovnání s celkovým počtem infekcí, kterým bylo zabráněno jinými hygienickými zásahy, jako je čistá voda, jídlo a životní podmínky.

Ale ačkoli akademická obec tyto skutečnosti vstřebala, stále nebyly široce šířeny a nebyla jim věnována náležitá pozornost. Většina publikací CDC například stále zavádějícím způsobem zdůrazňuje ústřední roli očkování, což vede k rozšířeným veřejným mylným představám. Podle Želvy vědecký konsenzus ohledně vedlejší role, kterou hrají vakcíny při snižování zátěže infekčními chorobami, se stal jakýmsi „otevřeným tajemstvím“ ve vědeckých a lékařských kruzích: Každý zná pravdu, ale nikoho nebaví sdílet ji s veřejností.

Želvy svobodně přiznávají, že některé hlavní nemoci byly z velké části odstraněny vakcínami, zejména neštovice, a také že vakcíny hrály důležitou roli při snižování nemocnosti – rozšířené nemoci – jiných, jako jsou spalničky, i když ne jejich úmrtnost.

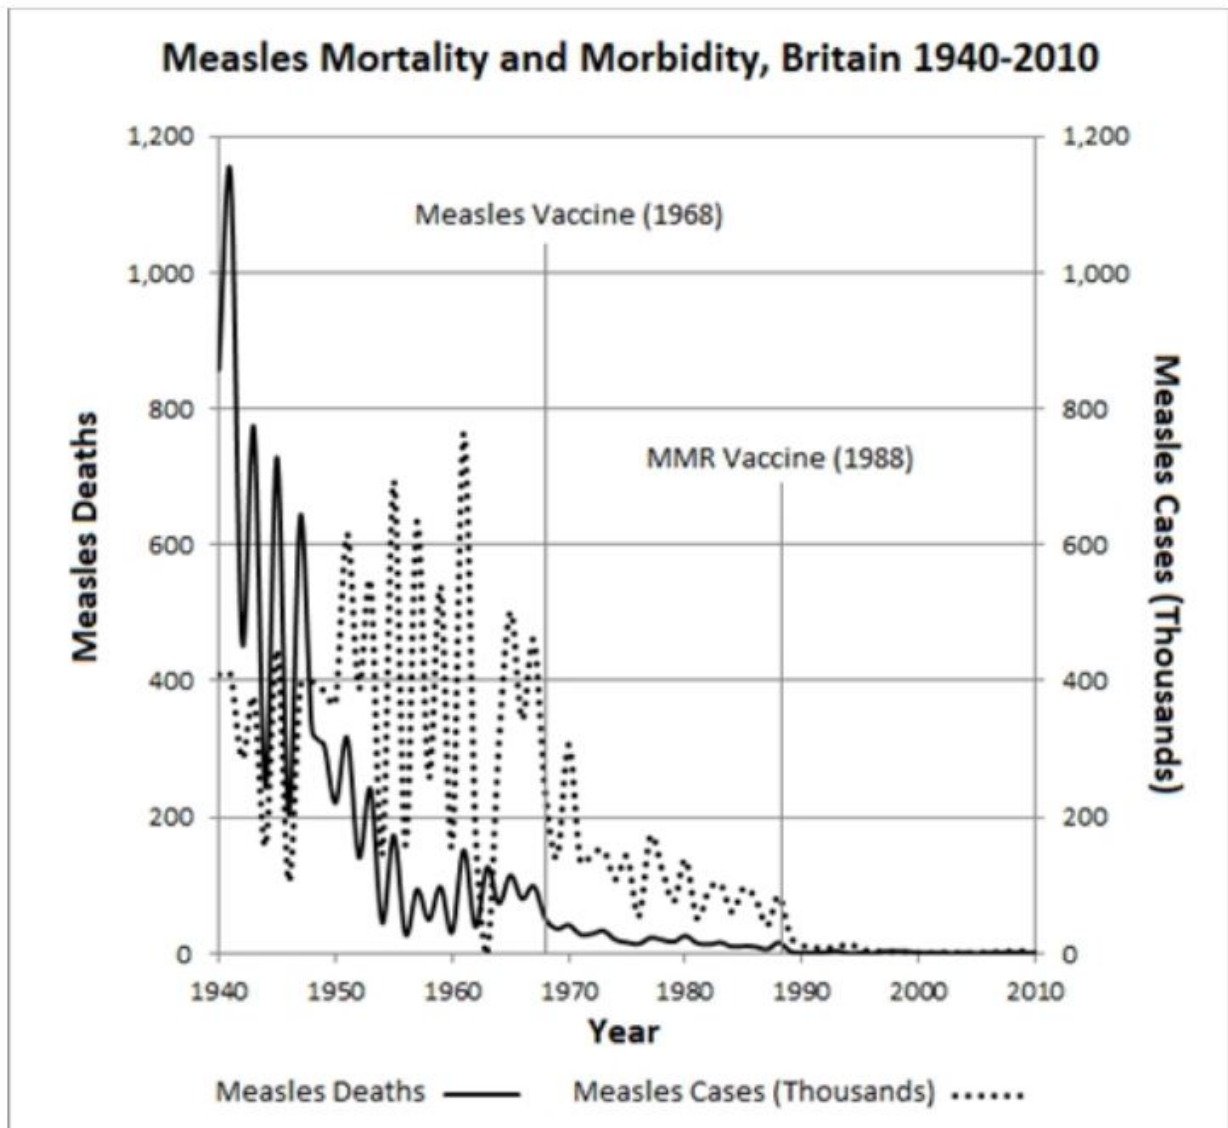

Figure 8-5: Measles morbidity and mortality in Britain (1940–2010)⁴⁷

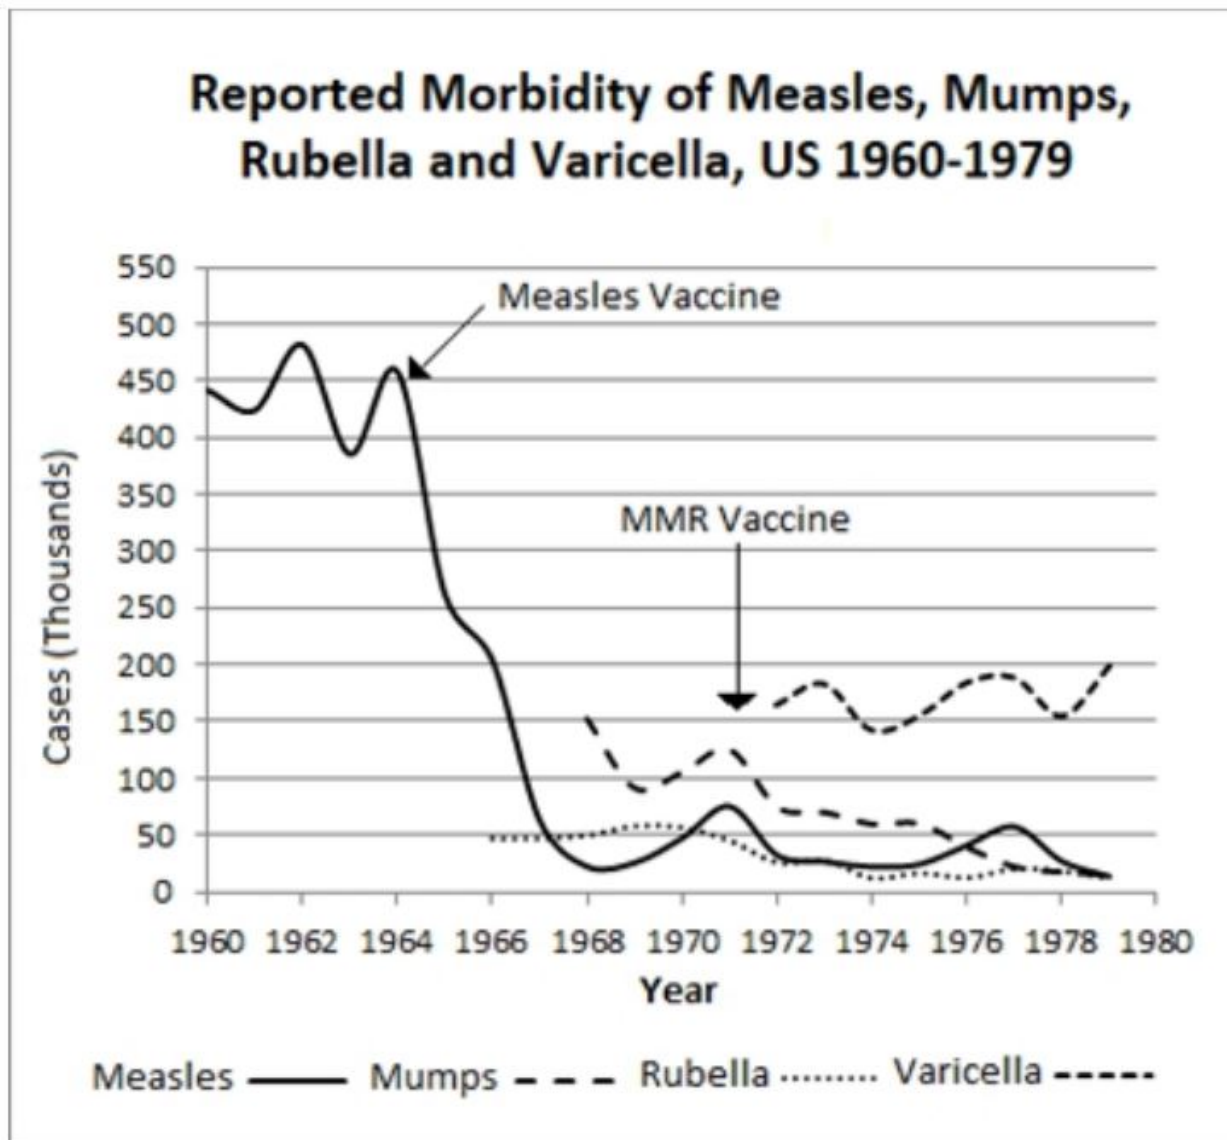

Figure 8-6: Reported incidence of measles, mumps, rubella, and varicella (chickenpox) in the United States (1960-1979)

Ale i tyto úspěšné příklady mohou vyvolávat složité, skryté otázky. Stejně jako rozšířené používání vakcín úspěšně eliminovalo různé nakažlivé, ale nefatální dětské nemoci, nastaly další důležité změny ve veřejném zdraví, někdy i zcela negativní. Například chronické, nevléčitelné nemoci jako astma, autismus a ADHD se poprvé začaly objevovat ve významných počtech nebo rychle narůstaly a brzy výrazně překonaly ubývající infekční nemoci ve svém vysilujícím dopadu. Navzdory tomu většině takových chronických nemocí věnovala jen malá pozornost ze strany CDC a dalších infekčně orientovaných zdravotnických organizací, které se raději nadále zaměřují na mizející střípek případů spalniček nebo příušnic, zatímco milionům dětí, které nyní trpí chronickými nemocemi, je věnována mnohem méně pozornosti. . Turtles vyvolává znepokojivé podezření, že tyto dva odlišné trendy mohou být přímo propojeny, což znovu naznačuje, že rozsáhlé studie by měly prozkoumat možné souvislosti těchto nových chronických onemocnění s vakcínami, které byly zavedeny zhruba ve stejném období.

Konečně, jedním z hlavních důvodů pro rozsáhlé, povinné očkovací kampaně byla role „stádní imunity“ při ochraně širší veřejnosti před infekcí, ale autoři tvrdí, že u většiny vakcín je tento případ ve skutečnosti mnohem slabší, než se obecně předpokládá. Vakcíny jsou často méně účinné při prevenci infekce nebo přenosu než při výrazném snížení příznaků onemocnění. To však umožňuje očkovaným přenašečům stále přenášet infekci na ostatní stejně snadno jako neočkovaní, čímž se eliminují sociální výhody, které by mohly ospravedlnit mandát. Do té míry, do jaké je to pravda, se požadavky na očkování zdají neopodstatněné, a to i v případě silně prospěšných vakcín.

Záhady dětské obrny.

Želvy prezentovaly všechny tyto problémy související s vakcínami a veřejným zdravím poměrně obezřetně, a přestože jsem mnohé z informací shledal docela překvapivými, téměř žádná z nich nevyvolala pocit nedůvěry. Předposlední kapitola knihy však byla zdaleka nejdelší, tvořila téměř čtvrtinu celého textu a její obsah byl mnohem šokující. Mám podezření, že jej autoři záměrně umístili na konec, aby dřívější čtení již zmírnilo skepsi čtenářů a snížilo pravděpodobnost, že tento výbušný materiál bude jednoduše zamítnut. Název kapitoly je „Záhady dětské obrny“ a první věta popisuje mohutnou budovu, kterou se směle chystají zaútočit:

Epický příběh o vítězství vědy nad obrnou – více než jakýkoli jiný popis boje proti nemocem, dokonce i pohádkový příběh Edwarda Jennera a jeho vakcíny proti neštovicím – je základním mýtem očkování.

Jak autoři naznačují, úspěšné použití vakcíny proti obrně k odstranění této strašlivé nemoci se stalo největším triumfem veřejného zdraví padesátých let, který zachránil bezpočet dětí před ochromující paralýzou a pozvedl vládu teroru, kterému čelily americké rodiny, a zároveň povýšil Dr. Jonas Salk a jeho vakcína k sekulární svatosti. Historie této hrůzostrašné nemoci a vakcíny, která ji vymýtila, se zdá být tak pevně prokázaná, jak jen může být v medicíně, se stránkou Wikipedie, která obsahuje více než 11 000 slov a obsahuje téměř 150 odkazů.

Přesto je pozoruhodné, že Turtles se snaží zcela převrátit toto dlouho zavedené vyprávění a tvrdí, že vědecká fakta jsou ve skutečnosti mnohem složitější a nejednoznačnější, než bych si já nebo většina ostatních čtenářů kdy představovali. I když tato jediná dlouhá zpráva může jen stěží překonat mou obrovskou domněnku ve prospěch tak zdánlivě dobře zdokumentované lékařské historie, vyvolala řadu zásadních problémů, které jsem nikdy předtím neznal, takže pouze předložím jejich argumenty a vybídnu zájemce, aby si přečetli knihu a pak se sami rozhodnou.

Autoři začínají stručným shrnutím standardní historie obrny a vysvětlují, že toto onemocnění je způsobeno virovou infekcí, která může vyvolat onemocnění podobné chřipce, ale která v méně než 1 % případů může také poškodit nervové buňky, a tím vytvořit dlouhé - termínová paralýza. Obrna zjevně existuje již tisíce let, přičemž nejstarším důkazem je egyptská stéla z roku 1500 př. n. l. zobrazující mladého muže s uschlou nohou podepřenou berlí a její první lékařský popis pochází z knihy lékaře vydané v roce 1789. Ale tato nemoc byla extrémně vzácná bez zaznamenaných propuknutí, takže se jí věnovala minimální pozornost až do konce 19. století, kdy taková propuknutí náhle začala v Evropě a USA. Ty se brzy znásobily a v roce 1916 si vyžádaly 9 000 ochrnutých obětí v New Yorku. , Záhada nemoci byla vyřešena v roce 1908, kdy byl izolován zodpovědný virus, a pozdější podporou FDR, sám ochrnuté oběti dětské obrny, byly investovány obrovské částky do studia nemoci a hledání léku. To nakonec vyvrcholilo vakcínami Salk a Sabin z počátku 50. let 20. století, což vedlo k vymizení nemoci v průmyslovém světě v 60. a 70. letech 20. století a jejímu konečnému téměř vymýcení jinde do konce dvacátého století.

Přesto autoři poznamenávají, že tento zdánlivě jednoduchý příběh, který jsem během let ledabyly vstřebával a nikdy ho nezpochybňoval, ve skutečnosti skrývá četné podivné anomálie, záhady, které byly ve vědeckých kruzích vždy známy, ale nikdy nebyly představeny veřejnosti. Neexistovalo žádné vysvětlení, proč propuknutí dětské obrny poprvé začalo na konci 19. století, proč byly zcela omezeny na průmyslové země a proč byly mnohem závažnější v létě a na začátku podzimu. Obrna se rozšířila a zesílila přesně v době, kdy většina ostatních infekčních chorob prudce ubývala, většina obětí neměla žádný identifikovaný kontakt s jinými infikovanými jedinci a neexistovalo žádné vysvětlení, proč virus napadá nervový systém jen velmi zřídka. Ukázalo se nemožné infikovat laboratorní zvířata orálně, protože se údajně nakazili sami lidé.

A kupodivu, ačkoli nemoc samotná byla údajně poražena a téměř vymýcena lékařskou vědou, všechny tyto záhady zůstávají dodnes nezodpovězeny navzdory více než stoletému výzkumu a některé z nich se staly ještě záhadnějšími.

Jak autoři zdůrazňují, „dětská obrna je jednou z mála nemocí, které se v moderní době staly hlavní hrozbou pro veřejné zdraví“ a dobře zdokumentované záznamy o jejím výskytu sledovaly velmi zvláštní vzorec. Počáteční epidemie v Evropě a Severní Americe byly dostatečně nápadné, že jasně představovaly nový fenomén, ale neexistuje žádné vysvětlení, proč náhle začaly.

Tato ohniska byla téměř úplně omezena na průmyslové země a v těch vzácných případech, kdy se rozšířila do jiných částí světa, byla nemoc téměř vždy omezena na obyvatele Západu a jen zřídka postihla místní obyvatele. Američtí vojáci sídlící na Filipínách se nakazili obrnou, ale místní Filipínci nikoli, a totéž platilo pro takové jednotky umístěné v Číně a Japonsku. Američtí vojáci rozmístění na Středním východě onemocněli dětskou obrnou desetkrát rychleji než jejich protějšky, kteří zůstali v USA, ale místní obyvatelé se zdáli být téměř imunní. Během časných čtyřicátých let byly případy dětské obrny pětkrát vyšší mezi britskými důstojníky umístěnými v Indii než mezi britskými vojáky a 120krát vyššími než u místních indických vojáků. Podobně, Britští důstojníci sídlící v severní Africe a Itálii měli téměř řádově vyšší pravděpodobnost, že onemocní obrnou, než vojáci sloužící pod jejich velením. Bylo zaznamenáno mnoho podobných případů tohoto podivného vzorce infekce, neúměrně zarážející osoby s vyšším sociálním statusem.

Takže přesně v době, kdy zlepšená hygiena, hygiena a strava způsobily dramatický pokles jiných infekčních chorob v průmyslových zemích, začala obrna svůj děsivý vzestup. Koncem 40. let 20. století vedla zaznamenaná tendence obrny udeřit spíše obyvatele Západu než místní obyvatele žijící jinde k teorii, že „zlepšená hygiena“ byla nějakým způsobem důležitým přispívajícím faktorem, což je závěr široce přijímaný mnoha špičkovými odborníky na obrnu. Aby to vysvětlily, byly formulovány vědecké hypotézy, které však byly záhy vyvráceny empirickým výzkumem.

Jak však autoři zdůrazňují, nejčasnější ohniska obrny v USA se ve skutečnosti řídila přesně opačným vzorem, soustředila se v nejšpinavějších a nejméně hygienických městských slumech, což vedlo k rozšířenému přesvědčení, že obrna je nemoc chudoby. Ale poté, co obrna v 60. a 70. letech ustoupila a nakonec v industrializovaném světě zmizela, se náhle znovu objevila v chudých zemích třetího světa rychlostí podobnou jejímu vrcholu v 50. letech na Západě. Takže v průběhu několika generací se nemoc, o které se všeobecně věřilo, že je způsobena chudobou a nedostatkem hygieny, proměnila v nemoc spojenou s blahobytem a přílišnou hygienou, ale poté se vrátila ke svým kořenům jako nemoc chudoby a špíny. Podle Želvy Tyto zcela protichůdné předpoklady byly někdy současně přijímány předními výzkumníky obrny. Tento velmi zvláštní vzorec infekce obrnou vyvolává zjevnou možnost, že skutečná povaha nemoci byla nějakým velmi zásadním způsobem nepochopena.

Zásadní bod, který Turtles zdůrazňuje, je, že na rozdíl od veřejného mínění může mít ochablá paralýza charakteristická pro obrnu ve skutečnosti velmi velké množství různých příčin, podle lékařské literatury možná až 200, přičemž většina z nich zahrnuje otravy nebo toxické chemikálie. . Ale v prvních desetiletích 20. století velmi vysoký profil dětské obrny znamenal, že označení „dětská obrna“ bylo téměř vždy okamžitě aplikováno na jakékoli takové fyzické onemocnění. V některých důležitých případech se později zjistilo, že to byla chybná diagnóza, ale autoři si kladou otázku, zda tento problém nebyl ve skutečnosti mnohem rozšířenější, než si v té době uvědomovali.

Jak zdůrazňují, koncem 19. století se muselo stát něco velmi dramatického, co způsobilo pozoruhodný nárůst výskytu paralytické obrny, a poznamenávají, že ve stejném období došlo k rozsáhlému zavedení nových barviv a pesticidů na bázi arsenu, olova a dalších potenciálně toxické chemikálie.

Jako podezřelý příklad vysvětlují, že farmáři na severovýchodě USA začali aplikovat arzeničnan olovnatý na své jabloně v roce 1892 a následující rok došlo k velkému nárůstu případů dětské obrny v oblasti Bostonu, jejichž počet se více než zčtyřnásobil. Tyto případy navíc vyvrcholily v sezóně sběru jablek a většina obětí pocházela spíše z venkovských oblastí kolem Bostonu než z města samotného. Ještě o desítky let později lékařští experti zdůrazňovali, že je velmi obtížné odlišit obrnu od poškození nervů způsobených otravou olovem a chybná diagnóza byla běžná. Autoři poznamenávají, že nárůst zjevných případů dětské obrny z několika každý rok na stovky nebo více se zdá být úzce shodný s rozšířeným používáním arzeničnanu olovnatého.

V tomto bodě želvy používají velmi zdrženlivý jazyk, aby nabídly pozoruhodně výbušnou hypotézu:

Předpoklad, že dětská obrna je infekční a nakažlivé onemocnění – tedy že je způsobena živým organismem (typicky bakterií nebo virem) a přenáší se z člověka na člověka – není ve vědeckých kruzích po mnoho desetiletí zpochybňována. Institucionální verze historie dětské obrny kolem sebe vytvořila silnou vrstvu betonu a každý vědec, který se dostatečně odvážil ji zpochybnit, bude pravděpodobně ignorován nebo zesměšňován. Nemoc, jak „každý ví“, způsobuje poliovirus – vysoce nakažlivý virus, který proniká do těla ústy a vylučuje se stolicí. Je ale obrna skutečně infekční a nakažlivá nemoc? Ponoření se do jeho rané historie naznačuje, že odpověď na tuto otázku není zdaleka tak přímočará nebo jednoznačná, jak by nás přiměl oficiální příběh o obrně.

Během prvních let vzestupu obrny byla povaha nemoci často sporná, přičemž kritici teorie infekce zdůrazňovali, že nemohli najít žádné příklady přenosu z člověka na člověka. Případy byly skutečně tak geograficky rozptýleny, že téměř žádná z obětí spolu neměla žádný kontakt. Mezi 1 400 zkoumanými případy méně než 3 % zahrnovala více než jednoho pacienta v rodině.

Mezitím došlo k mnoha dalším rozsáhlým případům takové paralýzy způsobené otrávenými potravinami. V Manchesteru v Anglii vypukla v roce 1900 záhadná epidemie, která ochromila tisíce lidí a zabila několik desítek, což bylo nakonec vysledováno vysokou koncentrací arsenu v kyselině sírové používané ke zpracování cukru v místních pivovarech. Později bylo zjištěno, že podobný problém na nižších úrovních způsoboval každoročně desítky záhadných případů ochrnutí v severozápadní Anglii na konci 19. století. V roce 1930 ochrnulo 50 000 Američanů v jižních a středních oblastech poté, co vypili patentovaný lék kontaminovaný toxickou chemickou látkou, a mezi konzumací a prvním nástupem příznaků obvykle uplynulo deset dní, což zcela zakrylo skutečnou příčinu.

Představa, že paralýza připisovaná dětské obrně může být ve skutečnosti způsobena toxickou chemikálií, se mi zdá udivující, není pro mě snadné ji přijmout, ale pomohla by vysvětlit velmi podivný vzorec nemoci a její zjevnou nepřenositelnost.

Mezitím autoři pečlivě zkoumají historické studie, o nichž se říká, že prokázaly nakažlivou a infekční povahu obrny, a považují je za velmi pochybné a neprůkazné, přičemž poukazují na to, že vědečtí kritici v té době vznesli mnoho stejných námitek. Ačkoli se zdálo, že opakovaná selhání experimentů prokázala, že infekce dětské obrny jsou výhradně u lidí, poznamenávají, že některé z prvních zpráv o vypuknutí venkovských epidemií uváděly, že podobné formy ochrnutí postihly také místní hospodářská zvířata, jako jsou koně, psi a drůbež. naznačující, že za to mohla toxická látka.

Takže přirozeně vyvstává otázka, proč byla v těchto raných studiích ignorována možná role otravy olovem nebo arsenem, které místo toho dospěly k závěru, že za to může virové onemocnění. Autoři naznačují, že to bylo způsobeno silným vlivem chemického průmyslu, který tyto nebezpečné sloučeniny prodával jako pesticidy pro pěstitele jablek. V té době byly takové chemikálie zcela neregulované americkou vládou a skutečně několik evropských zemí zakázalo americká jablka přesně z tohoto důvodu.

Autoři poznamenávají, že ohniska dětské obrny na severní polokouli měla tendenci vrcholit v letních a podzimních měsících, kdy byly nejvíce konzumovány ovoce a zelenina a také byly intenzivně postříkovány chemikáliemi, aby byly chráněny před škůdci. Naproti tomu u jiných infekčních dětských nemocí bylo mnohem méně pravděpodobné, že se vyskytnou během stejných měsíců, protože školy neprobíhají.

Obrna obrny se v Americe stala významnou nemocí koncem 30. let 20. století, ale její výskyt poté velmi rychle narůstal po skončení druhé světové války, zatímco ohniska začala postihovat také země jako Německo, Japonsko a Nizozemsko, kde se dříve vyskytovala. byl neznámý. První epidemie ve Francii, Belgii a Sovětském svazu byly zaznamenány až v 50. letech 20. století. Lékařští historici nemají žádné vysvětlení pro tento podivný vzorec, který povýšil obrnu na obzvláště děsivou nemoc, i když tolik dalších bylo konečně pod kontrolou a mizelo.

Autoři poznamenávají, že přesně ve stejnou dobu probíhala revoluce pesticidů, kdy se DDT stal celosvětově preferovaným insekticidem, levnou, silnou a dlouhotrvající sloučeninou, která napadla nervový systém běžných zemědělských škůdců. Ačkoli byla tato chemikálie oficiálně posouzena jako zcela bezpečná, dřívější zprávy ukázaly některé příklady zjevné toxicity pro člověka, včetně paralýzy jako symptomu. Podle některých lékařských kritiků v té době se zdálo, že vzorec překvapivého růstu infekcí dětské obrny jak v Americe, tak v dalších zemích obecně sleduje rozšiřující se používání DDT, ale ministerstvo zemědělství a další federální agentury jakoukoli možnou souvislost důrazně popřely.

Jakékoli přetrvávající pochybnosti o skutečné povaze obrny byly zdánlivě smeteny, jakmile byla v roce 1955 uvedena na trh vakcína Salk, po níž následovalo rychlé vymizení nemoci, ale autoři vyvolávají vážné pochybnosti o tomto zdánlivě nezvratném vztahu příčiny a účinku. Poznávají, že případy dětské obrny již několik let v celostátním měřítku prudce klesají a tento trend pouze pokračoval a o několik let později následoval znatelný nárůst výskytu obrny. Trajektorie v Izraeli byla ještě rozporuplnější, protože dlouhý pokles případů dětské obrny se po zahájení očkování skutečně zvrátil a o několik let později opět klesl.

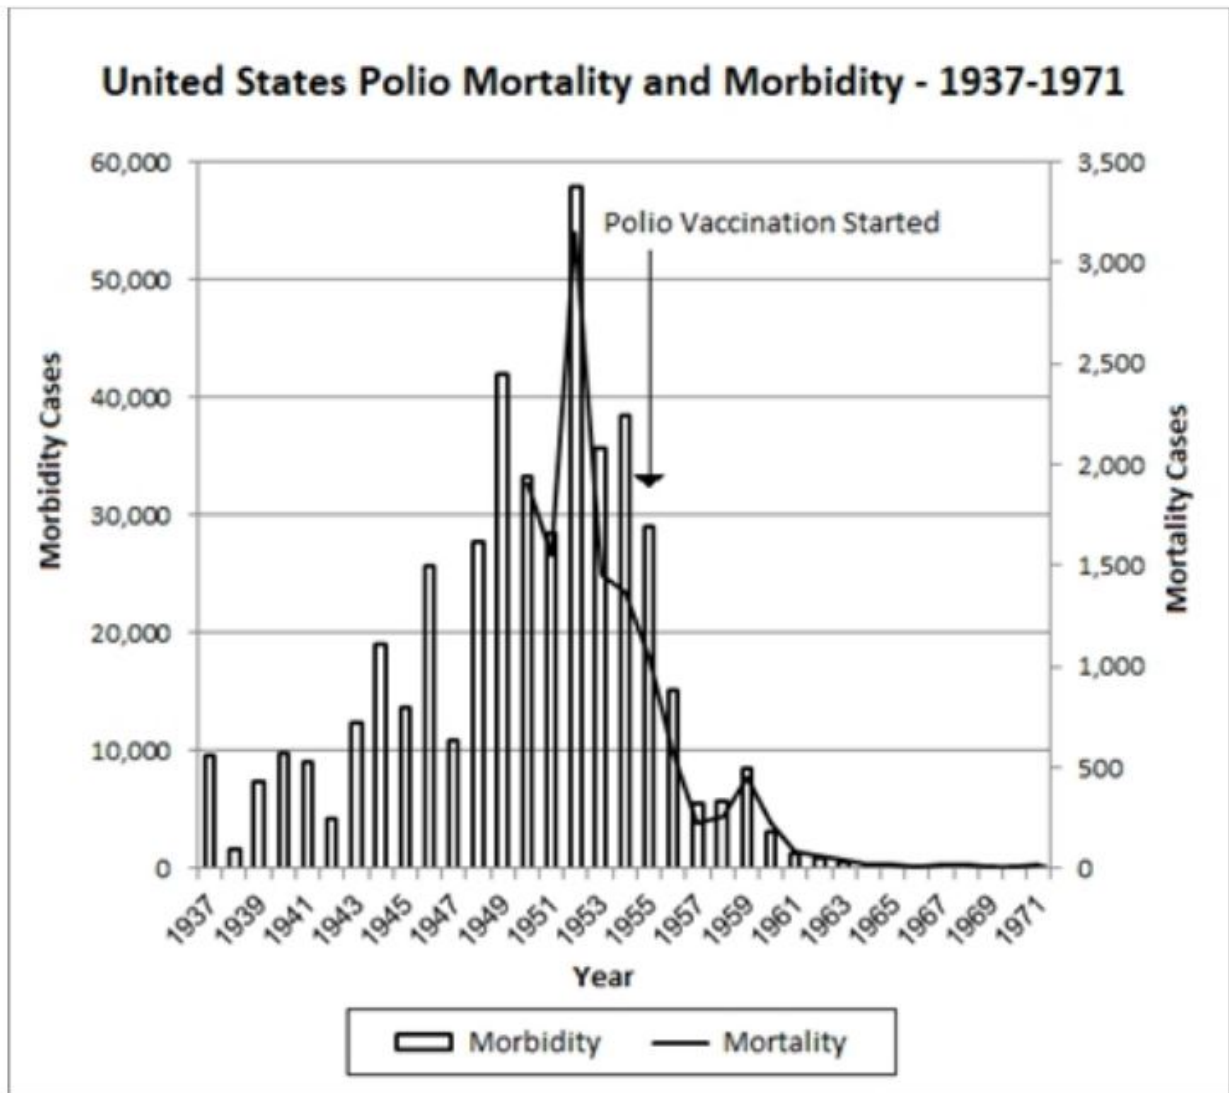

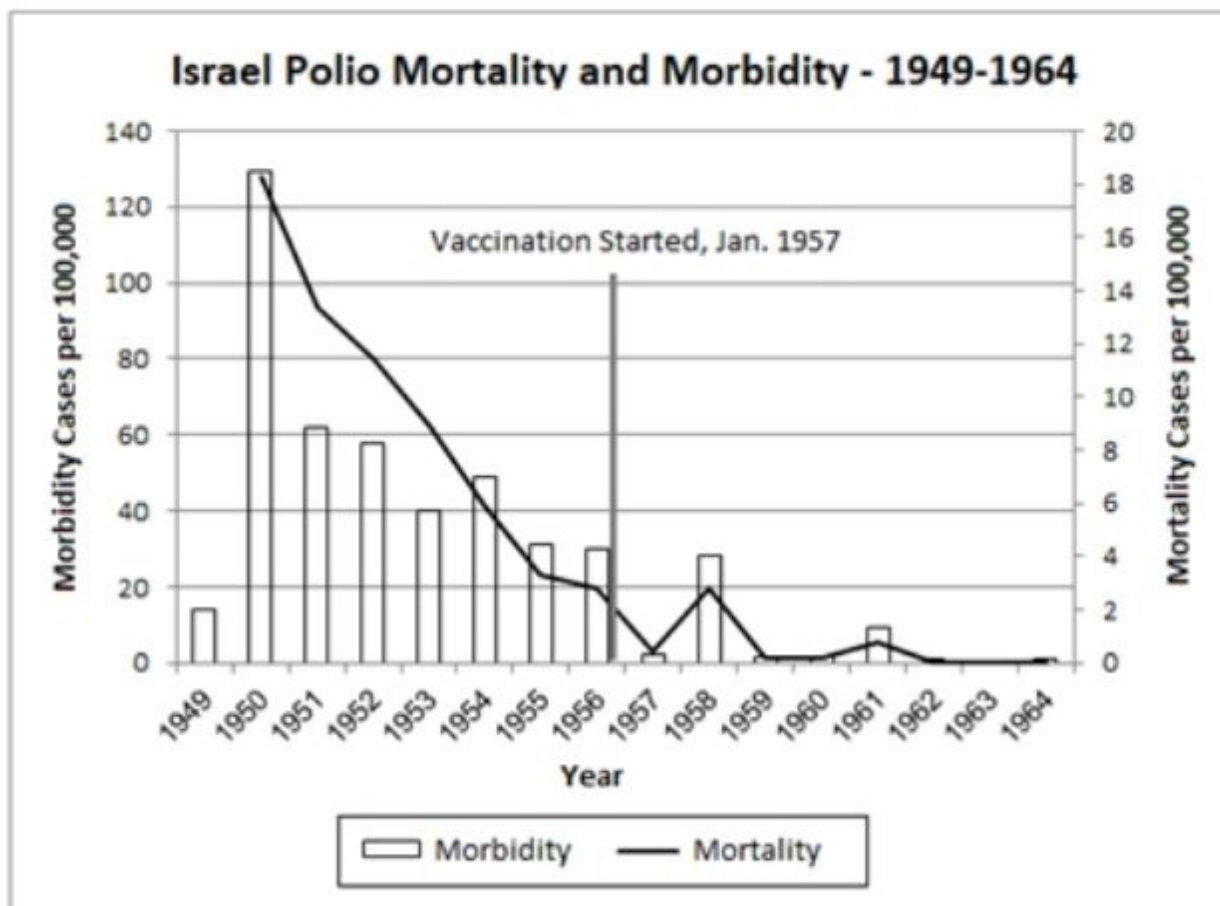

Figure 10-1: Polio mortality and morbidity in the United States (1937–1971)

Podle autorů se na počátku 50. let americké vládní agentury začaly tiše znepokojovat zdravotními účinky DDT a začaly odrazovat od jeho rozsáhlého používání, zejména při přípravě jídel a v domácnostech. Naznačují, že by to mohlo vysvětlit prudký pokles zjevných případů dětské obrny během let před zavedením Salkovy vakcíny.

Takže z jakékoli kombinace důvodů obrna do 70. let z velké části zmizela z USA a zbytku industrializovaného světa. Mezitím však rozšířené používání DDT a dalších pesticidů v mnoha zemích třetího světa bylo brzy následováno překvapivým nárůstem zjevných ohnisek dětské obrny, která byla v těchto regionech dříve neznámá, což vedlo k zahájení celosvětové očkovací kampaně v roce 1988 na její vymýcení. obrna.

Toto masivní úsilí bylo zdánlivě velmi úspěšné a do roku 2013 klesl počet hlášených případů dětské obrny o 99,9 %. Autoři však vážně zpochybňují toto triumfální vyprávění a upozorňují na souběžný, ještě rychlejší nárůst syndromu „Akutní ochablé paralýzy“ (AFP), fyzického onemocnění s podobnými charakteristikami, které však není připisováno viru obrny. Jestliže skutečný počet těžce ochrnutých jedinců zůstal konstantní nebo dokonce prudce vzrostl, možná bylo domnělého úspěchu celosvětové očkovací kampaně proti obrně dosaženo pouze předefinováním, lstí.

Přestože jsem většinu předchozích částí Želvy považoval za zajímavou a přiměřeně přesvědčivou, tyto mě jen stěží připravily na zápalný dopad této velmi dlouhé kapitoly o dětské obrně, která mě naprosto ohromila. Pouhá možnost, že jedna z nejslavnějších historických nemocí dvacátého století byla z velké části výplodem nesprávné lékařské diagnózy, jednoduše zmátla mysl.

Počet obětí dětské obrny byl relativně malý, ale její dědictví trvale zmrzačených dětí z ní učinilo zvláště děsivou nemoc, kterou nakonec porazily hrdinské objevy v lékařství Dr. Jonase Salka a Dr. Alberta Sabina, za něž první jmenovaný dostal Nobelovu cenu. Cena. Jak autoři prohlašují, vymýcení dětské obrny bylo vrcholným úspěchem masové vakcinace, která trvale ospravedlňovala toto opatření v oblasti veřejného zdraví a vedla k jeho rozsáhlému rozšíření. Můj pohled na všechny tyto záležitosti byl vždy docela konvenční a nikdy jsem nepochyboval o tom, co jsem četl ve svých novinách nebo učebnicích. Byl jsem tedy ohromen, když jsem narazil na 125 stránek – střízlivě napsaných a pečlivě zdůvodněných –, které vyvolaly vážné podezření, že nakažlivá nemoc ve skutečnosti nikdy neexistovala. Podobně jsem si vzpomněl na kontroverzi týkající se používání DDT jako pesticidu a jeho zákazu před půl stoletím kvůli hrozbě, kterou představoval pro divokou zvěř. Ale přijal jsem argumenty, že je pro lidi téměř zcela neškodný a nikdy jsem neslyšel o možném spojení s nemocí, natož o něčem tak významném, jako je ochrnutí připisované dětské obrně.

Mezi vytvořením vážných pochybností o zásadním vědeckém problému a jeho úspěšným překonáním je zjevně obrovský rozdíl. I kdybych byl ochoten zkontrolovat stovky odborných odkazů Turtles poskytuje na podporu své revoluční hypotézy, pravděpodobně bych neměl technické znalosti, abych je správně vyhodnotil. Vítězství nad obrnou je jedním z nejslavnějších triumfů moderní medicíny a její legie obhájců by jistě mohla vést k dlouhému vyvracení argumentů těchto anonymních autorů, vyvracení, která by museli pečlivě zvážit odborníci s odbornými znalostmi. efektivně tak učinit. Zvrátit naše ustálené chápání dětské obrny je druh monumentálního počínu, který by vyžadoval stejně monumentální odbornou debatu. Ale z mého pohledu i pouhé vyvolávání významných pochybností o tak zdánlivě ústředním prvku lékařské historie zcela ospravedlňuje čtení knihy těchto odvážných autorů.

Možná analogie s HIV/AIDS

Většina z nás má tendenci mnohem více respektovat oficiální narativy v oblastech, které jsme nikdy nezkoumali. Moje obsáhlá série American Pravda obsahuje četná historická odhalení, ale ještě před pár lety bych se extrémně zdráhal uvažovat o možnosti, že tak zdánlivě prokázaná vědecká záležitost, jako by povaha dětské obrny mohla být vážně zpochybněna. Nicméně v prosinci 2021 jsem četl úžasnou knihu od Roberta F. Kennedyho Jr., která obsahovala 200 stran představujících poněkud podobnou analýzu HIV/AIDS, nemoci, která strávila téměř čtyři desetiletí jako celosvětově nejprofilovanější nemoc. Podle jeho popisu byl smrtelný stav ve skutečnosti způsoben toxickou otravou, ale místo toho byl chybně diagnostikován jako infekční onemocnění přenášené virem.

Přesto podle informací uvedených v Kennedyho bestselleru č. 1 na Amazonu je tento dobře známý a pevně etablovaný obrázek, o kterém jsem nikdy vážně nepochyboval, téměř zcela falešný a podvodný, v podstatě se rovná podvrhu lékařských médií. Namísto toho, aby byl virus HIV zodpovědný za AIDS, je pravděpodobně neškodný a neměl s nemocí nic společného. Ale když bylo zjištěno, že jedinci jsou infikováni HIV, byli vystaveni raným, extrémně lukrativním lékům na AIDS, které byly ve skutečnosti smrtící a často je zabíjely. Nejčasnější případy AIDS byly většinou způsobeny velmi intenzivním užíváním určitých nelegálních drog a jako odpovědný byl chybně diagnostikován virus HIV. Ale protože Fauci a farmaceutické společnosti lačnicí po zisku brzy na této chybné diagnóze vybudovaly obrovská impéria, po více než 35 let velmi tvrdě bojovali za jeho udržení a ochranu, vynaložili veškerý svůj vliv na potlačení pravdy v médiích a zároveň zničili kariéry všech poctivých výzkumníků, kteří tento podvod napadli. Mezitím AIDS v Africe bylo něco úplně jiného, pravděpodobně způsobeného většinou podvýživou nebo jinými místními podmínkami.

Zjistil jsem, že Kennedyho popis je stejně šokující jako cokoliv, s čím jsem se kdy setkal.

Kennedyho tvrzení se mi zpočátku zdála naprosto neuvěřitelná, ale po týdnech dalšího čtení a vyšetřování jsem nakonec dospěl k závěru, že měl pravděpodobně pravdu. Ve svých následujících článcích jsem také poznamenal, že ačkoli na něj mainstreamová média zuřivě útočila z mnoha jiných důvodů, jeho kritici zachovávali absolutní mlčení o jeho pobuřujících kapitolách o HIV/AIDS a jejich překvapivá zdrženlivost jako by můj verdikt potvrdila.

Takže i když jsem stěží věnoval nějaké podobné výzkumné úsilí pozoruhodným vědeckým tvrzením uvedeným v Turtles, jsem mnohem otevřenější možnosti, že by mohla být prokázána jako správná. Pokud byl AIDS skutečně pouze fantomovým onemocněním způsobeným chybnou lékařskou diagnózou, možná totéž dříve platilo také pro obrnu.

WTF, Ron?

Also, I agree with all the deranged crackpots claiming that Damar Hamlin is dead. First we saw him die. Then we saw him lie dead on a football field for 9 minutes. Then we saw him taken away in an ambulance. Then the NFL paid some Jew to calculate how much money they would lose if their playoffs and Super Bowl were tainted by a sudden vaccine associated death.

Then they rolled out a body double wearing sunglasses in a snowstorm with a scarf over his face to “prove” Damar was alive and well, which of course only made people more suspicious. The NFL is literally trying to Weekend at Bernie’s this nigga. Now they released a pre recorded video of him without a bunch of shit blocking his face. As if it couldn’t be a deep fake.

Hi Ron, welcome to the party.

As in religion where there are believers, atheists, and agnostics we need to acknowledge that in the church of vaccineology there are pro-vaxxers, anti-vaxxers, and vaccine skeptics.

A former believer, I came to skepticism after a flu shot in Army basic training put me in the base hospital for four days. Four and a half decades later I am content to let the believers believe, the antis anti, and the skeptics agnosticize.

I hold to the toxic chemical /DDT provenance of polio, the organophosphate pesticide origin of mad cow disease/ Creutzfeld-Jacob Syndrome, the Rockefeller Institute of Medicine as the source of the Spanish Flu epidemic, and that bedbugs were the primary vector of smallpox.

There maybe no evidence currently for mass vaccine damage to the young...but what are the thresholds? What are we looking for, is there an increase among chronic conditions in the young?

As Sherlock Holmes would say, “give me clay if I’m to make bricks!”

There is also no evidence that the vaccine made any difference to mortality rates, at best the vaccine has placebo value.

Like the flu, by the time a vaccine has been developed the virus has moved on, thats why getting a flu jab is a waste of time and money, the pharmaceutical companies are the only winners.

My mother had all her jabs, didn’t help...she got the flu and died because she was old and the immune system was at its end.

I commend Mr. Unz for sharing his thoughts about Turtles All the Way Down, and the startling information the books contains. I appreciate his willingness to consider alternative viewpoints, even those that are highly controversial, and which has the potential of inviting much ridicule and criticism. Yet this is why many so many of us love this site and are grateful for the articles, including the freedom to speak our minds in the uncensored comments section.

I don't know if Mr. Unz will ever be an "anti-vaxxer" or even change his opinion about the medical merits of the Covid vaccine. Regardless, he continues to get us thinking – and that's a good thing.

Mr. Unz, there is also another book you should consult when examining the role of public health improvements, not including vaccines, on the role of waning mortality rates from infectious disease during the 20th century. The book is titled, 'Dissolving Illusions,' by Dr. Suzanne Humphries.

The authors of the book use this graph instead of yours when looking at measles mortality in the 20th century and the vaccine's near-negligible role in eradicating mortality. The hard work had already been won by increased sanitation, better diet, and less poverty.

Despite this knowledge, the mmr in particular is the one vaccine that is usually required for public school attendance. No other vaccine to my knowledge, including obviously the covid ones, are necessary for attending public schools. It's a travesty of science.

Fascinating...

I'm confused about the polio vaccine, though. If polio was not caused by a virus, how was a vaccine produced? Don't all vaccines essentially inject a little bit of a virus into your body in order to induce immunity? In this case, no virus would exist.

authors describe as the “founding myths” of public health, especially the supposedly crucial role that medical innovations such as vaccines had played in freeing us from the deadly diseases of the past. For nearly my entire life, I had always vaguely accepted these beliefs and had never seriously questioned them.

Me too. Those vaccine/time graphs were a major eye-opener.

Instead, the sharp reductions in disease mortality had overwhelmingly been due to [not being poor]

Turns out the Four Horsemen go together.

No war, no famine. No famine, no plague. No plague, no death. You don't really die of hunger. Your body is weakened and then you die of what should be a normal infection.

Without a famine, even if you do get a wave of fevers, nobody dies of them. At least, nobody under the age of average life expectancy.

Biologist Jean-Francois Gariepy brought this data up two years ago in his livestream show.

I too used to believe the “science” on traditional vaccines but the case to support childhood vaccinations is very weak. Now our children suffer from dietary allergies or asthma, diseases which were unheard of a few decades ago.

The original vaccine inoculating cowpox instead of smallpox may have genuinely improved prognosis at the time over smallpox infection but was cowpox vaccination a truly superior alternative to just giving the children a sufficient and healthy diet? Many children survived smallpox unscathed before there even was a vaccine.

Regarding mRNA vs traditional, you have to understand that virus vector vaccines(introduced in 1984 but only seeing dubious use) work through essentially the same same mechanism as mRNA vaccines. This is why Astra Zeneca causes the same issues as Pfizer and Moderna. Only attenuated virus vaccines like Sinovax are truly “traditional vaccines”.

If one Western vaccine was suspect(due to ADE and spike toxicity fears), it was enough to cast doubt on all of them as soon as all candidates were confirmed to be spike-protein based.

According to the foreword to the American edition, some months after its original publication the book had received a strongly favorable review in Israel's leading medical journal, but the senior academics who praised it were then harshly vilified by a medical establishment that was unwilling to directly challenge the substance of the text they had applauded.

I managed to find that “foreword” online.

The article in the September 2019 issue of Harefuah (“Medicine”), the leading medical journal in Israel, was authored by a pair of senior academic criminologists, Nati Ronel and Eti Elisha.

No link, naturally, and probably no translation even if a person could locate the piece. This is a book published by the ambitious and dishonest anti-vaxxer RFK Jr., written by two anonymous authors living in the Apartheid state, and hyped by antivaxxers galore. Therefore it must be wonderful!

Mr. Unz has managed to make the White Supremacists and their ravings he publishes here about the Dirty, Stupid, and Dangerous N*ggers look respectable by comparison to this unbelievably awful piece.

The Archive site doesn't have this book, and the Google Books copy is No Preview. I'm sure as hell not going to waste any of my money on such a pig-in-a-poke publication. Sending an equivalent check to a multi-millionaire Television Preacher would be a much better investment.

Then there is the Thalidamide story. And the Spanish Flu, which was not from Spain (Fort Riley) nor the flu (Bacterial Meningitis), and coincidentally emerged after testing a cholera(?) vaccine on troops. I have no medical training, so can speak only from experience in farming, where Pestivirus in cattle emerged as a concern 10-12 years ago here in Oz. I'm a 5th gen farmer, but had never been aware of this disease and its effect on animal health and fertility. Luckily Zoetis had developed a vaccine about this time, and sponsored lots of information sessions run by local vets to educate farmers on the disease, and the use of the vaccine. We could either vaccinate annually forever, or test for the disease and if herd were positive already and had natural immunity, then do nothing. If exposed when young few cattle had any issues falling pregnant, and it was only those calves born when mothers were exposed in the first trimester of pregnancy that may become Persistently Infected, shedding the virus continually and withering until death. Cattle and people are similar, sometimes called goyim even, and the animal health industry is always above reproach. Insert 'sic' where appropriate.

Congratulations, Ron Unz!

I understand that to a plastered but hungry Jewish boy (gone astray onto the straight?) it is not enough to throw a butter-sandwich. He needs the silver-service to satisfy an uncommon interest in truth.

So far so good (and bad), but – please – keep going further and further.

Following “Figure 8-6” you write that “the widespread use of vaccines was successfully eliminating various contagious but non-fatal childhood illnesses”.

Is it true? Does that graph real show that? No, it does not, because its spectrum is too small. Your previous greater graphs show that vaccines have no really proven positives.

Vaccines are disease spreaders onto healthy populations.

Vaccines are poisons and cripple people and can destroy peoples’ lives to the extreme. Figure that one out, since you seem to have plenty of time and money, while others live with the strongest boys crippled by polio- and measles’ vaccines.

Do you know what it means when your “strongest boy in town” starts crippling from the moment of forced injections by “school doctors” (of the Jewish government) with rashes, itching, excema, loss of skin down to the flesh, muscle atrophy, and more itching and scratching, more nervousness, up to complete physical “autism”, and as outside so inside a general sinking into despair?!

Do you know what that means?

Do you know what that means?

Do you know what it means when a boy tears his skin off during the night? Do you know what it means when the doctors only recommendation is to bind the boy's hand onto an iron bed, so that he can not scratch at night time?

Vaccination is a myth of bizznissmen in white coates fostered and now forced by Jewish controlled regimes for the benefit of Jew Pharma.

A cuck creep like Albert Bourla I would like to personally inject every minute of the scum's rest-life. And while I do a Jewish job on him he can sit at the microphone and lament about The Holocaust or The Science or truthers being criminals to be prosecuted.

The well poisoners have turned into the "respected" Jew Pharma, also called medical mafia.

You seem to like to reference the criminal org. called “Israel”...

Maybe you would also like to look into cancer treatment in Jewish occupied Palestine?

Israel treats Arabs (if at all) with Harvard’s / Mayo’s oncology but not Jews in Israel:

Cancerous Jews treat themselves with German Doctor Geerd Ryke Hamer’s “Neue Germanische Medizin”; i.e. primarily mental treatments without poisonous injections and without radiation. Such Israel’s cancer death rate is the lowest in the world. Figure that one out. I also doubt that the Israelis got Bourla’s Covid treatments as Germans did.

Amazing mentioning 1916 in re: polio incidence. My old man was born in a coal town in 1916 and had polio; unable to walk till he was 5. The Sister Kenny Method was used on poor kids and led to full recoveries — rich kids sent to expensive sanitariums were often maimed for life. That makes sense if it were caused by a poisonous neurotoxin.

After gaining full mobility from 5 years old on, the old man almost made a full century of mostly healthy and vigorous living. He was struck with a final illness at a crap table in Las Vegas — sad to see him go, but an okay end for a coal town polio baby over 9 decades later.

I guess Ron is just trolling us at this point...

But anyway, the surge of polio and then disappearance in that period has some strange characteristics that seem to make it closer to the “Minamata” incident (chemical poisoning) than to a cyclical contagious disease. And the vaccine in some cases has made it worse (cancer, cross-contamination with simian viruses, new cases of polio, etc). Remember, among other things, that at that time children were sprayed with DDT.

In any case, I am convinced now that vaccines are mostly a scam. A huge source of profit, so their efficacy is much touted, but in real life they show lots of problems and are nowhere near as “safe and effective” as they say.

As for autism, I don’t think it’s just the vaccines, it’s the whole of modern life, from the diet to everything else.

“As they emphasize, something very dramatic must have happened late in the 19th century producing the remarkable rise in the incidence of paralytic polio, and they note that this same period saw the widespread introduction of new dyes and pesticides based upon arsenic, lead, and other potentially toxic chemicals”.

If I were Mr Unz’s editor, I would firmly demand that he strike the adjective “potentially”. Arsenic, lead, and all other heavy metals are unquestionably and extremely toxic.

“Kennedy’s claims had initially seemed utterly unbelievable to me, but after weeks of additional reading and investigation, I had finally concluded that he was probably correct. I also noted in my subsequent articles that although the mainstream media ferociously attacked him on so many other grounds, his critics maintained an absolute silence regarding his incendiary chapters on HIV/AIDS, and their surprising reticence seemed to confirm my verdict”.

Mr Unz’s conclusions are quite unsurprising, given that like the vast majority of people he started from a position of unquestioning trust in many institutions such as government, the medical profession, and academia.

It’s very rare that anyone’s trust in the authorities falls to such a level that they are prepared to believe that the official accounts of polio, HIV, and other diseases are wholly untrue – and, what’s more, cynically and knowingly untrue.

But what could actually be less surprising than that those who “succeed” by making and selling poisonous concoctions should flatly deny the lethality of their products? Or that the government and other officials who thrive on the largesse of such industries should back them to the hilt?

John Maynard Keynes is said to have warned that capitalism is “the astonishing belief that the nastiest motives of the nastiest men somehow or other work for the best results in the best of all possible worlds”.

And no less a figure than Abraham Lincoln stated (in 1837, long before he became President) that, “Politicians [are] a set of men who have interests aside from the interests of the people and who, to say the most of them, are, taken as a mass, at least one long step removed from honest men”.

The people responsible for such mass poisonings are mostly desperate to pile up their own wealth and power, and many of them are sublimely unconcerned about the consequences for others.

Another very good book on much the same topic is, “Dissolving Illusions: Disease, Vaccines, and The Forgotten History” by Suzanne Humphries and Roman Bystrianyk (ISBN13: 978-1480216891). It contains massive amounts of evidence pointing in the same direction as the thesis of “Turtles All The Way Down”. To present only a handful of the most impressive facts it cites:

The 1916 New York polio epidemic was thought to have caused 23,000 cases and 5,000 deaths through New England and the Middle Atlantic states. The case fatality rate of 25% was far above the rate for “wild” polio of less than 1%.

“Three miles from the epicentre of the outbreak, Simon Flexner and his associates at the Rockefeller Institute at 63rd Street and York Avenue... had been passaging spinal cord tissue containing poliovirus, from one Rhesus monkey spinal cord to another... It is a remarkable coincidence that a unique neurotropic strain of poliovirus was developed a few miles away from an epidemic caused by a uniquely pathogenic strain of the virus... almost anywhere in New York was within a few streets of a rail link to the Rockefeller Institute”.

“Most people today don’t know about the infamous Cutter disaster. This was a virus-related poliomyelitis epidemic that was initiated by the use of the Salk vaccines just after they were rapidly developed and fast-tracked into licensure [sic] by the US Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. This record-breaking approval process took only two hours”.

[Otherwise, delegates were warned, the meeting would have to be adjourned till the following week – it couldn’t be prolonged past 5 pm, apparently – and they might have to travel to Washington or Bethesda! So they approved the vaccine].

“Well, NFIP did form an advisory committee. And they reformed it five or six times. Each time somebody didn’t agree, they dropped them and got somebody who might agree. By the time they were done forming the committee, everybody on it was distinguished, but very agreeable”.

“The reason there was not much paralysis among the vaccinated was because, as was already known, 80-90 percent of the childhood population at the time was already naturally immune to at least one strain of poliovirus... Anyone who was immune naturally would also, fortunately, have been immune to the corresponding vaccine virus”.

[Although by the same token they wouldn’t have had any need to be vaccinated!]

“You may be wondering how this information was concealed from the public for nearly fifty years. Congressman Percy Priest ordered and chaired a full investigation of the vaccine controversy. He admitted in 1956 that:

‘... in the previous year (1955) many responsible persons had felt that the public should be spared the ordeal of “knowledge about controversy”. If word ever got out that the Public Health Service had actually done something damaging to the health of the American people, the consequences would be terrible... We felt that no lasting good could come to science or the public if the Public Health Services were discredited”‘.

Table 1 on this page lists 33 recognized causes of Acute Flaccid Paralysis, including heavy metal poisoning, organophosphate insecticides, and the polio virus.

<https://www.health.qld.gov.au/cdcg/index/afp>

The text above the table states:

In the past, the most common cause of AFP in Australia was poliomyelitis. Now that polio has been eliminated in Australia, the two leading causes of AFP are Guillain-Barre syndrome and transverse myelitis.

AFP surveillance is important to document maintenance of Australia's polio-free status and to detect imported cases. Notification and public health response of AFP in all ages is required.

The Australian National Poliovirus Reference Laboratory (NPRL), in collaboration with the Australian Paediatric Surveillance Unit (APSU), co-ordinates surveillance for cases of AFP in children in Australia.

Specimens are referred from all AFP cases, both adults and children regardless of age. All cases are reviewed by the National Polio Expert Committee a subcommittee of the Communicable Diseases Network Australia (CDNA). Cases are classified as confirmed poliomyelitis, polio-compatible, non-polio AFP, or non-AFP.

Australia clearly takes AFP seriously, and it is likely that other developed countries have a similar approach.

The question raised by the article is what proportion of historic cases of AFP were wrongly attributed to infection with the polio virus. As Ron makes clear, few of us have the technical expertise to answer this question. Epidemiology is hard, but we can make progress by taking samples and painstakingly investigating each case. Historical epidemiology is much harder. We may never know the answers.

When I was a child, in the 1940s, polio was a much-dreaded disease. There were various old wives' tales about how to prevent it, and one of them was that fresh fruits and vegetables should be carefully washed before they were consumed. If the causative factor really was a toxic product on the skin of apples, this approach may have had some merit.

Interesting, but also has indirection. The original Salk-Sabin formulation was poor, and was also the apparent cause of many poliomyelitis cases in the years before it was adjusted.

Sure, as for corona, I am one of the many who may have accepted a vaccine that was an actual vaccine, but they were not on offer here.

In any case, seeing that excess death figures in many places are far higher post- than pre-vaccination campaigns, and that the 'vaccines' are admitted to have no prophylactic effect, I don't at all regret having avoided the jab.

Mr. Unz is still very stubbornly selective in which stats he notices and how he interprets them.

Plain facts: the novel corona was nowhere close to a civilization-threatening mass killer, 2020 excess deaths were within the range for a moderately bad 'flu season, many heavily vaccinated places subsequently have noticeably high excess death rates.

Medicine is a tricky subject – the body is an exceedingly elaborate system, sensitive to many varied inputs. The mind also plays a larger role than is usually acknowledged (see placebo/nocebo-effects).

When money rules, it can often be profitable to lump different ailments into the same category, or exchange one diagnosis for another. Buy our potions! ... sometimes they work.

It may be a case of both/and – as in, there may be an infectious virus, in rare cases producing the described symptoms, AND toxic influences producing the described symptoms.

If one goes only by the specific symptoms, and lumps all cases into the same box, that does not necessarily mean that it is the same cause in all cases.

Yours is mirroring my experience with cats.

Our cat-boy has never and will never see a vet (so God will).

He is as healthy and as roaming as can be.

Whereas farmers' cats, where regularly a vet comes around, often end up shrivelling and recatching eye-disease etc. despite having been vaxxed against.

| Interesting article. Are you apologizing to the anti vaxxers?

Not really. I'd never paid any attention to the "classic" anti-vaxxers one way or the other, so I don't have anything for which to apologize.

Meanwhile, all the data I've examined indicates that the Covid anti-vaxxers are totally wrong about everything, so they should be the ones apologizing to me.

| I'm confused about the polio vaccine, though. If polio was not caused by a virus, how was a vaccine produced? Don't all vaccines essentially inject a little bit of a virus into your body in order to induce immunity? In this case, no virus would exist.

Sure, nobody disputes that the poliovirus actually exists, and it was used to produce the polio vaccines. However, the argument made is that the poliovirus had no connection with the polio illness.

Similarly, there's certainly an HIV virus, but the weeks I spent reviewing the analyses of Prof. Peter Duesberg and others persuaded me that it probably had no connection to AIDS.

As Ron's sources point out, what had truly led to the decrease in communicable diseases and increase in life expectancy were the under-appreciated conquests of Civil Engineering and Public Health.

Every day, pampered, spoiled young adults with the minds of children, march in our city streets protesting, waving banners, hurling rocks, burning symbols of authority and menacing fellow citizens.

They haven't a clue about all of the well-intentioned effort that has gone into producing the infrastructure of clean potable water, storm and sewage disposal that has made their lives so fundamentally healthy. For God's sake! They shower in warm, hot water that is cleaner, freer from parasites than any humans anywhere have enjoyed since Time began. Literally, running this down the drain after having doused their bodies in it.

Their bodily wastes carried away by an extensive system of underground pipes, all carefully laid with respect to slope and capacity, to function out-of-sight, out of mind such that the protesters are so oblivious to what supports them that they believe that they can do away with that System and the White Men who conceived, designed and built it and live an even better life after it has been dismantled.

Absolutely, completely clueless. And thankless. Rule by the worst, the Ingrate.

“Turtles all the way down” is from a famous argument between Bertrand Russell and an old woman at one of his public seminars. As he tells it, he was explaining that some people still believed the absurd idea that the earth is flat. The old woman stated that everyone knows the earth is a half sphere, supported by giant elephants resting ultimately on the back of a giant turtle. So Russell asked “what is holding up the turtle?” And the old woman replied “You are a very clever young man, very clever, but it’s turtles all the way down.” As good an explanation of infinity as ever.

Vaccines have always been of some risk, but survivors benefited from not dying of some horrible disease. Smallpox is highly lethal and vaccination (somewhat less lethal) goes back to ancient China. George Washington ordered smallpox vaccinations of his troops, and Jenner of course came up with the much safer vaccination with cowpox in 1796. Smallpox is the “leopard that never changes its spots” and does not mutate to resistant forms; of course it has briefly escaped a time or two from labs, and is an important bioweapon in the toolbox.

Polio is usually taught as a modern disease, the result of “children not playing in the mud”. Until the 1900s hygiene was so bad that fetuses were exposed to polio in utero, and generally survived with no ill effects. Polio infection in non-exposed more developed and vulnerable children born with better hygiene was devastating to many, the iron lung being the trademark of polio.

Vaccines historically killed ~one in 100,000 children (sometimes more) and for a long time chickenpox and more dangerous diseases like measles and mumps were not seen as worth vaccinating. However, those vaccines are sterilizing, stopping infection and spread, and 1 of 100,000 children dying was a price to avoid raging epidemics and their effects.

Covid was known very quickly as a disease of the aged (like Alzheimers). Most Covid victims globally are over age 80. Younger victims are arguably dying WITH Covid (from cancer or other diseases exacerbated by Covid) rather than directly from the disease; most Covid victims actually die from a form of cytokine storm (over-activation of the immune response) than from the virus per se. Kawasaki's disease was very similar in Japanese children in the '60s and '70s, but was soon cured by immediate treatment with glucocorticoids (dexamethasone, methylprednisolone, etc). Glucocorticoids have long been Standard of Care for severe respiratory viral infections in animals, but of course "You are not a horse" as the FDA puts it. China published that glucocorticoids had a salubrious effect on serious Covid cases in March 2020; the UK "discovered" the same glucocorticoid effect in mid-June 2020, and even the WHO/ Fauci who had forbidden the use of glucocorticoids admitted that they might have a role in serious cases in August 2020. Leana Wen noted recently that, even without testing, positive responses to a glucocorticoid in flu cases suggests Covid. Glucocorticoids, cheap well-characterized medicines with well know toxicities, is the only useful drug class for Covid, despite the big, novel moneymakers (remdesivir, paxlovid and of course the "leaky" ineffective mRNA vaccines).

Of course the Establishment procurers for Pfizer and Moderna trumpet the mRNA vaccines' value (even though they DO NOT stop infection or spread of the virus), but Gazit et al, 2021 and other publications have shown that natural/ infectious immunity is 27-fold better at protecting from symptomatic Covid (and likely protects 27-fold better against Covid death; the mRNA vaccines had no significant effects on death in their EUA FDA clinical trials).

While models claim the mRNA vaccines prevented million of Covid deaths, the same modelers predicted 150-200 million bird flu deaths using the same methodology in 2005 (they overstated the danger by 150-200 million deaths). At present most Covid deaths are in the vaccinated. Poor countries with no access to vaccines fared much better than Western Rich countries. Probably people should ask WHY?

With all due respect to Ron — and I mean that. I'm not being sarcastic, it's his general disposition that has led him astray. Suffice to say, in certain periods and contexts relying on authorities and official pronouncements, if not data, is wholly unjustified.

The smarter we are and the higher our social standing, the more we're inclined to accept death and debilitation to avoid admitting we were played.

Not to put too fine a point on it, but salient question regarding not just the experimental mRNA injections but the governmental response in the form of lockdowns, shutdowns, masking and the rest of the madness, is when, if yet, you ceased to believe anything authorities said.

You will note that this is a stage distinguished from, and well beyond, skepticism, let alone giving the benefit of the doubt. As my early comments attest, that line was crossed for me when everyone who is anybody, including Ron, Borg-like declared China's response the model for the globe. It was actually much worse than that because it really was a religious-like faith in the technocratic wisdom of the CCP as the only hope to save the world.

That's now been memory-holed but I digress . . .

I confess, I expected cooler heads to prevail, at least in the West, with this crass totalitarian push. You really can't make it up, almost cartoonishly evil headliners like Fauci and Bill Gates were obeyed even though they unquestionably fall on the wrong side of whether any loving parent would leave their child alone with either of them even for just a few hours.

It ain't complicated. The so-called vaccines need to be immediately pulled from the market. The near total liability protection granted the makers needs to be pierced; those harmed will sue and the companies will be bankrupted.

The most important lesson we need to learn — and aren't even close to beginning to do so — is resist authority and authorized experts when it betrays common sense. At least when the risk of harm is high and most especially if it is being imposed upon children.

I'm sorry to inform that life ain't like the movies. The worst of the worst die in their beds at a ripe age, like Stalin. Nazis and nazi ideology are once again considered part of the solution by the West in Ukraine and beyond.

Ron, I think there must be a connection between the virus and at least some cases of the illness, or how is it that a “live” vaccine for use in countries where refrigeration is scarce, has apparently caused polio cases?

<https://www.npr.org/sections/goatsandsoda/2020/08/25/905884740/africa-declares-wild-polio-is-wiped-out-yet-it-persists-in-vaccine-derived-cases>

And there’s another type of polio that’s problematic. Sixteen African nations are battling outbreaks of what’s called “vaccine-derived polio.” This is a form of polio that stems from the oral polio vaccine used in lower income countries because it is cheap and easy to administer.

The oral vaccine contains a live but weakened version of the polio virus. The virus replicates inside the child’s intestine and eventually is excreted. In places with poor sanitation, fecal matter can enter the drinking water supply, and the virus is able to start spreading from person to person. That was once considered a useful feature of the oral vaccine, since it can help unvaccinated children become immune. However, in rare cases in places with poor sanitation and large numbers of unvaccinated children, the attenuated virus can mutate in the wild and regain strength to the point where it can cause paralysis.

<https://www.nature.com/articles/d41586-020-02501-3>

Africa declared free from wild polio — but vaccine-derived strains remain
No new cases of wild poliovirus have been recorded on the continent since 2016, but other types of the virus persist.

Explain this:

During the past 20 years, China has made tremendous efforts to increase access to ART regimens through the gradual expansion of the NFATP, and has continually sought to evaluate and optimize these regimens for Chinese patients. Serial domestic multicenter studies have confirmed the efficacy and tolerability of available antiretrovirals in Chinese patients, elucidated differences in toxicity profile for certain agents, presented novel strategies to minimize the occurrence of known adverse events, and identified affordable regimens that can be utilized in low-resource settings when patients are not candidates for the first-line regimens. These successes have enabled a dramatic reduction in mortality from HIV/AIDS over the past two decades, and the number of patients on long-term ART is now over 800,000.

I am not making a claim, only highlighting this: Ron's article correctly points out that lung cancer increased dramatically in the early 20th century. He attributes this to the increased consumption of tobacco, presumably cigarettes.

However, smoking and tobacco use was certainly common in the 19th century. What changed in the 20th century was the overt use of not only chemical pesticides but also of chemicals to increase the "potency" of the drug nicotine. These facts as regards the mass-production of cigarettes are well established. They do not prove anything, but they are facts.

As always I implore anyone reading this to read Erectus Walks Amongst Us in the controversial HTMLs here at The Unz.

‘Meanwhile, all the data I’ve examined indicates that the Covid anti-vaxxers are totally wrong about everything, so they should be the ones apologizing to me.’ — Ron Unz

‘Totally wrong about everything.’ Wow ... hyperbole much? Why the vituperativeness? A little hung over this morning? Picked on by ‘agitated women from affluent suburbs’ at the supermarket yesterday?

To his credit, Ron finally mentions VAERS, only to dismiss it with the own-goal objection of ‘under-reporting.’ This well-documented shortcoming of VAERS suggests that the unprecedented 1.5 million adverse reactions to mRNA shots reported to VAERS might actually be a subset of 5 million or even 15 million total adverse events.

How many does it take? Would 100 million adverse events be enough finally to ban these injections?

In any event, the PRR (Proportional Reporting Ratio) methodology used in the CDC’s long-delayed report on mRNA injections — which identified 770 (seven hundred and seventy) safety signals — largely neutralizes acknowledged weaknesses in the VAERS database.

Now independent analysts are providing spreadsheet-format weekly updates of mRNA jab safety signals, using the CDC’s own PRR methodology:

<https://vaersanalysis.info/2023/01/28/cdc-vaers-safety-signals-summary-for-covid-19-vaccines-through-1-20-2023/>

Mr Unz,

Congratulations on your partial awakening.

I note that you are coming closer to surprised agreement with the entire historical scam of disease and vaccines with one noted exception.

You can't bring yourself to confess that you have been fooled.

You allow utter nonsense to account for the 15 to 25% increase in death in all majority vaccinated countries since the deployment of the clot shot. You dismiss it with the lightest of statements. You still buy the COVID narrative. 15 year olds falling dead on the soccer field as a residual of COVID? Seriously?

There has never been a single instance of successful and beneficial human genome modification in the history of humankind. Not one.

CRISPR-Cas9 held so much promise, but all attempts at beneficial employment have resulted in death of the recipient usually as a result of a massive cytokine storm. The clot shot defeats this reaction. But it kills in so many other ways we have not yet been able to count them.

I sincerely hope you will not be taking a booster shot. I look forward to your full awakening. You appear to at least have the willingness to become a sceptic of the official narrative.

Look at arthritis and cancer for the huge array of symptoms and effects those words cover. The medical establishment is quick to diagnose an illness by applying a label to it, but fall far short on doing anything substantive about it.

Medicine as practiced in the ‘west’ was established by Rockefeller as a way to take his Standard Oil product, namely crude oil, and manufacture a demand for it to produce all the pills and potions “doctors” still prescribe. Psychiatry was saved from being labeled the fraud that it is by the vast sum of money pumped into legitimizing it so that all the toxic drugs could find a demand resulting in more oil sales.

In the long run, we all die, but some will die sooner than they might have. We just don’t know whom or why.

The COVID vaxxes are still in Phase Three trials, and still accumulating longer-term data as time passes.

As for excess deaths being the product of COVID, perhaps ... then again, there is plenty of anecdotal evidence and some research that suggests that the vaxxes make folks more susceptible to contracting COVID. Chicken or egg. The vaxxes tend to result in more cytotoxic spikes in the blood for a longer period than a garden variety mucosal/respiratory contraction of the SARS-Cov2 virus, so who knows at this point if the cure really is or isn’t worse than the illness left to run its own course.

Could be a coincidence, and there are a lot of other possible explanations, just seems too coincidental. How could it be that every autistic child I'm familiar with has at least one parent who were cocaine users? Obviously, parents aren't going to want to admit they caused their child's disability, so it might be impossible to prove a correlation, but it is strange.

At the beginning of the depopulation agenda , reports were that 1 out of 3 shots were the kill shots to avoid panicking the people and then the boosters all were the kill shots and the boosters continue to be the kill shots, this has been reported on sites such as henrymakow.com, rense.com, thetruthseeker.co.uk, stevequayle.com, healthimpactnews.com, etc., etc., this is a genocide operation.

The mere possibility that one of the most famous historical diseases of the twentieth century had largely a figment of medical misdiagnosis simply boggled the mind.

Well, having your mind boggled every so often is probably a good thing.

I've been leery of vaccines for some time now. The original HIV thing traced back to Africa's Green Monkeys. The Conspiracy Theory at the time was that Polio vaccine samples had been sent to Africa where they were manufactured using indigenous workers and materials. Someone substituted Green Monkey kidneys instead of Chimpanzee kidneys, thus contaminating the African polio vaccines.

The HIV connection came about when people made a map of the African villages where the AIDS outbreaks occurred and overlaid it with the villages where the polio vaccine had been administered. They found a very strong correlation.

The problem came about during the manufacture of the vaccine. The original vaccine from Salk tested as clean. Unlike the Simian Virus 40, (SV40), contaminated polio vaccines, which were also widespread and may have led to some of the increase in cancers.

The mRNA vaccines have problems with dosage and getting them to stay in place. They tend to wander about, especially when injected into a vein that leads back to the heart. The spike protein produced is small enough to pass through the blood brain barrier. Wherever the nano-particles land, they set up shop, creating spike protein in an unregulated manner.

Anyway, the one constant in these industrial grade disasters seems to be greed and the desire to cut corners.

It is good to remember the extreme hubris is often punished by the Gods.

Bill Gates — After Reaping Huge Profits Selling BioNTech Shares
— Trashes Effectiveness of COVID Vaccines

“Bill Gates, long recognized as one of the world’s foremost proponents of vaccines, raised some eyebrows at a recent talk in Australia when he admitted there are “problems” with current COVID-19 vaccines.....

“He invested $55 million in BioNTech back in 2019 and it’s now worth north of $550 million. He sold some stock ... at the end of last year, I believe it was, with the share price over $300, which represented a huge gain for him over when he invested.”

This is normal?

Also, why are people who have had non-cv19 vaccines throughout their lives, but don't want any cv19 vaccine, being categorized as "anti-vaccine?"

Mr. Unz, I greatly appreciate your independent assessment of seemingly well established issues and your arriving at new conclusions, even if 'unorthodox' and unacceptable to the establishment. I have spent a large part of my professional career in the development of vaccines, both clinically and preclinically. I was also involved in the early stages of the mRNA technology. I do not share many of the claims of the so-called anti-vaxxers predicting (hundreds of) millions death from the Corona vaccines. Yet I do not agree with your conclusion that the medical establishment was quite right in judging them as undangerous. For one, in the vaccine field the iron rule of the field was that they must be 1) safe, 2) safe and 3) safe. It is not exactly rocket science to estimate the relative risk of dying after vaccination vs dying from Covid-19. Doing this in mid 2021 on the basis of European Eudract, US VAERS and German PEI data, resulted in a risk $\gg 1$. Before 2020, a figure of e.g. 0.1 would have been considered exceedingly and unacceptably high. Using realistic and commonly accepted assumptions as to the underreporting to these databases, that figure was high in the double digit figures, if not higher. There is an excess mortality in several European countries, at presently to be seen clearest in the UK ONS data. There is a drop in birth rates in multiple countries starting roughly 9 months after the beginning of the vaccination campaign. In fact, what we see right now exceeds my wildest fearful expectations. Moreover, there is a plethora of pathophysiological data available now that demonstrate several causative pathways. Also; the temporal association of deaths recorded after vaccination with the date of inoculation in my mind irrefutably demonstrates a causative role of the vaccines also from that angle.

I always took for granted that the claims for established vaccines were based on well performed, large scale trials. That this is not the case for some of the most prominent vaccines, is deeply shocking. Prof Sucharit Bakhdi has recently said that he started to revisit and challenge what he taught his students for 30 years. Independently, I and several colleagues arrived at the same conclusions. As you, we considered the ` anti-vaxxers´ kind of a bizarre sect of people spoiled by affluence. It appears that we – at least in general terms – were quite wrong.

' The title of the chapter is "The Mysteries of Polio" and the first sentence describes the towering edifice they are boldly preparing to assault:

The epic tale of science's victory over polio—more than any other account of a fight against disease, even the fable-like story of Edward Jenner and his smallpox vaccine—is the foundational myth of vaccination.

Just as the authors suggest, the successful use of the polio vaccine to eliminate that dread disease became the greatest public health triumph of the 1950s, one that saved countless children from crippling paralysis and lifted a reign of terror facing American families, while elevating Dr. Jonas Salk and his vaccine to secular sainthood.'

Jonas Salk was a Jew and they said his vaccine was given away for free.

My worldview is correct again.

Thank you, Ron Unz.

I'm buying the book now. I read the entire RFK, Jr. book and became highly informed on Fauci and his pharmaceutical crimes. Thank you for reviewing that one.

Regarding polio, I'm old enough to have been in the first groups injected. I always remembered it as being in the fall of 1954, but your graph shows 1955. Maybe we were trials. It was at a public school just down the street from my house.

I had an uncle and a classmate who had "contracted" polio in the early 1950's. My uncle was the youngest of the family and worked with his dad, my grandfather, in his vegetable and strawberry patches, applying insecticides. The older sons went to war, got married and were away from the farm by 1945, when DDT was first widely available for use in the USA.

So the thing is that a virus is assigned as the cause of a syndrome which is actually caused by some separate toxic substance or behavior. Then the virus can be prevented with a vaccine, while, at the same time, some other effort is being aimed at the syndrome. Large amounts of money are usually in place to insure that the correct conclusions are drawn.

Sounds a lot like the past three years. We're just not at the general revelatory stage with the CV19 fraud.

Another excellent American Pravda piece! Since Wikipedia's Run Unz entry and its source, Ben Sixsmith's Spectator article, blame me for turning Ron into a Holocaust-denying conspiracy theorist, I wonder if they'll now add that it's my fault he's become an anti-vaxxer ; –)

For the record, while I think Ron has effectively debunked the high-end COVID vax death estimates, I am still very happy to have remained in the control group. As I wrote to him in an email:

The vaccines' cost-benefit profile may not be as positive as you suggest. A pattern of "very high excess mortality in 2020, reasonably high in 2021 and no excess in 2022" is pretty much what we'd expect even without vaccines, as the disease kills the low-hanging fruit, runs its course, and evolves to become less virulent and more endemic. It's conceivable that the vax is killing far fewer people than legacy COVID and delta did, but relatively more in the omicron era (though not enough to make a big dent in the stats).

As I understand it the vaccines have negative efficacy in the first month – you are significantly more likely to die of COVID during that month than if you hadn't been vaxxed – then strong efficacy for about five months, which then rapidly wears off. The boosters have the same pattern only compressed, losing efficacy in three months, and then even faster for subsequent boosters. Once your latest vax/booster has worn off you are probably worse off than if you hadn't been vaxxed. Recent studies have shown that there is a direct positive correlation between the number of shots you've had and your likelihood of catching COVID. These reinforce earlier studies (mid-2021 as I recall) showing that vaxxed people were becoming COVID cases at higher rates than unvaxxed people.

And then there are the negative side effects (short of death) that seem to be much worse and much more frequent than early reports indicated, not to mention the possibility of long-term effects, like the cancers from the 1950s polio vaccines and the autism and autoimmune diseases from the childhood vax regimen.

So while I'm sold on your debunking of the high-end death numbers, I'm not sold on the vax.

| However, smoking and tobacco use was certainly common in the 19th century.

Don't get too confident of your history. Smoking became much more common during the Civil War, when soldiers of both armies came into close contact with tobacco production. Letters home and anecdotes produced by reporters with the troops indicated a very general understanding of the dangers of excess inhalation of smoke produced by tobacco.

Ulysses S. Grant was a chain smoker of cigars and died young of a rapidly developing lung cancer. Anecdotes are more important in understanding history than all the statistical analysis any graduate assistant can come up with in his dreams.

They shot me up with two useless and dangerous doses of snake oil, not 40 to 70, so I never got the crooked smile and crosseyes of baby's first stroke. I didn't drop dead in Mommy's loving arms. They cut a little strip off my dick instead of ripping the whole shebang apart and turning it inside out and stuffing it inside me and whatnot. They poisoned us with natural chemicals, Mother Earth's bounty like lead and arsenic, not synthetic life forms disguised from our immune systems to replicate inside us and irreversibly taint our genes. Those really were the good old days, relatively speaking.

Steve Kirsch and Alex Berenson are two writers who strongly disagree with your conclusions. They make excellent arguments which they argue prove the dangers of the vaxx and they are very convincing. I read somewhere that you were in contact with Steve Kirsch and I'm interested in whether his arguments have changed your opinion, or the reasons they didn't.

Sure. Kirsch got in touch with me and we spoke for about an hour. He seemed very surprised by my mortality statistics and said he wanted to carefully digest them and then possibly produce a response. That was over a week ago, and I haven't heard anything else. However, my analysis focused entirely on the non-elderly, and a day or two later he Tweeted out that the elderly were the ones at greatest risk from the Covid vaccines:

I now have data to prove that the COVID vaccines cause death, ESPECIALLY in the elderly. Doctors should never advise the jabs for elderly patients. Will anyone bet me $1M I'm wrong?? Pfizer? Moderna? Anyone at the CDC, FDA, or FAA???

PLEASE.... accept my bet!!! pic.twitter.com/LMvMH7WhtW

— Steve Kirsch (@stkirsch) January 26, 2023

As for Berenson, he also emphasized that by excluding the elderly I was missing the crucial dangers of the Covid vaccines:

A guy named Ron Unz has written a piece purporting to debunk the rise in all-cause mortality in the mRNA countries, focusing mainly on deaths of adults under 65 in France and a few other countries. The piece has gotten love from jab advocates, but it's wrong. Here's why. pic.twitter.com/eRigJ3uK91

— Alex Berenson (@AlexBerenson) January 25, 2023

Kevin Barrett traded emails with him, suggesting that he debate me on Covid vaxxing risks, but he hasn't taken up that offer.

i fall into that vax/anti-vax paradox. my initial gripe about the covid vaccines partly had to do with the reported rapid evolution of the virus, which would likely render the vaccine more or less useless, as with the seasonal flu vaccines which are forever treating the last variant. see below example re this intractable problem.

Viruses can change over time. Sometimes these changes make antiviral drugs less effective at combating the virus they are targeting, meaning those drugs won't work as well or might not work at all.

TPOXX works by inhibiting a viral protein, called VP37, that all orthopoxviruses (e.g., smallpox virus, monkeypox (mpox) virus, vaccinia virus) share. However, as noted in the drug label, TPOXX has a low barrier to viral resistance. This means small changes to the VP37 protein could have a large impact on the antiviral activity of TPOXX.

CDC scientists are actively monitoring for changes in the monkeypox (mpox) virus that could make the virus less susceptible to TPOXX. Because of the potential for the virus to become resistant to TPOXX, it is important the drug be used in a judicious manner.

<https://www.fda.gov/emergency-preparedness-and-response/mcm-issues/fda-mpox-response#therapeutics> yes, important to use in a judicious manner. hmm. imho, all of the debate over the covid vaxes sunk the mass roll out of the monkey pox vax.

One explanation is that toxic metal exposure from pesticides damages the intestinal lining and allows one or more viruses to infect the nervous system and cause paralysis. In the case of vaccines, the adjuvants (e.g. aluminum, thimerosal) play the same role as DDT/lead arsenate. In this scenario, the toxins are a co-factor with polio virus (and other viruses such as enterovirus). See The Moth In The Iron Lung book for more details.

FYI if anyone on this list has polio and is looking for treatment options, my wife is a holistic physician and yoga teacher who developed protocols to treat her own case of polio see <http://www.healingutrust.com> for more information.

The things were believe because some authority or another tells us that something, some fact, some data, some information, is a truth rather than an empty benediction. Recall the talking heads like marionettes bleating the same tune day after day that we are in grave danger from COVID. ...And the suggestion we are in grave danger without the shot, the mask, the quarantine.

If the implications of non compliance were not a serious matter — in most cases the threatened risked the loss of their livelihoods — I should have died laughing from seeing all the manifestations of human stupidity revealed.

Whenever, as a young boy, something was touted as an enormous breakthrough we had to accept, or advertised as product we could not live without, or something promulgated by some oleaginous politician as good for us, or some medical procedure everyone would benefit by having, or that some product would if used provide additional benefits, he'd take the opportunity after laughing out loud, to ask us to consider a question he would put to us.

If an appendix ruptured of course it should be removed and should have been removed before it ruptured — but for a while removing everyone's appendix was touted as a good solution thus preventing everyone from experiencing an inflamed or ruptured appendix. It was said to be a useless and unnecessary vestige from some earlier age of man. Same thing with tonsils.

If something was advertised as providing additional benefits like nuclear weapons he recalled how during the First World War in some cases soldiers were using rifles and bullets made in the the enemies country.

He questioned the benefits of theory based education. He suggested that this made people malleable to thought control. After all he'd say, what difference to a born fool would more nonsense do for him or the rest of us — except breed more nonsense.

He'd ask "is your ignorance someone else's bliss." Or, referring to certain politicians he'd ask, "is their ignorance someone else's benefit."

One wonders, hearing the news, or watching a clip of an elected talking head, why we would trust anything they said — anything at all — they are professional liars. It used to be common to find a four page insert in a magazine, advertising some new drug, really, why would anyone accept to take a drug with three and a half pages of warnings about side effects.

Our elected leaders in the so called West, all have serious personality disorders, yet they are quoted as though they were omniscient.

Considering the revelations about medicines and the extent of research laboratories funded by the U.S. operating in countries around the world — all of them researching ways to kill people — patenting them for exclusive use by this or that corporation, while imagining them as beneficent to mankind, because some talking head told you so and additionally, having to listen to the endless chatter about the genesis of its sources, while ignoring our collective stupidity and allowing the perpetrators to continue along this path year after year is madness.

North America is today an insane asylum. We collectively ought to be in padded cells. There ought to be a special wing for the rich, the famous, the influential, the experts — so that they can do no more harm. If the mad fools and their nonsense about COVID was not convincing enough the calamity in Ukraine should give us pause — before the experts blow up the world.

People are highly suggestible. Over and over and over again we are led to imagine the benefits while ignoring the side effects.

You gotta admit that it is weird to accept the criticism against “celebrated” vaccines such as the polio one, and at the same time deny the criticism of the apparently even faultier mRNA ones...

But perhaps, I understand. Ron is just being cautious. He will wait 10-20 years until “more serious literature is available” (or the data regarding the screwup is undeniable). Then he will come out and say, “I had never paid any attention to the mRNA vaccines, but after reviewing all the literature and all the new studies published in the last decades, I have come to the conclusion that yadda yadda...” etc

We’ll wait 10-20 years for your apology, don’t worry Ron.

Try this on for size: Dr. Robert Naviaux at UCSD has developed a theory of autism as a mitochondrial disorder causing something called the cell danger response, which interferes with cellular communication in the brain. He had some success in small studies using an old African sleeping sickness drug called Suramin, which can stop the cell danger response temporarily. What could be causing such a phenomenon? Studies of autistics and their families show an increased incidence of atopic immune systems and an impaired metal transport system. Small studies have shown very high levels of aluminum in the brains of autistics. Aluminum is a potent stimulator of inflammation and is included for such purposes in vaccines. The number of vaccines administered to children has skyrocketed, as has exposure to aluminum. So we have a subset of children vulnerable to inflammation and unable to quickly eliminate aluminum, which ends up sequestered in their brains, causing chronic inflammation and triggering the cell danger response. The more vaccines administered, the more autistics produced. BTW, Dr. Naviaux's findings were greeted with yawns by the medical establishment and he has difficulty funding further studies and procuring more Suramin so the studies are now being pursued in South Africa.

Natti developed the GraceWay and the Twelve Tools from decades of experience. His individual counseling and care for people with diverse backgrounds of notable distress has created and supported recovery – recovery from addiction, as well as from exposure to an addicted family member, and to violence, delinquency, and abuse. These are also the subjects of his research, thought and writing.

Together with the research teams that he has supervised, Natti developed the Positive Criminology perspective, which advances the continually evolving field of positive psychology with reference to issues of criminology. Subsequent research by Natti and his teams developed the Positive Victimology perspective, which offers an innovative way to help victims of any violence and delinquency. Recently, he has been working on the development of Spiritual Criminology and Victimology, which aims to bring spiritual wisdom to modern social science.

Natti first introduced the GraceWay extensively in the book The Twelve Tools, which features his gradually accumulated personal and clinical experiences, along with human field research.

Beginning in the mid-1990s, he provided training to many professionals in Israel on various aspects of the GraceWay. Professional implementation of the Twelve Steps program highlighted the dimension of spiritual transformation and the application of the spiritual path in daily life. As part of his academic work, he has written dozens of articles in international scientific journals, has published several books in Israel and abroad, and he frequently attends local and international conferences.

I don't think we'll have to wait 10-20 years for Ron (and maybe even MSM) to admit that the COVID vaccines were failures. But it will be for reasons other than the "hundreds of thousands of US deaths and millions of deaths worldwide as of 2023" that some folks have posited.

Here is a study showing that the risk of catching COVID increases with each jab:

<https://www.medrxiv.org/content/10.1101/2022.12.17.22283625v1.full.pdf>

And here is a credible claim that in the UK vaxxing correlates with higher overall mortality:

<https://vigilantfox.substack.com/p/the-one-chart-that-tells-the-entire>

These are the kind of vaxxed-vs.-unvaxxed studies that the Big Pharma influenced scientific establishment has been pointedly avoiding – not only with COVID vaccines but the others as well, as discussed in Turtles.

Both of the above studies and others are discussed here:

I was about to ask a similar question. You said:

Sure, nobody disputes that the poliovirus actually exists, and it was used to produce the polio vaccines. However, the argument made is that the poliovirus had no connection with the polio illness.

This part of the thesis you present is unclear to me. I thought I understood the thesis to be saying that the paralysis symptoms of polio are probably not being caused by a virus. However, the virus itself causes flu like symptoms with fewer than 1% of people becoming paralyzed probably due to something else they've come into contact with before, during or after having caught polio:

The authors begin by briefly summarizing the standard history of polio, explaining that the disease is caused by a viral infection that can produce a flu-like illness, but which in less than 1% of the cases may also damage the nerve cells thereby creating long-term paralysis.

The flu like symptoms weren't really discussed again in your essay beyond this point. So I'd assumed that with less than 1% becoming paralyzed it's entirely possible that this small percentage people who contracted a polio infection and coming down with a flu were also injured by some industrial pesticide by sheer coincidence.

It is not exactly rocket science to estimate the relative risk of dying after vaccination vs dying from Covid-19. Doing this in mid 2021 on the basis of European Eudract, US VAERS and German PEI data, resulted in a risk >> 1. Before 2020, a figure of e.g. 0.1 would have been considered exceedingly and unacceptably high

What are the numbers for each type of vax, is there really no discernible difference between MRNA and non-MRNA or nobody cares to do differentiated stats for each type of vaxmaking tech?

Ron, welcome to the world of us who range from vaccine skeptics to outright anti-vaxxers(I’m one of the latter).

Many highly credible books have been written on the subject of vaccinology. After doing much study of this topic for many years, I sometimes make the mistake of assuming that most other people are aware of the same body of facts of which I’m aware, so I tend to be surprised to find that you and others are just now becoming aware of some of the information that I and others were exposed to long ago.

Although I’m not the first to say so, I’m convinced that future historians(if there are any) will be astounded at the barbarity of injecting highly toxic material directly into the bloodstream for the claimed purpose of preventing disease. That this injection process was allowed to begin on the day of birth will be thought mind-bogglingly stupid or abusive.

Pfizer issued a statement about the video which basically says nothing. No denial about the existence of an employee named Jordon Trishton Walker either, so some such person is probably on their payroll.

Forbes is a Big Business magazine, and takes on the task of trashing the video.

Much of the Forbes piece is kicking around Tucker Carlson – not a difficult task. The Project Veritas organization is beyond dishonest, and is another easy target.

An internet article by a blogger was much more informative about the situation, IMO.

My understanding from an earlier book on this subject by a I believe a hematologist, was that there are two types of Polio, infectious and viral.

Inflammatory Polio has been found to be around 90% of all cases and is never debilitating or long term in the way Viral Polio is. This type of Polio will practically always disappear in a patient leaving no long term damage to be concerned with. I believe this type of Polio basically attacks the spine with major inflammation.

As a result, one could simply take aspirin to mitigate the effects of current symptoms.

It is Viral Polio that has taken center stage in our history, which accounts for around 10% of all Polio cases.

I believe the doctors knew this at the time in the 1960s but still touted the Polio vaccine as a god-send...

Well, aside from continually insulting them, I suppose not.

That should surely be "frantic females". It is "agitated anti-vaxxers", of course. And "crazed conspiracy theorists. Or, put simply, you really should adhere to the alliteration agenda

Meanwhile, all the data I've examined indicates that the Covid anti-vaxxers are totally wrong about everything, so they should be the ones apologizing to me.

Out of curiosity, when was the last type you apologized for being wrong about something? (Or is your position that you have never ever been wrong?)

Hello Mr. Unz,

1. Humble thanks for the link to my Excess Mortality post last week.

2. Polio: <https://unglossed.substack.com/p/decoding-polio>

Polio's mysteries are explained by the advent of injections as medicine. Diphtheria antitoxin is responsible for the 1894 inflection; penicillin (which was injected at first) for the 1944 inflection. Naturally, both create associations with other chemicals, but new chemicals were being used all the time, so these associations are trivial. On the contrary, injections were unknown before the late 19th Century and injection of children unknown before 1894, and polio epidemics appear the summer afterward in greater number in Europe and for the first time in America and Australia. Likewise, the expansion of medical injections to the developing world coincidentally takes place after the advent of the Salk vaccine, which exports the problem we had just solved. In retrospect it's all pretty obvious.

The mechanism, as discussed in my post, was likely simple contamination of diphtheria anti-toxin and/or needles with environmental virus, leading to abortive infections. These children, primed in the winter, went on to develop paralysis during the regular polio season in the summer. Most importantly, polio turned out to be ubiquitous; all adults already had antibodies, and in developing countries before the vaccine, children all had antibodies, despite no paralysis. It was only by priming with an abortive infection that paralysis occurred after regular oral encounter with polio. Some children did not encounter the primed strain until adulthood – particularly if that strain wasn't local. Hence the mysterious outbreaks in US and British soldiers in the mid-20th.

Quoting Oddball: Always with the negative waves Moriarty, always with the negative waves.

The “references” for the Turtle book point to the ‘evidence’ for the claims about the Control injections. Only problem is that the papers are written in medical jargon not understandable by laymen, so I couldn’t tell what they were talking about regarding those Controls.

Anyhow, when a vaccine didn’t previously exist, using an ‘old version’ would surely be a problem. If a complicated ‘control’ is ever used, I’m going to bet it’s not for any good reason. Deliberately using similar chemicals in both Vaccine and Control would allow any side effects to be declared minimal or even trivial, and would grease the skids for being declared “safe”. If this kind of thing is happening, it’s because the Regulatory Agencies allow it, and that should not be happening. $$$$ and Future $$$$ from Big Pharma Jobs would explain such a corrupt practice.

” is there an increase among chronic conditions in the young?”

Yes! Diagnosis of childhood autism has increased 30-fold in the last 50 years, affecting twice as many boys (2.4%). Most White children diagnosed now are at least normal IQ, while Black autistic children tend to be nonverbal and mentally deficient. This suggests that something different is happening in that demographic – possibly diagnosis numbers being crunched by stirring in all types of nonverbal kids in order to hide the fact that the real autism diagnosis is hitting higher IQ boys, mostly White, Asian and Jewish.

Hello Mr. Barrett,

While I'm with you in the Team O Shots and Happy group, I think your impression of negative efficacy reflects some of the prevalent bad data interpretation in the skeptic space. To be clear, I am against these experimental injections, but I do not base my objections on statistical misinterpretations of infection rates.

There is no negative short-term efficacy, except perhaps in environments where the recently-injected can't stay home due to side-effects, i.e. in nursing homes. All of the other attempts to prove the "worry window" have been spurious.

Likewise, the situation as of this summer is that a lot of the uber-boosted still have not yet been infected, so they are competing with natural immunity. For this reason, the Cleveland Clinic study was simply showing a "catch-up" effect. Just as one could do a study observing a grocery store from 8-9PM and conclude, incorrectly, that people who shop in the evening spend the most time at grocery stores, when in fact they spend the least time there.

As for your reference to studies from 2021, I think you are referring to the UKHSA reports, which had denominators for the unvaccinated which were essentially imaginary and unenlightening.

2. In a single, dated list, what's your personal history of COVID shots and bouts?

3. When did anyone known to you last get her first COVID shot?

I have two adult autistic sons and one with ADHD. The two younger got the Hep B vaccine at birth, whereas the older one got it at two, which I believe made the difference. Those two maladies tend to run in families, likely caused by the same insult.

Ron

I am probably what would be labelled an “anti-vaxer”. Like most anti-vaxers, I am not actually totally or even mostly against vaccines. BTW, this specifically includes RFK, Jr. He usually starts his talks by pointing out that he is vaccinated as are his children.

Most of us are against the idea of vaccinating everyone simply because a vaccine exists. We think vaccines should be administered when “indicated”—that is the considered decision has been made that the vaccine is likely to do more good in this case than the side effects—which all medications have.

Most of us are also appalled and opposed to the idea that the vaccine makers have categorical legal immunity from the consequences of vaccine side effects. Private gain, public risk.

I am old enough that I didn’t get the measles, mumps and chickenpox vaccines. I got measles, mumps and chickenpox. Mostly recall them as being a couple days of medium to mild illness, followed by a couple days of chicken soup. (I don’t actually recall the chickenpox directly, but my younger siblings all got it and I remember being blamed for bringing it home. One sister got a smallish scar on her cheek. It went away in a couple years.)

BTW, the last I knew, the UK National Health Service doesn’t routinely vaccinate for chickenpox. I think if you make it to your teens without a case of real chickenpox, they vaccinate you. The thinking is that adults, who have had chickenpox as children, contract very mild cases when exposed to children with chickenpox. Mild enough that they don’t even notice it, but it “boosts” their immunity and lessens the chances of shingles later on in life. Their thinking is that chickenpox is generally mild in childhood, but shingles is of much more concern.

MRNA is continuously produced (but only when needed) by cells precisely because it doesn't remain in the body. If it did, there could be no production of DNA only when needed.

The MRNA vaccines required more adjuvants because their effect was so weak without them. That wasn't properly tested so I would have been reluctant to use such a vaccine before hundreds of millions had used it before me. Like many others, I would have preferred a Russian or Chinese vaccine even to the otherwise old technology UK Astrazeneca vaccine that was based on a chimpanzee adenovirus rather than a human one. Anything new administered to hundreds or thousands of millions of people needs thorough testing. donthomson1@hotmail.com

Still, the reality remains, before the vaccine roll out more than 97% of those that contracted the “virus” survived and did not need any vaccinations at all.

No one need be an antivaxer to come to the conclusion, that the virus as awful as it may be — was not definitively or even close to definitively fatal.

An interesting point thought of yesterday when doing some profiling, is how vax and other schemes work, cabalers scheme from one end to other, from making supposed pharma, to state cons pushing, to media pushing, to supposed banks false money funding all of them, and, to add part of scheme, false appearance. Thought of comparison remembering criminals have face traits we can identify, which if people looked closer would see people pushing vaxs and other cabalers have genetic criminal traits. The term is physiognomy, unnecessarily complicated word, but in any event is same scheme problem as supposed vaxs which is about domination.

The circle gang reinforce each other, the same tactics used to push against vax conspiracy researchers, or against people knowing physiogomy, they claim 'been discredited' or 'been refuted', by who -them. The same way they put down conspiracy, they put down physiognomy so people don't think to recognize criminal faces, look at state cons, or media or judges or supposed college professors, etc, anyone even supposed neighbors. Am not talking about having a large nose or supposed attractive or not, but traits that show criminal tendency.

Some traits, eyes aren't level- don't mean distance apart but eyes that aren't level, one lower than other, or one more open than the other -low set ears or set outward or toward back, or sloping forehead or narrow forehead are some Some males have very slight slope, but not much, if any. The more sloped or narrow, the less front lobe, ethics. Point is about how schemes continue, is 'they' put themselves as authority, then cover each other, also web nonsense such as wikipedia, and get by on appearance, and ignorance by people.

Many get surgery to change appearance, chins, ears etc, use haircut type or cosmetics, clothes, change appearance. Also take photos at an angle, or lighting to deflect sloping or short forehead, or get forehead implants to make seem flatter, also photoshop. Wearing glasses can also distract. Should make note of traits, and cover tactics, use paper pen not copy paste. Remember the cons have been scheming over a thousand years, they spawn next generation to be criminals and trained to seem normal but are genetic criminals, including females. Supposed researchers or scientists, pharma corps. That's why they use fronts such as gates who doesn't show as much of traits, though there are many more doing everything.

Last on vaxs per se its of benefit that Ron hadn't questioned vaxs more stridently before, because his later questioning can resonate with others similar. It's the step back view. Appreciate the article Ron, and book notations.

May I draw attention to my website The Burch Curve about the medical physicist and scientific heretic Philip Burch?

In short, he said in the 1970s and 80s that Richard Doll's hypothetical mechanism whereby smoking causes lung cancer could not possibly be right because

1. It was falsified by empirical data.
2. It invoked two incompatible dose-response relationships.
3. It appealed to verification and ignored falsifying evidence.

Burch was ignored away because

1. His arguments involved a command of mathematics beyond most physicians, politicians and opinion journalists.
2. If he was right, nothing could be done about cancer until well into the 21st century.
3. Sir Richard Doll, M.D., F.R.S, Regius Professor of Medicine at the University of Oxford could not possibly not be a great man and a great scientist.

Readers who know what power laws are and why true power laws never occur in nature may have their eyes opened by the quality of the arguments which convinced the medical establishment that Burch had been disposed of:

Indeed, but in Unz's article, he mentioned that the polio disease was known in the ancient world. It seems likely that there is some connection between the virus and symptoms, though perhaps not the connection the establishment claims. I haven't read anything about this, but it seems plausible that there could be an interaction in which the virus could cause the symptoms or not but the likelihood of it doing so is increased by environmental or nutritional factors, such that the “pandemic” period of polio was triggered by something like pesticides.

INTENTIONAL MISDIAGNOSIS: WHY DOES THIS HAPPEN?

<https://www.palmerinjurylaw.com/intentional-misdiagnosis-why-does-this-happen/>

In retrospect it's obvious a Lawyer Site might be high in the results from a search. There is nothing new or novel about this. Back in the 1930s of the last century a magazine called Reader's Digest published a series warning about scams. The stories told of taking a car or radio to a repairman with a single obviously loose wire. A wristwatch with a trivial problem or none at all. A man/woman with perfect vision to an eyeglasses place. More often than not the repairman/doctor told them of a dreadful problem requiring an expensive 'fix'.

My own experience includes a dishonest and not-too-bright dentist. After faithfully getting teeth cleanings and perfect reports every six months for several years, I was shocked to learn I had a mouthful of cavities. Being a suspicious type, I took his document listing all the bad teeth to a dentist in another town some distance away. This new guy gave me a careful examination and said nothing was wrong with my teeth.

If an unethical doctor can convince a patient (or parent of one) there is a substantial medical issue which demands his continuing treatment, that's a substantial amount of new cash rolling in to his practice. Never happened to me (yet) but I know of two instances where such an attempt was made. One was successful, and the patient spent a very long time worrying about his possible “issue”. In the end – after many, many “tests” and “scans” he was abruptly given a clean bill of health. Learning of this may have saved a second person the same experience, for a non-dermatologist suddenly got vaguely concerned about a possible facial blemish, and wanted to begin a battery of tests and scans. The family smelled BS and nixed the project at the outset.

The 9/11 Zionist Terrorist Charade exposed the American public to the sorrowful realization that science is almost always wielded for political agendas. There is no objective scientific truth.

Whoever funds the science can secure the results he wants. And that's why so many elite scientific organizations signed on with the official US government coverup of the conspiracy.

Besides all its other horrible ramifications, perhaps the worst consequence of the 9/11 false flag attack was the destruction of rational discourse in our culture. 9/11 sowed distrust in our population for elites of every stripe. It made governing our society nearly impossible because it's so difficult to arrive at truthful consensus.

The Jews behind the 9/11 attacks reaped so many benefits with this single dastardly deed that they must be laughing themselves all the way to the grave. Because once humanity has their blinders lifted and recognizes the gravity and depravity of this Jewish assault on civilization, the grave will not be wide or deep enough to accommodate those cynical masters of deception.

So why ram down tobacco, multiple angles, want to take away paper because private, can write on tobacco leaves, same scheme legalize pot but not hemp, can make paper from. Then people only have tp or paper towels. Other angles, pretend govt state cons 'care', same time same time pumping mass obesity corn syrup and fructose, same time whack people who smoke with quadruple cost. Think of the circle con, fda monsanto corn, insurance cons, state cons, pharma cons, and big tobacco cons didn't care because made billions over time.

I reached out to Steve and he said it is clear to him that you refuse to engage with any data that doesn't fit your hypothesis.

Well, as I said, we already spoke for about an hour. He seemed absolutely shocked by my international mortality statistics, which were entirely new to him. He argued that although they certainly seemed to point in my direction, he couldn't believe that my analysis was correct because of the massive amount of anecdotal data he'd accumulated. He'd personally spoken to many, many nurses and care-givers who told him that the vaccines were dangerous and he was sure that was the case. Several times, he asked me whether I'd gone around talking to individual nurses and I said that I certainly hadn't.

He also said he wanted to take some time to digest my quantitative data and then possibly produce a response. That was about ten days ago and maybe he's still working on it.

He obviously has huge advantages over me on this issue. He's spent two years intensely focused on vaxxing and I doubt I've spent more than two weeks on that subject. He's gone around speaking to all those individual nurses and all I did was spend a couple of hours looking at the international mortality statistics on that HMD website. But if the mortality-rate of the working-age people in all those very heavily mRNA vaxxed countries actually dropped over the last couple of years, I tend to doubt that the vaccines are actually killing all that many non-elderly people.

Perhaps there's some huge, obvious mistake in my very simple analysis that he'll soon reveal, and I'll end up looking very foolish. But perhaps not.

Back a couple of years ago there was a very energetic QAnon movement, involving thousands of activists and probably millions of supporters. I think these days most people admit that it was all just a hoax or a fraud, but I'm not sure whether any of the QAnon leaders ever publicly admitted they'd been mistaken.

Yes! In the 1950s, when she was helping raise me, my grandmother had an intense focus on thoroughly washing fresh fruits and vegetables brought home from the farmer's market. Thanks Granny!

I've long been wary of DDT due to the chemical pesticide's known role in nearly wiping out U.S. populations of both the Bald Eagle and the Peregrine Falcon, both of which slowly recovered after DDT was banned for most uses in the United States in 1972.

My first sighting of a Bald Eagle in the early '90s was quite a thrill. You can be sure of that!

Rachel Carson's 1962 bestseller Silent Spring played a significant role in raising public awareness about the effects DDT and other chemicals were having on bird life. It was largely endorsed by Pres. Kennedy's Science Advisory Committee in May 1963 after Carson's testimony before it. Silent Spring was serialized in both the New Yorker and Audubon magazines, and was the inspiration and catalyst for various grass-roots environmental movements that sprung up in the early '60s, during the Camelot years, with musical accompaniment by the Folk Music revival, which peaked in the mid '60s before being edged aside by "Folk Rock." So now you know.

If the underlying international data sets are inaccurate, the Unz analysis can be error-free and still wrong because of faulty input.

The best way to address this is to examine the glaring contradictions between the Unz international mortality data sets and the CDC data sets at theyliedpeople died.com, the data sets at VAERS, and the insurance statistics in the Dowd book.

Because life insurance earnings and stock prices were severely impacted in 2022 (but not 2020-2021) this strongly suggests that the Dowd hypothesis is on firmer footing, and that the international mortality figures cited by Mr. Unz are reassuringly similar in quality to other government data products such as inflation rates and the Warren Commission.

Sure, it's possible that all those dozens of major countries have been manipulating their official mortality statistics, pretending that more (or fewer) people died each year than was actually the case. I'm not exactly sure why they'd do such a thing, but perhaps it's part of some diabolical plot involving Bill Gates and Klaus Schwab.

Maybe our own US Census data is equally fraudulent. Maybe America's population isn't the 330 million the government claims, but only 40 million.

| We could either vaccinate annually forever, or

When I worked on a hog farm, we had a spell where stillbirths seemed to be above normal. The vet said it was because of a kind of parvovirus and therefore we would have vaccinate all the sows forever. Some years later I went back to visit the farm. A new farmer had taken over and he had no time for those pesky vaccines, and whaddy know, no vaccinations and no stillbirths. The vet was—perhaps unwittingly—just peddling patent medicine. The stillbirths went away by themselves.

I remember a writer claiming that Franklin Roosevelt started having problems with one of his legs a little while after eating some berries off the bushes on some island that he docked his yacht on that had been sprayed with pesticides. I remember thinking this was a bit much to believe, but who knows. The Dept of Agriculture, upon finding that a recommended pesticide had bad side effects probably would go into a defensive mode and loudly claim said pesticide was bad because of a threat it posed to animals and must be banned as a way to get it out of use while admitting no guilt. Their method of evasion had the side effect (see what I did there?) of giving the pharmaceutical companies a big boost (yes, I just did it again Brittney) so they would keep their mouths shut about it. This approach is about what you'd expect from our Rockefellers-that-be, that even their seemingly benevolent acts are borne of the most underhanded shitassery.

You don't know what you're talking about. mRNA vaccine is not the same mRNA produced by natural cells. The uracil is synthetic and can not be destroyed by normal cellular enzyme, hence it stays in the human body for a long time. What's more, mRNA vaccines can be reversed into DNA and integrated into the human genome causing cancer, and continuing to produce spike proteins until the host is dead. Know your facts before you talk nonsense.

@complex_pseudonymic_handle

A former believer, I came to skepticism after a flu shot in Army basic training put me in the base hospital for four days.

Although I received all the childhood vaccines myself, I became skeptical of their utility three decades ago after a doctor showed me charts very similar to the ones Ron produced above showing that the decline in tuberculosis, measles and other infectious diseases had long predated immunization programs and the vaccines had no apparent effect on the course of the diseases. The doctor also let on that the polio story may be more complicated than the media myth, but he didn't go into the detail that Ron did above.

As a result, I didn't vaccinate my kids. They are now grown and healthy as horses, the envy of their peers who labor under ever-evolving litanies of allergies and food sensitivities. (The world is full of coincidences nowadays.)

To the extent that Ron's takes any notice of my comments, he probably lumps me in with the "militant anti-vaxxers" though I've never alleged that "vaccines would kill millions—or even billions". I merely said that vaccines were mostly a scam and that any temporary immunity they may confer is liable to be bought at the expense of long term detriments.

Since Ron mentions the "the original anti-vaxxers of 2019" as an embattled minority among the more recent anti-vax militants, I would like to lay claim to that title, having posted one of the first vaccine-skeptical comments at The Unz Review at the beginning of 2020 on Steve's blog:

epidemiologically most of those diseases inoculated against were on the wane by the time the vaccines came out, which suggests that mankind's collective immune system was already overcoming the diseases, but the vaccine makers just arrived in time to bayonet the wounded and declare themselves the victors

I filled that out later that year with some graphs almost exactly like what Ron used above and the doctor used three decades ago to show that vaccines don't do much, juxtaposing those with a graph showing the simultaneous unexplained rise in chronic diseases:

<https://www.unz.com/anepigone/vaccine-or-bust/#comment-4036994>

Incidentally, the notion that suppressing an acute illness may result in a chronic condition goes back at least to Hippocrates, so that ancient Greek may be the real original anti-vaxxer. (It's also noteworthy that in some important ways medical science has not advanced in two millennia and is arguably stupider today in certain crucial aspects.)

Seems like Runz is playing a perverse game. He publishes articles that are definitely supportive of the anti-covaxx position. But then in the comments he beats up on those of us who are covaxx skeptics. Maybe he does this for plausible deniability purposes. It's hard to tell what his true motive is.

But nevertheless and despite Ron's opacity, let us hold fast to our faith in Jesus the God of Truth that TUR is being used for the greater good whether he likes it or not whether he is aware of it or not whether he is a truthsayer or a truthnayer.

So long as the truth leaks out on a steady and consistent basis, then We can be thankful that — whatever Ron's real motives or intentions — God's will be done!!!

| I think Ron has effectively debunked the high-end COVID vax death estimates

Kevin, you're hedging your bets by using the term 'High-End' death estimates.

Yes, I've also heard the estimates that tens of millions will die within a year or two of taking the clot shots.

So, instead of tens of millions, what if only a few million Americans drop dead from the vaxx (as in excess All Cause Mortality) over the next 4-5 years, and then another few million drop dead over the 5 years after that, and so forth, I suppose you can technically say you were right and that this was not the 'High-End' estimate.

Nevertheless, these would represent a catastrophic increase in excess mortality.

Doesn't that worry you Kevin ?

Dr Peter McCullough, in the audio interview you did with him, estimated over 450,000 Americans have already died from the clot shots.

Is it really a stretch to assume that perhaps a few million Americans more may succumb to the experimental mRNA toxins over the coming years as the ADE (Antibody-dependent enhancement) goes into overdrive mode ?

Especially in light of the recent videos by the highly respected Dr John Campbell from the U.K, who said:

| THE RATE OF EXCESS ALL CAUSE MORTALITY IS ACCELERATING.

For the medical research community and their pharmaceutical industry backers, their work is another form of warfare. Either against a pathogen or against a patient who won't cooperate with their lucrative agenda. If we consider the pharmaceutical industry in the biomedical research institutes as an arm of the Pentagon, then it all makes a lot more sense.

Ron has figured out half the equation, that the disease was a deliberate biowarfare attack against China. Now he just needs to figure out that the other half of the equation is also a biowarfare operation disguised as a vaccine. It might be too simple to recognize for a man with three degrees from elite universities.

The other thing is that most of us living in the real world have to struggle for our daily existence and make life or death decisions based on the latest government propaganda, trying to evaluate whether it is salutary or sinister. We don't live in a silicon valley ivory tower financed by hedge fund rewards able to spend the rest of our lives waiting through conflicting sets of data. That simply is not the reality for most of us who read this site.

I was one of the early so-called anti-voxxers (sp). Was my opposition ideological or based on cognitive dissonance? No. I had conducted my own study of purported COVID-19 cases and deaths in Los Angeles County and found the victims were highly associated with zip codes with high “foreign born” population. And what is the major respiratory disease of the “foreign born”? Tuberculosis, which has the same symptom-ology together with many co-morbidities.

Ron Unz could have come to the same awakened conclusion as he has recently if he had previously read Eleanor McBean’s book The Poisoned Needle: Suppressed Facts about Vaccination published in 1957. McBean had a PhD and ND and was coincidentally Black.

An excerpt from McBean’s book:

“Our worst epidemics now are epidemics of vaccination in which more people are killed every year by ‘vaccinal diseases’ than by the diseases that the vaccinations were supposed to combat.

Complete freedom from disease can scarcely be found except in remote islands or isolated communities that have not been invaded by medical mischief and commercialized products. Is our proud civilization to be degraded, corrupted, and destroyed by its own inventions designed for selfish profit and exploitation of the race?

Vaccination (sp), instead of being the promised blessing to the world, has proved to be a curse of such sweeping devastation that it has caused more death and disease than war, pestilence and plague combined. There is no scourge that is more destructive to our nation's health than this monument of human deception – the slayer of the innocent – thecrippler of the body and brain – THE POISONED NEEDLE” .

Consider the number of people required to pull off the Bolton-Pompeo caper you have outlined. Sure, maybe it could be kickstarted with only a handful of people in the know; but after a couple of years of the highest profile mess anyone can remember, THOUSANDS of people would know what is going on. Yet this is somehow hidden. If you are right about the Bolteo crime, the ability to control information is strong enough to allow the bureaucrats to monkey with death statistics to suit their story.

I'm not claiming this has happened, but the prospect is built into your hypothesis for the entire mess.

I don't think we'll have to wait 10-20 years for Ron (and maybe even MSM) to admit that the COVID vaccines were failures.

But it will be for reasons other than the "hundreds of thousands of US deaths and millions of deaths worldwide as of 2023" that some folks have posited.

It won't be because of the hundreds of thousands of deaths [already] noted in the U.S – and likely millions to add to that in the coming years ?

That's not a good enough reason for you Kevin (or Ron) ?

And let's focus on those 'some folks' you mentioned. Why use that terminology, as if to imply it's just 'random folks' from the general population ?

WHY don't you use words like 'some of the most credentialled medical professionals on the planet' – like Dr Peter McCullough. This is no ordinary physician Kevin. This man's words have UNPARALLELED GRAVITAS.

Let's have another look at a brief bio of Peter McCullough :

Professor at Texas A & M College of Medicine, President, Cardiorenal Society of America, Editor-in-Chief, Reviews in Cardiovascular Medicine, Senior Associate Editor, American Journal of Cardiology and others.

He has written 46 peer-reviewed publications on COVID-19 and is considered among the world's EXPERTS on the topic, testifying in the US Senate Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs in November 2020, and throughout 2021 in the Texas Senate Committee on Health and Human Services, in the Colorado General Assembly, and in the New Hampshire Senate, concerning many aspects of the pandemic response.

He's an epidemiologist and in those fields he specialises in (Cardio/Renal), he is the most published medical professional in the world, in HISTORY.

I ask you Kevin, WHO amongst the paid-to-disinform medical professionals that are owned by Big Pharma to push the clot shots, is ANYWHERE close to Peter McCullough in integrity and prestige?

I asked the same question to Ron Unz and he scurried off.

Let's face it, the high profile individuals that push the clot shots are the likes of:

- 1) Klaus Schwab (a sinister 'Dr No')
- 2) Bill Gates (a college drop out)
- 3) Fauci (a compulsive liar and known fraud for his role during the AIDS epidemic)
- 4) Pfizer CEO Albert Bourla (a doggie doctor) and
- 5) Justin Trudeau (Castro's illegitimate son and a conscience free pr*ck).

| There is NO ONE with credibility, let alone integrity, on the pro-vaxx side.

The SP theory can be written out of history, and replaced with yet another toxic addition to our vaccination schedules – graphene oxide; this time specifically injected into billions deliberately to kill and maim, as we are facing “unsustainable levels of population growth”, aka those vanishingly few psychotics who control virtually all the world’s wealth now want it all; such that those who survive their intentions can “own nothing and be happy”, whereas before they were always allowed to “own very little and be miserable.”

@Ron Unz

Sure, it's possible that all those dozens of major countries have been manipulating their official mortality statistics, pretending that more (or fewer) people died each year than was actually the case.

I'm not exactly sure why they'd do such a thing, but perhaps it's part of some diabolical plot involving Bill Gates and Klaus Schwab.

So let me see, we have in the world an International Cartel of Zionist Bankers, with multiples of U.S GDP in financial wherewithal, and the ability to print/digitally conjure up scores of trillions more through the western central banks they own/control.

Said Cartel of misfits owns :

- 1) The U.S Congress and the Executive
- 2) Every western politician of note
- 3) Western academia and all the western Health bureaucracies.
- 4) The entirety of the western MSM (so they can control the narrative).

Said Cartel of Bankers is ALSO the same cabal that orchestrated the Covid Psyop in pursuit of its depopulation agenda – not to mention orchestration of 9/11, the murders of JFK, RFK, JFK Jr, MLK Jr and much more.

The same cabal that controls the levers of power in the U.S also manipulates the statistics for GDP, unemployment and inflation. WHY would they do that asks Ron ? What possible motive could the USG have for under reporting (for example) the inflation rate, asks a naive Ron Unz ?

Welfare payments are indexed to the rate of inflation. In other words, if the USG reports inflation to be 8%, then the welfare cheque increases by 8% next year.

Meanwhile, the ACTUAL rate of inflation (refer to John William at ShadowStats.com) is double that.

Of course if all welfare was indexed to the real inflation rate, the U.S treasury would go bust in a hurry OR they'd have to print even more USD fiat to pay for it, which will further exacerbate the inflation and fast track the currency collapse.

Needless to say, if workers were hearing that the actual rate of inflation was 16%, they'd be demanding much higher wage increases to keep up with the cost of living.

And higher wages means less profits for the oligarchs and greater likelihood that the country may go into an inflationary spiral.

Yet somehow, Ron can't think of a possible motive as to why said cabal would want to minimise the numbers of deaths that coincidentally occur after taking the vaxx, so that the goyim don't get unnecessarily alarmed and lynch them.

As for this silly analogy of yours Ron :

'Maybe our own US Census data is equally fraudulent. Maybe America's population isn't the 330 million the government claims, but only 40 million'

Bottom Line: There is no political/financial/mass formation psychosis advantage to misreport the U.S population, just as there is no advantage to say that the limousine JFK was assassinated in was a Cadillac, when in fact it was a Lincoln.

But there is EVERY advantage (in fact an existential advantage), and thus a motive, for the cabal to LIE about the catastrophic rate of excess mortality.

Because if a critical threshold of the masses work out what's been done to their family/friends/neighbours, the cabal will be swinging from a lamppost.

QAnon was likely a fraud in the sense that it claimed to have been launched someone who was a special insider that was revealing things which were allegedly happening behind the scenes. There is no evidence that QAnon had any special information to offer. If you're willing to dig through old media reports, there was quite a bit that was published about Epstein back in 2008 and earlier. There was also the Jimmy Savile and Jerry Sandusky stuff from 2012. Although the media covers up a lot of stuff, there are occasional moments when some significant droplets of information can be allowed to pass through, and if one pays close attention one can pick up a lot of interesting tidbits.

The question about QAnon was always over whether or not the person who started it was really reporting firsthand insider information. I haven't seen any cases of a report from QAnon which contained original material that was subsequently verified. It was really just the kind of conspiracy-conjecturing which one can do after combing through enough news reports and finding things which sound suspicious. Some of those conjectures are likely correct and may be verified eventually. Some of them are probably false and just reflect an overinterpretation of limited evidence. But nothing produced by QAnon really came out as a strong new revelation which was eventually confirmed.

The whole story of Hunter Biden's laptop contained more substantive new data than anything which QAnon ever came up with.

You should look into the local shot requirements. Seriously after learning all that is suggested in the book why not realize that step one is to get the answers where you think you know something instead of assuming.

Most states follow CDC shot guidelines as the requirement for school participation. This list includes Hep B which is administered at birth. The disease known to pass through sex and needle sharing is given to newborns and required to go to school.

Based on observations over many years and even self reflection, Ive come to u derstand that people often avoid topics that do not make a direct impact on their life. They will absorb the most common narrative that fits their comfort level and move on. This relagates those in opposition to the “crazy” or similar category worth ignoring. The powers that be utilize this human habit and now paint their opposition in “crazy” labels early and often to assist the “sheep” in knowing who to avoid. My point is to do your own research and include in it a look at all the crazy too. You don’t have to believe everything but if you are not made uncomfortable or challenged at least in your thinking then you have not looked into a topic enough.

Ron, welcome.

Perhaps vaccine history has peaked enough of your interest to further explore the many catastrophic endeavors our government and industry has taken in the name of “health.”

A good start would be the history of fluoride and how it made it's way into our water supply.

Another is the history of seed oils, in particular the poly-unsaturated fatty acid (PUFA) linoleic acid and its unquestionable and PROVEN severe adverse effects on human health. Based on my research, heavy metals such as mercury or aluminum pale in comparison to the pervasive damage PUFAs have done to human health over the past century.

If so inclined, read up on the history of glyphosate and the many carcinogenic organophosphates we spray at will on our crops in this country. Monsanto, now Bayer, has paid billions in lawsuits following court discovery of its many health detriments but that did little to stop deployment of this toxin.

Some worthy individuals expert on these subjects include Tucker Goodrich, Dr. Chris Masterjohn PhD, Dr. Christopher Exley (Mr. Aluminum) PhD, Dr. Russell Blaylock, Dr. James Lyons Weiler, and Dr. Stephanie Seneff PhD.

If interested, happy to share literature on all these subjects.

We live in a toxic world sir, and belief in modern medicine as a cure is simply orchestrated orthodoxy. Unquestionably, many developments in modern medicine such as trauma and critical care have gone a long way to prolong and improve health outcomes, but as it relates to disease, allopathy is hubris and counterintuitive to real human health.

Thank you for this article.

You forgot to mention from the “Turtles” book one claim they make. That is the cumulative effect of taking vaccines over many years. No studies have been done (or made public) concerning the risk of taking vaccines every year over many years. This certainly would apply to an ever increasing childhood vaccination schedule.

It’s like smoking. A few cigarettes here and there might not be very harmful. But smoking year after year can present devastating effects. I seriously doubt that anyone has studied constant early vaccination and the preponderance of sickness and disease later in life. It would not shock me to discover a solid connection.

Should the Spanish Flu be renamed the Spanish Bacterial Pneumonia?

“The truth revealed about the deadly Spanish Flu. It was actually bacterial Pneumonia” Russ Winter.winterwatch.net June 17, 2021

Winter writes”During the war years of 1918 to 1919, the U.S.Army ballooned to 6 million men, of which 2 million were sent overseas. The ROCKEFELLER institute for medical research took advantage of this new pool of guinea pigs to conduct vaccine experiments....modern technology has not been able to pinpoint the killer influenza strain from this pandemic. In actuality, bacterial pneumonia was the real killer and thousands of autopsies confirm this fact...the cause was an experimental anti-meningococci serum that was derived from horses and was injected into soldiers.

The Institute said it distributed the bacterial serum to England, France, and Belgium during and after World War 1. Ultimately, these Rockefeller quacks killed 50 to 100 million people via bacterial lung infections from1918 to1919.”

Mr. Unz, I can describe my personal experience about this polio vaccine.

It has been taken up by the governments in India very earnestly. Every year, on specific dates, polio “campaigns” (yes, they call them campaigns) are conducted all over the country. Every baby and every child is encouraged to take this OPV – Oral Polio Vaccine – as many times as possible till they reach 5 years of age.

I was a very vocal supporter of this vaccine campaign, having seen a few polio victims in my childhood. Not many, but in those days almost every Indian knew at least one person afflicted by polio. Polio spreads through faecal – oral route, like cholera and dysentery. Therefore one can imagine what a catastrophe it was in India in those days, what with the public hygiene in those days in India, often described in very colourful terms here in this website. Later on, once some prosperity started pouring in, hygiene and public health improved, and cholera disappeared, and polio came down.

However, I happened to work in some remote hilly country; it was sparsely populated, and with the tribes (yes, India has tribes too) being generally more conscious about public hygiene, polio was not a threat at all. Yet during my visit to a very interior village, I was shocked to find a child – about 7 years old, with polio! I asked the parents, through interpreter, and learnt that it happened a few years back, and they described the symptoms perfectly. To my horror I realised it was the consequence of the vaccine! When I confronted the local health people – government doctors – they said it was not polio, it was a case of AFP – Acute Flaccid Paralysis! When I asked them to describe the cause and symptoms, they said the cause is not known (!)

and described the symptoms of polio! There is even an article on the topic in the Wikipedia:

https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Flaccid_paralysis

When I pursued the topic further, they confessed that it is polio by another name, but the vaccine lobby will not let them speak out. I realised that all vaccines need a certain level of immunity in the body, and there are always kids with lesser immunity; the disease will hit them full-blown! Now the dilemma is this: if the virus in the vaccine is too weak, it won't trigger immunity in the body; but if the virus is sufficiently virulent but if the body's immunity is weak, it will develop polio!

But however much I try, the doctors did not see my viewpoint. They are such blind worshippers of science, trying to reason with them did not work. Thus we were wrecking children in an area where polio was not a threat earlier.

When this mRNA "vaccine" news came, I had some doubts about the methodology. If the body is taught to make spike proteins, how will the body know when to stop? Wont the immune system target the cells that produce the spike protein? I am still not clear on these points.

QAnon was probably started as an insider joke, to show and see how much credulous Trump supporters are; but after sometime, those who ran the operation realised that it can act as a safety valve, by luring people into a false sense of security, that their superman Trump is doing everything to dismantle the corrupt Deep State, therefore the followers need not do anything on their own. It probably prevented a coagulation of anti- Deep State people coming together as some sort of political or social movement. In a way, it would be far beyond the expectations of the operators who ran it.

From the article by Ron Unz:

The mystery of the illness was solved in 1908 when the virus responsible was isolated, and with the later support of FDR, himself a paralyzed polio victim (...)

From Wikipedia:

Roosevelt was left permanently paralyzed from the waist down and was diagnosed with polio. Historians have noted a 2003 study strongly favoring a diagnosis of Guillain–Barré syndrome,[96] but have continued to describe his paralysis according to the initial diagnosis.[97][98][99][100]

@Almost Missouri

Thank you for this comment and your perspicacity. When I lived back east I would go to a chiropractor who comes from the world's largest chiropractic family. His father was a chiropractor and seven of nine siblings became chiropractors.

The really remarkable thing about him imho is that despite being Roman Catholic, he was a vaccine skeptic. He told me that his father had never vaccinated him or any of his siblings and he had not done that for any of his own children. And generally speaking they all were healthy and long lived.

The reason this was surprising to me is because I had at the same time been spending time exploring the Catholic faith. And I could not help but notice that when it came to health and medicine Catholics were extremely mainstream. They were the first to flock to doctors follow public health mandates etc

The Catholic Church owns 1/3 of American hospitals and Catholics generally are very docile in the face of mainstream medicine. So I considered this chiropractor tremendously subversive and really admired him for that:

In 1989, Jeffrey Chicoine became the sixth Chicoine to become a chiropractor, earning his doctor of chiropractic from Palmer College of Chiropractic in Davenport, Iowa, where his father, sister and brothers had received their training.

Gerald Chicoine said, "This was a decision Jeff had to make. I was happy when he told me he had decided to become a chiropractor."

At times, though, Jeffrey Chicoine said he had second thoughts.

"Chiropractic college was a grueling experience," he said. "Palmer College ranks as the fourth most stressful college in the country, with Harvard Law School being number one. I often thought, 'Why am I killing myself?'"

By the time he finished the program, Chicoine said he had taken 1,000 quizzes and tests.

"It was very challenging and far more than I had ever anticipated," he said.

Even so, the 41-year-old Chicoine said he has no regrets about becoming a chiroprac-

Here is great discussion between Dr. Sucharit Bhakdi & Pascal Najadi (The interviewer, Pascal Najadi, has filed criminal proceedings against the Swiss Government.):

BIG NEWS FROM THE ROYAL PALACE IN THAILAND

At 18min 30sec Bhakdi describes his first visit to Thailand in 3 years in January where he met with government representatives from the royal family.

Bakhdi explains how he presented the 3 documents that prove conclusively that BioNtec never performed clinical trials on their toxic soup, and that the lipid nanoparticles have been proven to be extremely dangerous. Pfizer/BioNtech committed fraud for the lipid nanoparticles alone, used in both Pfizer and Moderna.

Since the King's 44 year old niece fell into a coma due to heart issues 26 days after the injection, the Royal Family is annulling all contracts and will be seeking damages.

Plus, its now public that the COVID vaccination program has been a DOD / BARPA-orchestrated experimental biological warfare program (like all vaccines?) on humans used for profit, control and to sustain the ills of the population FOR the benefit of government AND that very same medical establishment.

Only a little research is needed to discover the above truth...

Not really. I'd never paid any attention to the "classic" anti-vaxxers one way or the other, so I don't have anything for which to apologize.

This is just a weasely ex post facto qualification ("classic") — you denigrated them in every relevant article, e.g. via the pejorative 'anti-vaxxers'.

Those who were skeptical of the COVID vaccine, did not want to take it, and perhaps most importantly did not want people to be coerced into taking it, don't care about you or any apology coming from you — their objections were principled and reasonable, whereas you discredited yourself via repeated juvenile ad hominem.

Actually, it seems there is no clear evidence that Keynes ever said or wrote any such thing. I do like to believe he said it, though, and the saying was reported by others. It sounds like him. “Nastiest” certainly sounds more like Keynes than “wickedest” (let alone “most wickedest”, which might have caused a fellow of King’s to throw up). Like his Bloomsbury Group friends, he was an aesthete rather than an ethicist.

Kevin was all in on Ron's "simple analysis" a couple of weeks ago.

As you said, he is now slowly backing away from his unequivocal support.

Ron's analysis has ignored so much data that it can't really be called an analysis at all.

He admits to ignoring VAERS AND V-SAFE, which is a massive red flag for me, as V-SAFE in particular is damning evidence of wide scale harm created by the jabs.

Ron also ignores mountains of anecdotal evidence from literally hundreds of doctors and nurses in the U.S. alone who have been brave enough to step forward and describe what they have been seeing in their own practices, which amounts to thousands of case studies detailing the extreme harm done by the jabs and boosters.

Finally, Ron ignores the actuarial data that several large insurance companies have shared that points to an explosive rise in deaths in working age people that only began to unfold in 2021.

While Ron's simple analysis was interesting, he ignored too much data to be taken as some final word on Covid, as he claims.

What an embarrassing essay. If Mr. Unz has been nominated for the Fence-Sitter of the Year Award, this piece should do the trick and his award is waiting. As he delivers his Mea Culpa throughout this piece, Mr. Unz displays an amazing degree of intellectual dishonesty. While admitting to dismissing and degrading the past viewpoints of many scientists, doctors, vaccine injured children and their parents, Mr. Unz now tries to walk the high wire between maintaining his previously uninformed opinion, and somehow now, “seeing the light”. However, he still writes in a passive voice, using a Child Ego State to place responsibility for the lies and vaccine crimes onto others, while using “Turtles” as his new go-to excuse for the information he presents. It is as if he wants to tell the truth but doesn’t have the courage to commit to the truth. Let’s start with his demeaning opinion of “anti-vaxxers”. Has Mr. Unz been in a coma for the last 30 years? Has he not been able to read or grasp the scientific literature that clearly shows that vaccines can be dangerous?

Then look at how many times you said “I didn’t know...” and we’re wrong. Then think about how many times those ‘militant anti-vaxxers’ told you those exact things and you didn’t listen. Because “you knew” they were crazy anti-vaxxers and thus not capable of having thoughts or reading, or even knowing their own children. Then just try, but don’t agonize over it too much, but try, to grasp what a fucking dick you look like to pretty much everyone. A simultaneously arrogant and ignorant dick swinging in the wind coming from his clueless mouth. The first thing you mention is the gold standard for determining whether or not a quotation is legitimate, while the second is a good example of hearsay, which should always be taken with a grain of salt, if at all.

Liars abound.

Nullius in verba

It's unfortunate that so many people seem to see everything in black and white. True or false. Genuine or fake.

Your attempt at a broad, sweeping generalization notwithstanding, in many endeavors, such as math, or spare parts, or species identification, there is only one right answer.

In Logic, appeals to authority are always fallacious, even, or especially when, they cite Keynes, Lincoln, or Twain.

While I'm on this tack, let's have another look at the phrase and book title "Turtles All The Way Down." Once again, it's back to Quote Investigator:

This anecdote evolved over time. It began with European interpretations of Hindu cosmography. Early instances featuring tortoises and elephants did not mention an infinite iteration; instead, the lowest creature was sitting upon something unknown or on nothing. In 1838 a humorous version employed the punchline "there's rocks all the way down!" In 1854 a debater used the phrase "there are tortoises all the way down." By 1886 another punchline was circulating: "it is turtle all the way down!"

Ron has a problem similar to the Catholic pope who is infallible and can never admit to having been wrong. Therefore he has to find some crafty way of doing a course correction without ever admitting he had been lost. It's similar to Muslims who explain the contradictions in the Quran by saying that the revelations from Medina supersede the earlier revelations from Mecca. Again all to prop up the veneer of infallibility. So if Ron would just oblige his fans by moving back to New York he could say that the New York Revelations of Truth supersede his earlier Palo Alto revelations. And never have to admit he was wrong!

Turtles is amazing.

Couple of points.

1) Their story of polio simply being renamed is 100 per cent true and corroborated by US census data on disability. The Christopher Reeve foundation also did a mass survey on paralysis in the US and found contemporary rates of paralysis vastly higher than polio paralysis was before the vaccine (think 20 times).

But it's worse than that.

Renaming of diseases isn't just polio it's all so-called vaccine success stories. Smallpox, measles, diphtheria, tetanus, pertussis, hep b. All renamed. Differentially diagnosed to be precise.

Doctors typically refuse to diagnose or test for the disease if the patient is vaccinated. This makes perfect sense because they believe the vaccinated are at lower risk. But it renders all the data a self-fulfilling prophecy.

No vaccine has ever worked. Not even a little.

2) Tests against old vaccines are obviously fraudulent but, weirdly, tests against actual placebos are also invalid. If I'm a vax zealot and I've signed up for a vaccine trial I'll get a vaccine or inert placebo. So what if I feel a bit (or a lot) sick a day after my injection?

I'm going to, reasonably, assume I got the vaccine not the placebo.

Remember I'm a vax zealot who volunteered to be in the trial. So now I'm unblinded I'm willing and able to manipulate the results in favor of the vaccine.

@Ron Unz

GBS is sometimes an effect of Polio, particularly in Polio caught as an adult, where infection is likely to be much more severe.

Most Polio cases in children are assymptomatic.

It puts no doubt on the absolute consensus as regards Polio.

Wild Polio still circulates in Afghanistan and parts of Pakistan where immunisation has been poor, and its victims are visible.

Your obsession with the American elite makes you extremely parochial.

One might choose to look at the field of economics for guidance. It is well known that in the absence of careful scrutiny by the buyer or, possibly, a regulator there is advantage to the seller to adulterate the product. Selling hurriedly researched vaccines or dishonestly researched vaccines amounts to adulteration of the product. The point is to reduce costs to maximize profit.

In the modern age so many products cannot be reliably examined by the buyer for the buyer lacks the knowledge to do so. Gross, immediate failures may be evident and generate many product complaints but subtle ones may pass to the detriment of the consumer who never understands where the difficulties lie. The major impetus for regulation comes from a difficult to remedy ignorance on the part of the buyer. This is especially true of highly technical products sold to the average consumer.

Every seller knows this and whether or not advantage is taken it could be. In this situation the first necessity of dishonest sellers is to control the regulators, if any and the dispensing physicians. Control of the buyer is essentially given if one has control of the physicians. In regulated industries the first mark of a dishonest seller is the effort to co-opt the regulatory environment and other people who are well informed. One does not need detailed knowledge of the origin and efficacy of a product to look for the signs of a dishonest seller and avoid the product.

From the above point of view the heavily regulated medical industry and the extreme authority claimed by physicians makes it ripe for abuse. Informed, disinterested people are rare and usually vulnerable to attack by those interested in any aspect of the industry. This structure of the industry makes it untrustworthy.

Well chiropractic is just another nutty American cult. It's complete junk.

Chiropractors are 'subversive' about all kinds of things. Traditionally they believe that all illness comes from 'misalignments' in the spine, so it's hardly surprising or a credit to them that they reject a lot of mainstream medicine. I wouldn't be surprised if some of them actually still think their useless (and potentially dangerous) spinal manipulations can cure diseases like polio.

“Ron Unz in the year 2032 ...”

It may take nine years but Unz will come around to acknowledging the mRNA “vaccines” were/are a combination bioweapon/ global experiment on reconfiguring the human. Because he’s intellectually honest.

- mRNA was licensed to Mode RNA by DARPA in 2013
- mRNA is gene therapy according to Mode RNA 2020 SEC filings

There are positive and negative attributes to gene therapy drugs. But like CRISPR technology, mRNA can be used to manipulate genotype. Getting into SF territory: Why wouldn’t the demi-gods of Davos kill off old model humans and replace us with replicants without reproductive organs, and mentally augmented to be slaves? We are a troublesome, noisy lot.

“The 1918 Influenza epidemic(the Spanish Flu)was a vaccine-caused disease”actionnetworkorg

” The death and destruction among the vaccinated soldiers in 1918/1919 were four times higher than among unvaccinated civilians. But this did not stop the vaccine promoters. The vaccine has always been big business and so it was continued doggedly.WW1 was the first war in which all the known vaccines were forced on all the servicemen.

The war ended sooner than expected and the vaccine makers had a lot of unused vaccines so they started a worldwide and nationwide vaccination drive. In the US the only ones who escaped the influenza were those who refused the vaccines.”
Another engineered pandemic!

Now a skeptic about vaxxes, wait till Ron discovers there is no such thing as a virus. If he doubts this, there is $1,000,000 in it by taking up the challenge thrown down by the likes of Dr Tom Cowan, Dr Andrew Kaufman, Drs Sam and Mark Bailey and Dr Stephan Lanka. Viruses have NEVER been isolated and so, there could never have been a “vaccine” for a virus. Louis Pasteur was a fraud and his rival Antoine Dechamp was the true genius. It is all about the terrain.

Eyes Wide Shut; Numerous products are of Superfluous Nature. Typically in a fraudulent area, we have to look for the technical anomaly to disprove the “theory”. for 911, it is Bldg 7.

For vassination, there is a host of technical issues, proving the incompetence of the Theory. Many mentioned by Dr. Unz here but the fact that they have tried vaccines for SCURVY and other non-illnesses shows that the “science” has been incompetent for quite a while...Today they have no idea about the use of aluminum in the human body, or new findings, like the brain connection to the lymphatic system, which changes the foundation of vassine science, yet completely unstudied.

Get their Textbook, Vaccines by Plotkin

Vaccines & Autoimmunity by Shoenfeld

Watch Plotkins deposition, extremely eye opening.

IN PLOTKINS textbook, forward by W.Gates, their justification for giving vaccines to pregnant mothers was that VAERS would report any issues. Not one study! Let mer know if you need the chapter, page numbers, etc./

In the case of the CoViD19 gene therapy injection ‘vaccines’, anger is the only rational response, as it is when you wake up to the reality of the Satanic Evil of the profit-driven Western medical machine.

The ‘Nazi doctors’ were allegedly the summit of medical Evil, and the Nuremberg Laws that banned forced medical procedures were supposed to outlaw a recurrence, but here they were simply ignored as if they did not exist, and NO Western MSM scumbag dared even mention their existence. That is organised, all-encompassing, Evil, as usual.

Yeah, Jules, and Baruch Goldstein, the mass murderer at the Cave of the Patriarchs, a doctor, would not treat Palestinians, possibly for that reason, but the hordes of Jewish doctors treat anybody, preferably those who can pay (in the USA) and readily those who cannot or those in universal health insurance systems. The Talmud, in my opinion, of what I know of it, looks pretty malevolent, but most Jews have no idea of its dicta, and would surely reject them. Let’s get realistic and recognise that Jewish Evil, as wicked as it is, is concentrated in a number of twisted psyches, as in most groups, and not in every Jew.

@MLK

Agree. Unz supports the anti-science side, the federal government's mishandling of Covid, probably unwittingly. He fixates on an Australian woman in Wuhan in October and November, long after the virus was being picked up in much earlier blood samples. He also champions Peter Duesberg, who denies that HIV causes AIDS; while other factors also may be involved (much like age in Covid), there are companies, such as Tibotec and Virco, that followed HIV mutations to develop useful AIDS drugs. But maybe Unz thinks that is unrelated?

There was never any reason to vaccinate anyone under age 50 against Covid, as SARS-CoV2 kills the elderly (most victims are over age 80). Some such as Iceland's chief epidemiologist Thorolfur Guðnason realized his mistake after "successfully" vaccinating the whole country: riotimesonline.com/brazil-news/modern-day-censorship/herd-immunity-must-be-achieved-by-transmission-of-the-virus-says-icelands-epidemiologist/ While he and many Scandinavians believe that the focus should have been on treatment and development of natural/infection immunity, rather than "leaky" vaccinations, and Covid deaths in little Iceland hovered around 30 until the "successful" vaccination campaign and has now shot up to 229, mostly in 2022. I can see using the mRNA vaccines as a short-term band-aid in the decrepit Vulnerable and in children with cancer, but the vast majority would be better off by just surviving Covid infection (with no original antigenic sin from the spike protein vaccines). Guðnason takes the more extreme position of ALL being infected (and given supportive care in hospital) as the only way out of the pandemic. (Seems to have worked amazingly well in poor countries with no access to vaccines—worldometers.info).

An argument can be made for Covid vaccines for severely immunosuppressed children but no other. Mengele might approve, but no real physician.

The UK has abolished boosters for those under age 50, a small step in the right direction. No one really seems to have a clue what the real rate of adverse effects are of the mRNA vaccines (clearly by design).

Masking (and inside distancing) has always been about virtue signaling. Covid strains are now as infectious as measles (meaning they can infect people entering a room after a measles-infected patient has left). The analogy of using a chainlink fence to stop mosquitoes (similar to masks perforations and viruses) while stopping bacteria (like a chainlink fence and tennis balls) is appropriate. I worked in Singapore; one of their public health officials noted that, despite traditional masking, Swine flu raced through Singapore's population (fortunately not too dangerous). This led to border control with a cordon sanitaire, implemented throughout SE Asia. Singapore's Covid death rate is 290 per million (most from the Delta strain in 2021) vs 3383 per million in the US.

I can't say I disagree. Though the only answer to that may be figuring out how to deny or neutralize the monumental resources directed at mass manipulation.

We're all familiar with the truism that whatever you tax you end up with less of. But the little considered corollary is that you get more of what you fund.

Right before leaving office in 2016, that despicable Obama quietly legalized intelligence agencies re-shoring, if you will, information operations engaged in abroad.

Ron,

You are beginning to wake up to the largest fraud perpetrated in the name of public health: Vaccinology and its fraudulent science Virology.

I recommend that you and any of your inquisitive readers review Dr. Mark Bailey's magnum opus, A Farewell to Virology, linked below.

There has NEVER been a viral particle (defined as an functionally intracellular RNA or DNA molecule surrounded by a glycoprotein envelope that can cause illness and can be spread to another host) isolated from an ill person said to be suffering from any disease attributed to that particle (i.e., virus). NEVER!

<https://drsambailey.substack.com/p/a-farewell-to-virology-expert-edition>

You can't sue a virus, but you sure as hell can sue the manufacturer of DDT.

This is a long shot but is something to think about.

The United States Supreme Court ruled that DNA sequences could be patented.

What if...

...the mRNA shots confer ownership of a person to the patent holders of the mRNA and DNA sequences inserted by the “vaxxes”. Just maybe (((they))) OWN you...

Sure sounds like slavery to me...

Whether Ron is waking up or simply controlled opposition distracting people is a debatable question. But you are right about the fraudulent 'science' of virology and vaccinology.

And there are other fraudulent sciences promulgated in the last two centuries including evolution, the Big Bang and anthropocentric climate change. When you take these fraudulent sciences together, you begin to understand the arc of history leading to the End. How can such fraudulence become instilled in human thought over generations of humans? It could be happenstance, but I have come to think differently.

It has become clear to me that there is intention behind all that has happened. That intention cannot arise from humans with such short life spans, but that intention can be imprinted on individual humans. To whose intention will you submit? God's or Satan's?
