Ti za Trůnem nejsou nikdy nebezpečnější, než když jsou zády opřeni o zeď.

Jejich moc rychle mizí: vojensky, prostřednictvím postupného ponižování NATO na Ukrajině; Finančně, spíše dříve než později, většina globálního Jihu nebude chtít mít nic společného s měnou zkrachovalého darebáckého obra; Politicky globální většina podniká rozhodné kroky, aby přestala poslouchat nenasytnou, zdiskreditovanou, faktickou menšinu.

Takže teď ti za Trůnem kují pikle, aby se alespoň pokusili zastavit přicházející katastrofu na vojenské frontě.

Jak potvrdil vysoce postavený zdroj z USA, nová směrnice o NATO vs. Rusko na Ukrajině byla předána americkému ministru zahraničí Antonymu Blinkenovi. Blinken, pokud jde o skutečnou moc, není nic jiného než poslíček pro straussovské neokony a neoliberály, kteří ve skutečnosti řídí zahraniční politiku USA.

Ministr zahraničí dostal pokyn předat novou směrnici – jakousi zprávu Kremlu – prostřednictvím běžných tištěných médií, která byla okamžitě zveřejněna Washington Post.

V elitní americké mainstreamové mediální dělbě práce mají New York Times velmi blízko k ministerstvu zahraničí. a Washington Post CIA. V tomto případě však byla směrnice příliš důležitá a bylo třeba ji předat prostřednictvím listiny v císařském hlavním městě. Vyšlo jako Op-Ed (za paypallem).

Novinkou je, že poprvé od začátku ruské speciální vojenské operace (SMO) na Ukrajině v únoru 2022 Američané ve skutečnosti navrhuji variaci klasiky „nabídka, kterou nelze odmítnout“, včetně některých ústupků, které mohou uspokojit. Ruské bezpečnostní imperativy. Zásadní je, že americká nabídka zcela obchází Kyjev a opět potvrzuje, že jde o válku proti Rusku vedenou Impériem a jeho přísluhovači NATO – s Ukrajinci jako pouhými rozšiřitelnými zástupci.

'Prosím, nechod' do útoku'

Moskevský korespondent listu Washington Post John Helmer poskytl důležitou službu a nabídl úplný text Blinkenovy nabídky, samozřejmě rozsáhle upravený tak, aby zahrnoval fantazijní pojmy, jako je „americké zbraně pomáhají rozdrtit Putinovu invazní sílu“ a vysvětlení, které stojí za zcvrknutí. : "Jinými slovy, Rusko by nemělo být připraveno odpočívat, přeskupovat se a útočit."

Zpráva z Washingtonu může na první pohled budit dojem, že USA připustí ruskou kontrolu nad Krymem, Donbasem, Záporožím a Chersonem – „pozemním mostem, který spojuje Krym a Rusko“ – jako hotovou věc.

Ukrajina by měla demilitarizovaný status a rozmístění raket HIMARS a tanků Leopard a Abrams by bylo omezeno na západní Ukrajinu, která by měla sloužit jako „odstrašující prostředek proti dalším ruským útokům“.

To, co mohlo být nabídnuto, řečeno dost mlhavě, je ve skutečnosti rozdělení Ukrajiny, včetně demilitarizované zóny, výměnou za to, že ruský generální štáb zruší svou dosud neznámou ofenzívu v roce 2023, která může být stejně zničující jako odříznutí přístupu Kyjeva k Černé moře a/nebo přerušlení dodávek zbraní NATO přes polské hranice.

Nabídka USA sama sebe definuje jako cestu ke „spravedlivému a trvalému míru, který podporuje územní celistvost Ukrajiny“. No ne tak úplně. Prostě to nebude hloupá Ukrajina a Kyjev si možná podrží i ty západní země, které Polsko touží spolknout.

Rovněž se nabízí možnost přímé dohody mezi Washingtonem a Moskvou o „případné poválečné vojenské rovnováze“, včetně nečlenství Ukrajiny v NATO. Pokud jde o samotnou Ukrajinu, zdá se, že Američané věří, že půjde o „silnou, nezkorumpovanou ekonomiku s členstvím v Evropské unii“.

Cokoli na Ukrajině zbylo na hodnotě, už spolkla nejen její monumentálně zkorumpovaná oligarchie, ale především investoři a spekulanti odrůdy BlackRock. Různí korporátní supi si prostě nemohou dovolit ztratit ukrajinské přístavy pro vývoz obilí a také obchodní podmínky dohodnuté s EU před válkou. A jsou vyděšení, že by ruská ofenzíva mohla dobýt Oděsu, hlavní námořní přístav a dopravní uzel v Černém moři – což by Ukrajinu zanechalo ve vnitrozemí.

Neexistuje žádný důkaz, že by ruský prezident Vladimir Putin a celá ruská Rada bezpečnosti – včetně jejího tajemníka Nikolaje Patruševa a místopředsedy Dmitrije Medveděva – měli důvod věřit čemukoli, co pochází od amerického establishmentu, zejména prostřednictvím pouhých přísluhovačů, jako jsou Blinken a Washington Post . .

Koneckonců stavka – přezdívka pro vrchní velení ruských ozbrojených sil – považuje Američany za „neschopné dohody“, i když je nabídka písemná.

Tohle chodí a mluví jako zoufalý americký gambit zastavit a předložit Moskvě nějakou mrkev v naději, že oddálí nebo dokonce zruší plánovanou ofenzívu na několik příštích měsíců.

Dokonce i ze staré školy, disidentští washingtonští agenti – nevázaní na Straussovou neokonzervativní galaxii – vsadili na to, že tento gambit nebude nicotný hamburger: v klasickém režimu „strategické nejednoznačnosti“ budou Rusové pokračovat ve svém deklarovaném úsilí demilitarizace, denacifikace a deelektrifikace. a „zastaví“ kdykoli a kdekoli na východ od Dněpru uznají za vhodné. Nebo dál.

Co Deep State skutečně chce

Ambice Washingtonu v této v podstatě válce NATO proti Rusku jdou daleko za hranice Ukrajiny. A to ani nemluvíme o zabránění vzniku euroasijské unie Rusko-Čína-Německo nebo noční můry rovnocenného konkurenta; zůstaňme u prozaických problémů na ukrajinském bojišti.

Klíčová „doporučení“ – vojenská, ekonomická, politická, diplomatická – byla podrobně popsána ve strategickém dokumentu Atlantické rady koncem minulého roku.

A v dalším, pod „Scénář války 1: Válka pokračuje ve svém současném tempu“, najdeme Straussovou politiku neokonzervativců plně vysvětlenou.

Je to všechno zde: od „zařazování podpory a přesunů vojenské pomoci do Kyjeva dostatečných k tomu, aby mohl zvítězit“ až po „zvýšení smrtelnosti vojenské pomoci převedené tak, aby zahrnovala bojová letadla, která by Ukrajině umožnila kontrolovat její vzdušný prostor a zaútočit v něm na ruské síly; a raketové technologie s dosahem dostatečným k dosažení ruského území.

Od výcviku ukrajinské armády „k použití západních zbraní, elektronického boje a ofenzivních a obranných kybernetických schopností a k bezproblémové integraci nových rekrutů do služby“ k podpoře „obran v předních liniích, poblíž oblasti Donbass“, včetně „bojového výcviku se zaměřením na nepravidelné válčení.“

Přidáme-li k „uvalení sekundárních sankcí na všechny subjekty obchodující s Kremlem“, dostáváme se samozřejmě k Matce všech lupičů: „Zabavte 300 miliard dolarů, které ruský stát drží na zámořských účtech ve Spojených státech a v EU, a zabavené peníze použijte k rekonstrukci fondu“.

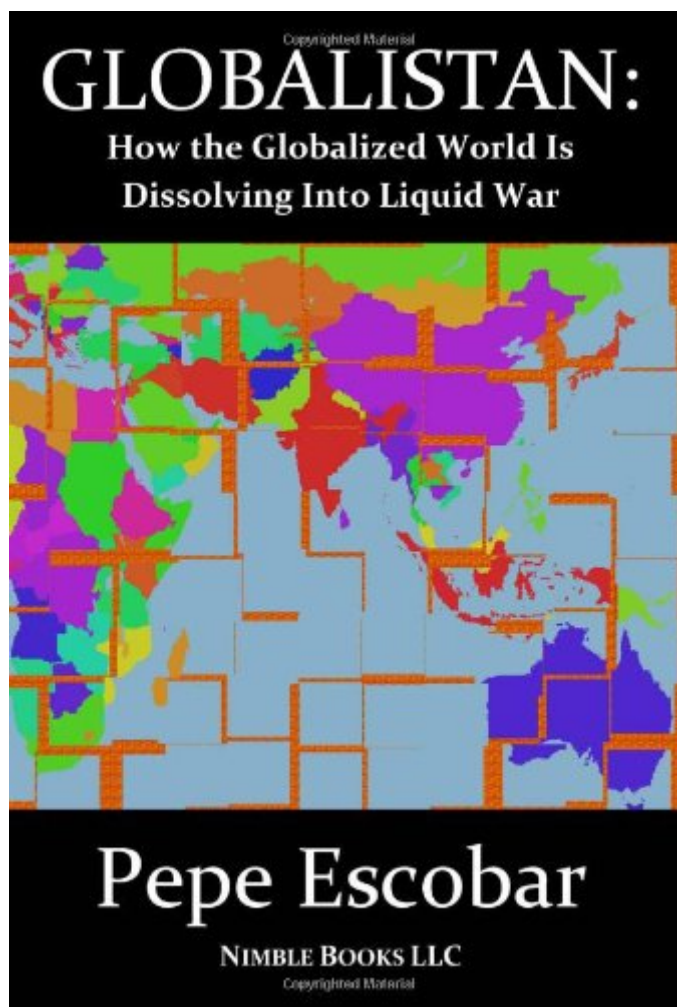

Reorganizace SMO s Putinem, náčelníkem generálního štábu Valerijem Gerasimovem a generálem Armageddonem v jejich nových, posílených rolích všechny tyto propracované plány vykolejí.

Straussovci jsou nyní v hluboké panice. Dokonce i Blinkenova dvojka, rusofobní válečný štváč Victoria „Fk the EU“ Nuland, americkému Senátu přiznala, že do jara nebudou na bojišti žádné tanky Abrams (realisticky až v roce 2024). Slíbila také, že „zmírní sankce“, pokud se Moskva „vrátí k jednání“. Tato jednání byla sražena samotnými Američany v Istanbulu na jaře 2022.

Nulandová také vyzvala Rusy, aby „stáhli své jednotky“. No, to nabízí alespoň trochu komické úlevy ve srovnání s panikou vycházející z Blinkenovy „nabídky, kterou nelze odmítnout“. Zůstaňte naladěni na reakci Ruska bez odezvy.

hopefully the russias will just string these clueless idiots along while they prepare to grab odessa and the rest of the black sea coast, all the way to transnistria. what these ukranazi's did to russians in odessa in 2014, must never be forgotten and must never be allowed to happen again, the only way to insure this, is for odessa to return to mother russia, where it belongs. if the russians allow "ukraine" to keep any black sea coast, it would invite provocation from the natonazis on crimea and servastopol.

That the U.S. is psychologically not agreement-capable is only half of what Russia understands. Russia also understands that, beginning with the Korean war, the U.S. has needed to have one major military adventure after another, for money-spending reasons. Because the U.S. lacks some other wildly expensive military deployment or adventure, the U.S. cannot terminate the current one.

To end the armageddon-risking current adventure, the U.S. first needs to deploy, big-time, to the western Pacific. The way to do this without threatening the Chinese would be to deploy a few hundred thousand troops to Australia. (“Operation Frisky Kangaroo,” the troops would be quietly calling it among themselves.) Then the Russians would believe that the America has no further interest in the Ukraine adventure, and so, the Americans will keep their word.

If this were a poker game, the Yanks just lost their best hand as Putin has called their bluff in Ukraine. The Russians can pretty much do whatever they want with what remains of Ukraine, with or without any deal from the Yanks. I mean, why would Putin agree to any sort of deal with the Yanks when the fate of Ukraine is in the hands of the Russians? A deal would have been apropos six months ago. But with the Russian SMO entering its first year anniversary next month, Putin can keep his best cards close to his chest while still holding all the aces in his hand.

Ukraine has turned into a half-dead rump State that would die a natural death without US life-support. So Putin only needs to wait until the time comes for him to deliver the coup de grace to Zelinsky's skeletal regime. Then the Russians can march to Kiev and tell the world: "Mission Accomplished!"

Soledar was the key...that's why Putin was so upbeat when it fell, the salt mines created such an asset for the defense that when it was lost Ukrainian network of defenses were compromised, its like the Nazis did to the French when they went past the Maginot line.

The East is lost now...it's been know in the West since Soledar, that's why the tanks and mention of fighter aircraft...Nato is getting ready for mobile defence to try and save Western Ukraine in general, Odesa in particular, but I think if Russia wants Odesa they will have it unless NATO puts boots in there?

A comment to ponder at MoA

“What the original stated purpose of NATO? Keep Germany (Europe) down, the Russians out and the US in.

All round, they’ve been very successful so far.”

Severing Germany from Russia has been a huge success for the USA, not quite so good for Germany.

This conference is at the EU Parliament tomorrow

https://ecrgroup.eu/event/the_imperial_russia_conquer_genocide_colonisation

For many who have experienced Russian oppression in the past, the war in Ukraine can only end when the Russian Federation is completely repulsed and defeated. In order to finally remove the threat to peace that the Russian Federation still poses, the international community should seek a re-federalisation of the Russian state.

Tsarist, Soviet or under Putin, Russia has not changed over the centuries. It is driven by the same imperial instincts, repeating the same pattern: conquest, genocide, colonisation, and then seeking a silent acceptance of the status quo, bribing the international community with the mirage of economic cooperation or the illusion of a vast Russian market. It is naive to think that the Russian Federation can remain within the same constitutional and territorial framework. Taking into account the national and ethnic map of the territories of the Russian Federation, we should discuss the prospects for the creation of free and independent states in the post-Russian space, as well as the prospects for their stability and prosperity. The international community has a duty to support the rights of the indigenous peoples who, as a result of Russian conquest and colonisation, now exist within the borders of the Russian Federation.

The only name I recognise is Edward Lucas, but the whole thing, unbelievably, is sponsored by Poland’s ruling party.

Churchill on Poland after Munich, 1938

“The heroic characteristics of the Polish race must not blind us to their errors, which over centuries have led them through measureless suffering...it is a mystery and tragedy of European history that a people capable of every heroic virtue, gifted, valiant, charming, as individuals, should repeatedly show such inveterate faults in almost every aspect of their governmental life.”

The Rand piece is quite amusing how it seeks to mitigate U.S involvement and to “park” itself in the Carpark of reasonableness, pragmatic “Adult” in the room.

What I see is a schizophrenic world power losing its grip on reality. The U.S are like agent 96 in the 60s serial Get Smart after connecting a few blows against an adversary with no sign of effect agent 96 then puts his arm around their shoulder and says “no hard feelings?”

I keep hearing about the imminent collapse of the Ukrainian army and government. In fact, I have been hearing about it for almost a year. I also hear about a huge death rate for Ukrainians, however, that would mean that the army they have is what? Composed mostly, or at least significantly, of American, Romanian, Polish, British, etc., mercenaries? What is really going on? I am not advocating the Western media line, but I am seriously questioning the “Russian/Eastern” line too. This whole thing stinks, not just the death and carnage, but the damned narratives on both sides. Both Putin and Zelensky kiss Netanyahu’s rear, both are surrounded by Chabad. I hope this is not all more Jewish/Talmudic dialectic.

I 've noticed the new meme among Ukraine boosters. The meme is about the Molotov Ribbentrop pact.

“Oh look the Russians invaded Poland, in alliance with Germany”. Yes they annexed an area of Poland at the time which is now Belorussian. Notably the (Imperial) Brest Fortress became the new frontier.

Sure.

But of course all the lemmings in Germany and Eastern Europe should recall that the French and British did allow the remilitarization of the Rhine, the Annexation of Austria and brokered the Sudetenland back into the Reich. All of which had no Moscow input. Moscow did combat Germany by proxy in Spain in 1936 where Soviet Pilots fought the Condor Legion. Moscow did have a complex relationship with Weimar Era Germany where they trained on tanks together. Imagine being a Russian watching the British concede so many aspects of the Versailles Treaty to Hitler?The point being The British and French gave Nazi era Germany much of the territory is requested. It endorsed Nazi era German rearmament and Churchill privately endorsed the partition of interwar Poland thrilled that Germany and Russia now shared an armed frontier in Belorussia. This all happened while the UK switched from encouraging German expansion to suddenly deciding to declare war on Germany over Danzig.

Caveat Emptor Chancellor Sholtz. Buyer Beware. British planners wanted a Russo-German War, then as now.

At this point Blinken is the skinny pubescent black girl and Lavrov is the 300-pound redneck School Resource Officer. The School Resource Officer has been itching to try out his Izzie counterterror training so he body slammed her and he's kneeling on her head yelling, "Stop resisting!" And Blinken's still trying to sass him with her last wisps of breath and her feet are twitching a little but you know how this is gonna turn out.

The Russians spent years trying to get a mutual defence agreement with Britain and France in the event of a German attack. The Russians were told that if they promised to help France and Britain in the event of an attack by Nazi Germany, in return France and Britain would consider helping Russia if she was attacked (Obviously that wasn't good enough) The Molotov Ribbentrop pact bought them some time and half of Poland as a buffer zone. The source for that information was AJP Taylor, it can be found in several of his books on WW2.

Wow first comment and you decide to address me. Do you think about me throughout the day? I wasn't even going to comment on the article.

John Johnson recommended a Death Ride, one way, for the export tanks and their lucky Ukie Crews.

I pointed out that even treating them as disposable would be better than not having tanks.

Russia is currently using unsupported human wave attacks of conscripts.

Ukrainians will use the tanks to kill conscripts and they will be well worth the cost of $0. If they blow up then oh well. That's war. Killing a 4 man crew is worth it if they kill 100 Russians. I would rather this war end but that is the reality of military strategy.

Your video shows the charge of the light brigade which was against well defended Russian artillery.

What makes you think the Russians have any sort of strategy? Look at these conscripts walking around the woods like they are looking for berries:

Watch Video At: <https://youtu.be/XtDoPvaCbFQ>

Do those look like soldiers to you? What is the military strategy in dropping men in the middle of nowhere and without armor support?

Putin doesn't know what he is doing and neither does his Jewish chef. They are just throwing conscripts at the front and they don't even get to charge with horses like the light brigade.

The Russian account is nearer the truth, they did go in with inadequate numbers (only 100k heavy weapons troops, the Wagner group and a Chechen brigade to supplement the Donbass militias) It was originally supposed to be a police action to force the implementation of Security Council Resolution 2202 (most people in the West haven't even been told about that UN resolution, or are pretending it never existed) The RF didn't even mobilise for the operation until it was obvious they were going to be fighting the whole of NATO. Progress is slow (the days of blitzkrieg are over) but they are slowly grinding the UAF (increasingly made up of NATO mercenaries) into paste in a manner more reminiscent of the battle of Verdun than anything else.

Will the NATO support collapse before it gets escalated into nuclear war? There are already reports of nuclear bomb deliveries to Europe from the US, that can't be a good sign.

As for the Israeli connection, I definitely see your point. Look on the bright side, if both sides are actually working together behind the scenes, at least we probably won't die in a nuclear war.

This walks and talks like a desperate US gambit to stall and present some carrots to Moscow in the hope of delaying or even cancelling the planned offensive of the next few months.

“Planned offensive” sounds like it may be some sort of psyop from the Russians stoking some level of fear, but the Russians are in a perfect position to sit on their hands and let NATO bleed itself dry.

Russia’s leaders won’t take the bait. They know that an incarnate evil has pushed its way to their very door, intent on dismembering Mother Russia and subjugating its people—people who understand what it means to fight, sacrifice, and live for one another in a way degenerate U.S. leaders cannot comprehend and that Europeans have forgotten.

They will counter an “offer you can’t refuse” with “an offensive you can’t defuse.”

After “Minsk” Russia will never again negotiate something it has no control over. Just the way it now completely refuses to negotiate fishing with the Japanese.

All we need to do is understanding money creation and the idea of fiat money.

Governments introduce direct income taxes to create a demand for fiat money – axiom 1

All fiat moneys operate in two zones – zone 1 where people are legally compelled to use it by legal tender laws, and zone 2 where people accept it out of choice, as the best among the worse – axiom 2

Ultimately all fiat money in zone 2 will, some day, return to zone 1, where it will be exchanged for goods and services produced in zone 1. Not all the money all at once, but everyday, some money – axiom 3

Therefore, fiat money is a promissory note, issued by the central bank, BUT redeemed by the people in zone 1 – theorem 1

For the American dollars, USA is the zone 1, and the rest of the world is the zone 2.

Therefore, when the RoW does not need dollars, it will send them back to the USA, to buy whatever goods and services the people of the USA produce.

If the people of the USA do not produce anything that is not to the liking of the RoW, they will slowly stop accepting dollars. So far, America forced the RoW to use dollars by compelling the oil producers to sell oil only in dollars. Now that that compulsion is gone, the RoW will slowly stop accepting dollars. That is inevitable.

I wonder how all those geniuses who exported American manufacturing and services jobs to China and India, and imported illegal aliens to do menial jobs, just to satisfy their greed, just to disempower the American middle and working classes, now feel about this.

Moral of the story: it is not enough if you are a billionaire, those around you should also have a good standard of life; else, it will be back to the medieval age, where even the babies of the kings also died of diarrhoea. I have seen multi billionaires in the interiors of India, where everything else is a seething sea of poverty and dirt; they live behind huge walls, but die of cardiac arrests, because medical help cannot reach them in time. I guess it is the same for all those drug lords in Columbia and elsewhere. It is better to be poor in a rich country, than rich in a poor country, but the Davos crowd wants to live like medieval kings.

Need to use those hypersonics before Murica can use theirs. We know the Americans have no moral compass, so they will use hypersonic missiles as soon as possible against civilian populations. Russia needs to hit first, and very hard.

Had the US taken a smarter course after WW2 and decided to use its economic prowess and political dominance to build a strong nation and become a beacon to the rest of the world, we would never have wasted trillions on war and millions of lives. But instead, the NeoCons, ZioCons and Global Bankers, play this zero-sum game, where they must accumulate more money than they can ever spend and create a world that even they, eventually, cannot live any quality of life in.

greed is a disease and unfortunately, it appears to be incurable as well as highly contagious, for most people would willingly succumb to it and behave in the exact same manner as the afflicted, if given the chance. i have had innumerable conversations with working class people, who defend billionaires vehemently and always for the same idiotic reason: when i become a billionaire i don't want anyone taking my money.

I not hopeful sane heads will prevail and acknowledge that war against Russia benefits a few (((oligarchs))) and their GlobalHomoZioBIGsRxMIC3BLM partners. Their agenda is for Russia's demise and ultimate breakup into smaller manageable corrupt sovereign governments that would allow public anal sex and the right to be protected by NATO's Prison Planet Military Guards, who will be given billions to defend NWO/Reset constitutional rights to spread Drag Queen Story Time, reparations for Magik Negroz and Holocaust Survivors around the world.

“Confiscate the $300 billion that the Russian state holds in overseas accounts in the United States and EU and use seized monies to fund reconstruction.”

Whereupon China takes all money it has in the US home.

“There’s no evidence whatsoever that Russian President Vladimir Putin, and the entire Russian Security Council – including its Secretary Nikolai Patrushev and Deputy Chairman Dmitry Medvedev – have reason to believe anything coming from the US establishment, especially via mere minions such as Blinken and the Washington Post.

The GDP of Russia is 3% of the Nato countries and the productive capacity to supply Ukraine can be set up, the dep strike missiles hitherto not given to Ukraine would hold the tide back Ukraine is inevitably going to end up with Western tanks, tube and rocket artillery and planes and missiles though a process of replacement of those worn out or destroyed—at the current combat intensity this is not a long term prospect. While it is difficult to be sure, I think the US surveillance capability for real time targeting allied to Ukraine having precision weapon in abundance and an artillery fires comparable to what Russia would be able to use when its howitzer ammunition is being blown up in depots by ATACMS will mean in the long term Russia will be driven back. That is what Washington is truly scared of. They won’t admit that of course.

<https://www.pressenza.com/2023/01/ex-brigadier-general-erich-vad-asks-what-are-the-war-aims/>

The Black Sea region is as important for the Russians and their Black Sea fleet as the Caribbean or the region around Panama is for the USA. As important as the South China Sea and Taiwan for China. As important as Turkey’s protection zone, which they established against the Kurds in violation of international law. Against this background and for strategic reasons, the Russians cannot get out of there either. Apart from the fact that in a referendum in Crimea, the population would certainly decide in favor of Russia.

So how should this continue?

If the Russians were forced by massive Western intervention to withdraw from the Black Sea region, then before they step off the world stage, they would certainly turn to nuclear weapons. I find naive the belief that a nuclear strike by Russia would never happen. According to the motto, “They’re just bluffing.”

But what could be the solution?

One should simply ask the people in the region, i.e. in the Donbass and Crimea, to whom they want to belong. The territorial integrity of Ukraine should be restored, with certain Western guarantees. And the Russians need such a security guarantee as well. So no NATO membership for Ukraine. Since the Bucharest summit in 2008, it’s been clear that that’s the red line for the Russians.”

| “US weapons help pulverize Putin’s invasion force”

Someone commented that the Western supplied tanks become fair game for Russian forces when they are given, not when they show up on the battlefield.

From Sinking of the RMS Lusitania at Wikipedia

Argument over whether the ship was a legitimate military target raged back and forth throughout the war, but after the war it was revealed that at the time of her sinking she was carrying over 4 million rounds of machine-gun ammunition (.303 calibre), almost 5,000 shrapnel shell casings (for a total of some 50 tons), and 3,240 brass percussion artillery fuses.

Also, the Russian statement about the tanks burning got me thinking about nano thermite. Have there been any reports of nano thermite being used?

To those pilots navigating drones using laser targeting location data to search and kill, it's all a video game, they have no emotional attachment to the lives they destroy, it's all fun and games just like playing WarCraft.

There's no difference between Wagner Group, Mozart Group and Special Forces from various counties fighting it out, they're all paid mercenaries wearing unique designated Velcro patches that can be ripped off and replaced at a moments notice.

He who pays the piper calls the tune. Or in this case, he who pays the sniper, calls the kill.

The U.S has a decision that is fast approaching, how much deeper can they be dragged into Ukraine without weakening themselves in an effort to contain China...I believe they have already over-committed, they have allowed historic Jewish hate of Russia to dictate strategic policy.

If the U.S does not get Ukrainians to the table before the next major movement in Ukraine and the situation goes south quickly then the U.S has lost its position at the top alone.

The U.S is allowing a foreign power that is so enmeshed into its ruling class to send the U.S into a tailspin, those not Jewish should think about their and their countries future...and to not work and sacrifice for Israel's future first, before that of the U.S people!

In the last few weeks I have yielded to nostalgia and have (re)visited Pepe's old pieces from when he was only a music commentator in the Brazilian press. I browsed through Bizz magazine, and also a little through some newspapers he wrote to. It never ceases to amaze me how he was able to reinvent himself so completely as a geopolitical analyst. And of course I do envy him a little for having lived in so many places around the world. I even delved into his personal life a little, out of sheer idle curiosity. He sometimes reveals some things about himself, and the rest one can gather from searching the Web. I was surprised to find out that his late father had been a World War II combattant at Monte Castelo, for the FEB (Força Expedicionária Brasileira). He survived, of course (otherwise, no Pepe!). In 1994, Pepe decided to move to Asia, it seems. He worked sometimes a correspondent for Brazilian newspapers, and wrote a book, "21: O Século da Ásia" ("21st: The Asian Century"), which came out in 1997. Later, he started writing practically only in English for non-Brazilian media. Nowadays he makes a lot of video appearances at a Brazilian site called Brasil 247, which is practically a propaganda venue for the PT (Lula's party). A year ago he was on a video blog called "Duplo Expresso", which covered Brazilian politics with a geopolitical approach. That site is now dead, but its creator has said it will restart next Friday (without Pepe, I assume, because he is at the competing Brasil 247). It would be interesting to hear what Pepe has to say about Lula's interest on the EU-Mercosul deal. His (former?) buddy at Duplo Expresso criticized Lula's stance harshly.

Pepe is a somewhat controversial person here in Brazil. Some people like him and some people hate his guts (I myself find him useful, but not 100% reliable). In June 2022, a piece against Pepe (and others) came out on a Brazilian site called "A Voz da Esquerda Judaica” (tr. “The Voice of the Jewish Left”). That site claims to be both Leftist and pro-Israel. One allegation the author of said article makes which I doubt somewhat is that Pepe had plagiarized an interview with Bryan Ferry. Well, I researched a bit and could not find any clue as to the original article which Pepe allegedly plagiarized it from. Here’s Pepe’s piece, which some guy posted on his personal blog:

<http://blogdoantonicodeigreja.blogspot.com/2012/06/sete-drinques-com-bryan-ferry-bizz-n14.html>

If anyone can identify another article with similar text, please let me know. This specific accusation against Pepe is frequently made in social media, but no one seems to be able to back it up with any sources.
